VOL. IX NO. 1

SSC Welcomes Sharon Rubin: New Dean of 'Liberating' Arts

Dr. Sharon Rubin, formerly assistant dean for Undergraduate Studies at the University of Maryland, College Park, is the new dean of the School of Liberal Arts.

Rubin, received her Ph.D. in American Studies from the University of Minnesota and began her career as a college professor.

"I thought of myself a female Mr. Chips," said Rubin.

Rubin taught for 11 years, from 1966-1976, in settings ranging from large state universities to small liberal arts college, in classes composed exclusively of adult students or traditional college-age freshman, with students from many social-economic backgrounds and countries.

But for the past 10 years she has been an administrator at the University of Maryland, first as director of the Experiential Learning Programs and for the past four years in the Office of the Dean for Undergraduate Studies.

That balanced background in both faculty and administration give her a balanced perspective. She doesn't plan any dramatic changes—initially. "My goal is to listen for awhile," said Rubin, "not come in with my own agenda. I have a personal commitment to the improvement of teaching and that is an area that I will undoubtedly press here. That's not to say, however, that we don't have outstanding teachers here. We do. But, new strategies always need to be considered. I don't think there are any major problems at Salisbury State. I'm going to try to make something which is very good even better."

Along with her commitment to providing students with a quality education is a sound belief in the importance, understanding and appreciation for the liberal arts.

"The liberating arts," as Rubin described them, are the basis, background and core for intellectual development and also for social good.

"People who are versed in the better and lesser known aspects of Western and other civilization," continued Rubin, "in the way various disciplines make assumptions and to their work, and in the values of their own and other social systems, can make better-informed decisions about their own lives as well as well as the lives of others.

"Many employers now recognize and urge students to supplement their technical training with liberal arts coursework," added Rubin. "Some employers even prefer liberal arts graduates who can then be taught the technical aspects of a profession. College can provide that liberal arts background."

Aside from the strong academic credentials of the liberal arts faculty and the challenge managing the diverse yet interrelated School, Rubin was drawn to SSC by its physical beauty.

"It's a lovely campus," said Rubin, "well-maintained. I'm used to public institutions putting off physical improvements. It's a pleasure coming here. I'm sure the students appreciate it.

"The whole community is, in fact, delightful," said Rubin. "It's nice to live in a place where people can really get to know you and you them."

Paradox in Higher Education— Rubin's Convocation Address

Dr. Sharon Rubin, new dean of the School of Liberal Arts, discusses many of the paradoxes in higher education at SSC's fall Convocation on Wednesday, September 16, at 10 a.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Rubin's speech, entitled "Being, Belonging, Becoming: Notes on the Goals of Education," initially will explore the conflicts students face as they enter College.

When they arrive as freshmen, said Rubin, "they must sort out who they are and what groups they want to be associated with. This choice of individuality versus group membership, or being versus belonging, is the central conflict of higher education."

Rubin will also analyze three other conflicts, those of theory and practice, emotions and intellect and specialty of a discipline and universality of knowledge.

She will then discuss how education helps one decide how to use those conflicts, either to make appropriate choices or to live with the ambiguities of the choices available. She labels this the "becoming" aspect of the paradox.

As new dean, Rubin will have a wide range of administrative responsibilities for the School of Liberal Arts, which grants undergraduate degrees in 11 disciplines and master's degrees in three. Of the 3,700 undergraduates at SSC, some 30 percent are enrolled in degree programs in the School of Liberal Arts. Undergraduate majors in the School are Art, Communication Arts, English, History, Liberal Studies, Modern Languages, Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, and Sociology. The master's programs are Psychology, English and History.

SSC News Guidelines

Any story relating to the life of the campus, whether it be of interest to students, faculty or staff, is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are usually proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Monday to get your article to the Public Relations Office (HH 264).

Because we cannot canvass the campus personally, we are grateful to those who keep us current on the activities and issues affecting College life. Our office looks forward to hearing from you.

Education and Professional Studies Restructured

The school which can trace its roots back to the origins of the College has changed its name and structure to better reflect its mission and status within the college community and the Eastern Shore.

According to Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of Academic Affairs, the School of Professional Studies, one of five schools at the College, will now be known as the School of Education and Professional Studies.

The school encompasses the departments of Military Science, Physical Education, Leisure Studies and Social Work as well as three newly established task forces, akin to departments, which will effectively supplant what was formerly the Department of Education. Those task forces are Literacy, Teacher Effectiveness and Program Innovation.

Dr. Keith Conners remains as the dean of the school with Dr. John Wolinski added as the assistant dean whose primary responsibilities will be external relations, both for the undergraduate and graduate programs in Education. (The M.Ed. program is the College's largest graduate degree program.)

"Long-range planning efforts of recent months have acknowledged the need for the School to examine continually its organizational structure," said Conners.

"The very nature of the discipline in the School mandates that resources be poised to respond effectively and efficiently to educational, social and economic trends in the region," he continued. "The School is looked to for leadership in education, social welfare and the delivery of leisure services."

"There is an on-going obligation for the faculty to remain current, active and vocal in shaping ways in which resources are used to meet contemporary needs in these fields," Conners continued. "Accordingly, the structure of the School must encourage outreach and innovation and must keep the faculty 'out front' on issues of concern to the region."

"Finally," he said, "the importance of education in the overall mission of the School requires that it take a place of greater prominence in both the name and vision of the organization. Education and Physical Education produce the largest share of credit hours and degrees in the School. The graduate program in Education undergirds a vast network of educators which is of vital importance to the College in that it produces our future generations of teachers and continually reinforces our importance in the lives of all the citizenry throughout the state and the region. It will be many years before any other academic program can claim as many living alumni as Education, and while the overall mission of the College has evolved significantly since its Normal School days, there is a valuable heritage in Education which deserves official recognition as the lead name in the title of the School.

"The faculty will not be changing what they have been teaching," said Conners, "and we expect some faculty to be involved with more than one task force."

The task force on Literacy, headed by Dr. Geraldine Rossi, will be concerned about the public's ability to read and write, naturally, but also about basic competence skill areas other than reading and writing, such as computer literacy and "cultural literacy" skills.

The Education faculty have embraced the pursuit of Teacher Effectiveness through involvement in the Teacher Effectiveness Network (TEN) Project, special summer offerings, distinguished lecturers on campus, publications, in-service workshops and professional presentations at regional and national meetings.

"Teacher effectiveness is of increasing concern," said Conners, "to boards of education and school administrators." Dr. Lee Garigliano will head the Teacher Effectiveness Task Force.

The Program Innovation Task Force permits a varied representation of faculty interests and strengths, according to Conners. It will be headed by Dr. John Bing.

"There is an increasing need for educational innovation in professional disciplines," said Conners, "as existing programs are challenged by social and economic pressures, shrinking resources and competing interests. Whatever educational innovation is taking place in the region should be our concern."

The task forces have three-year "sunset" provisions, allowing for their re-examination at the expiration of their terms.

"The School may choose to focus its vision and energy in other areas at the end of the three years," said Conners. "Or, obviously if a concern remains high in importance, its task force and mission could be renewed."

Another component of the reorganization involves the consolidation of the Reading, Writing and Math Centers into a single unit with a center coordinator to oversee all three areas.

Health Center Hours

Health Center services include treatment for injuries, illness, gynecological problems, sexually transmitted diseases (STD's), immunization, mononucleosis and pregnancy testing, contraceptive and pregnancy counseling, dental and medical/surgical referrals and Planned Parenthood of Maryland Clinic.

Students are seen on a walk-in basis by the Health Center nurses. Those students requiring physician evaluation will be scheduled to see the college physician. Urgent problems may be referred to Emergency Room at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center.

Annapolis Reception For Incoming Students

The Annapolis Chapter of the SSC Alumni Association hosted its second annual reception for incoming students and their parents on Sunday, August 23, at the Annapolis Hotel.

Dan Weaver, current President of the chapter and alumnus of the class of '77, and his wife Dianne, also a '77 graduate, hosted the event. They were helped by current secretary Kathy Gormley, class of '77.

The purpose of the incoming student reception was to have alumni meet with parents and students to answer questions, allay fears and share their own experiences with the group. The students took this opportunity to talk about everything from car pools to inside tips about campus life.

Alumni spoke with the parents about their own positive experiences and shared their enthusiasms about the college.

Representing the campus community at the event were Judith Ann Peilemeier, executive director of the Alumni Association, Gary Peilemeier, vice president of Research and Development and Gary Grodzicki, assistant dean of Admissions. Also attending were Wade Caruthers, class of '38, current president of the board of directors of the SSC Alumni Association, and his wife Gwynette Thompson Caruthers, class of '38 and immediate past president of the Annapolis chapter.

The Annapolis Chapter sponsors approximately three events each year. There are approximately 1000 alumni in the greater Annapolis area.

Morrison and Burroughs Promoted

Dr. William E. Lide, chairman of the Department of Physical Education and Director of Athletics, recently announced the promotion of two faculty members.

Mariuna Morrison, an associate professor who has been at the College since 1962, was named associate chairman of the Department of Physical Education. She coached the women's basketball team for 21 years before relinquishing those duties in 1982.

"Mariuna has been an exemplary educator for many years," said Dr. Lide. "Her positive experiences and performance in the educational arena was certainly a major consideration in her appointment. She did an outstanding job last year as the acting chairman of the department, keeping our program going in a positive direction."

Dean Burroughs, an associate professor who has been at SSC since 1973, was named associate Director of Athletics. Burroughs has been the men's tennis coach since his arrival and for many years doubled as the women's tennis coach.

"Dean has served the College for many years as an educator and a coach," said Dr. Lide. "His performance while serving as acting Director of Athletics last year was a major consideration in his selection."

Burroughs' appointment takes effect on January 3, 1988. He is on sabbatical during the fall semester. Morrison's appointment took effect August 15.

Elwell Election

Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, associate professor of Social Work, has been elected to the House of Delegates of the Council on Social Work Education to represent baccalaureate faculty.

Each year eight delegates from faculty in the more than 350 baccalaureate Social Work programs across the country are elected to serve a three-year term on the Council of Social Work Education governing body. The 586 members of the House of Delegates meet annually in the spring to establish policy for the organization.

New Course in Social Work

The Social Work Department is offering Social Work with the Mentally Retarded and Developmentally Disabled (SOWK481) for the fall semester.

The new course is designed for those interested in issues and problems of the MRDD population, as well as those actually working in the field. Theoretical and policy issues, as well as intervention techniques will be covered.

The course is taught by Lisa Maddux, L.C.S.W., the senior service coordinator at Service Coordination Systems in Baltimore. Maddux graduated from SSC in Social Work and obtained her M.S.W. degree from the University of Maryland.

The course is on Tuesdays from 7-9:50 p.m. starting on September 8. In addition to regular full-time students, the course is open to people in the community interested in the MRDD field. It is possible to sign up for the course as a special student through the Office of Continuing Education. Call ext. 6170 for a course bulletin. Other questions should be directed to the Social Work Office at ext. 6305.

Kellam Awarded Ph.D.

Barbara Butler Kellam of Delmar, MD, was awarded a Ph.D. degree in Human Development during the May graduation ceremonies at the University of Maryland College Park.

Her research investigated loss and other phenomena related to mother-newborn separation when the newborn is transported to a neonatal intensive care unit. The findings are reported in the dissertation titled, "Loss Experienced by Mothers of High-Risk Newborns and its Relationship to Subsequent Maternal Attitudes."

Kellam, who graduated from Delmar High School, holds an Associate Arts degree from Wesley Junior College and a bachelor's degree in Nursing from the University of Maryland of Baltimore. She also holds a master's degree in Science from the University of Maryland at Baltimore where she specialized in maternal-child nursing and graduated as a clinical nurse specialist.

Kellam was a member of the Peninsula General Hospital School of Nursing faculty from 1968 to 1978. She has been a member of the Nursing Department faculty at Salisbury State College since 1980. In addition, she holds a position in the Nursing Department of Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center as a "standby nurse" for pediatrics, nursery and labor and delivery.

Kellam has made herself available as a consultant to parents who have experienced a high-risk birth and is the founder and coordinator of a Parent-to-Parent Support Program.

Kellam resides in Salisbury with her husband, Ray, and daughter, Shelly.

Molenda at World Veterinary Congress

Dr. John R. Molenda, dean of the School of Science attended the 23rd World Veterinary Congress in August in Montreal, Canada. He presented a paper and co-chaired a section in Veterinary Public Health.

Veterinarians in research and public health work from 63 nations were expected to attend.

Molenda also spoke on foodborne diseases which now are being recognized as causing food poisoning in children, creating symptoms mimicking appendicitis, and causing expectant women to miscarry. Some of these recently recognized bacterial diseases are becoming very significant in diagnosing what heretofore had been illnesses not thought related to food poisoning.

One disease, Listeriosis, transmitted in cheese, has been discovered to cause spontaneous abortions in pregnant women in California. Another, Yersiniosis, passed in contaminated raw milk and vegetables, has resulted in unnecessary surgery because its symptoms are so much like appendicitis. Perhaps the most significant discovery has been that of campylobacteriosis. School children in both California and Pennsylvania have contacted this disease after drinking raw milk during field trips to dairies. Molenda believes it is a significant cause of much undiagnosed foodborne illnesses.

Since many of these diseases are passed by animals such as dairy cattle, veterinary researchers are interested in its control. Frequently it's a matter of educating food handlers in ways to stop the diseases before they are passed to the public. "Unfortunately education is frequently the weak link in the control chain," he said.

His paper, presented at the world congress, discussed strengthening such education, training and information programs.

Rights and Privacy Act

SSC will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student. Directory information is defined as a student's name, local address (if listed), date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of an athletic team member, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, most recent previous educational agency or institution attended and listing of officers of student organizations (including names and addresses).

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please notify the Office of the Dean of Students, ext. 6080, or stop by HH 243.

Dr. DiGiovanna Declaims

Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, a member of the Biology Department faculty, was a guest lecturer for an American Lung Association of Maryland continuing education course on July 15. The course was held at William Hill Manor in Easton. This was the second time that DiGiovanna has been one of the guest lecturers for the organization. The audience consisted primarily of nurses and respiratory care professionals.

DiGiovanna's presentation included information on the normal structure and functioning of the respiratory system, the development and effects of asthma, chronic bronchitis and emphysema, and the effects of aging. His talk was followed by speakers instructing in the proper care of patients with respiratory disorders.

McCartney Wins Alumni Scholarship

The College Alumni Association Scholarship for 1987 has been awarded to Joann Marie McCartney of Leonardtown.

McCartney was one of 33 incoming freshman who applied for the $4,000 four year scholarship. "Her high SAT scores, involvement in programs during high school and essay answering why she deserved the scholarship brought her first place among a group of very talented and accomplished applicants," said Judith Pielemeier, SSC Alumni director.

McCartney graduated in May from Leonardtown High School where she was editor of the school paper, vice-president of her class, historian of the Student Council Association, a member of the forensics team and served as the boys varsity basketball scorekeeper. She was a member of the National Honor Society and was selected as a delegate to attend St. Mary's Association of Student Councils.

The SSC Alumni Association Scholarship has been given out for the past five years to an incoming freshman. The committee that reviews applications is chaired by a member of the Board of Directors of the SSC Alumni Association. This year's chairman was Robert D. Evans, alumnus and graduate of the class of '65.

Each year two runner-up candidates are also selected in case the recipient does not complete his or her schooling at SSC or is disqualified because of grade point average. This year's runners-up are John Harley from Runnemed, NJ, and Teresa A. Wood of Felton, DE.

Music Through the Night

When American Public Radio began national distribution of a live overnight classical music program last November, listeners nationwide tuned in and liked what they heard. "Music Through the Night" became an overnight success.

WSCL-FM, Delmarva's classical music, public radio station, which up until June 30 had been broadcasting 18 hours a day on FM 89.5, is now on the air 24 hours a day. Because of the great national success and high quality of "Music Through the Night," WSCL will be broadcasting it weeknights from midnight to 6 a.m. and on Saturday and Sunday mornings until 7 a.m.

Much of the success of "Music Through the Night" is credited to its host, Arthur Hoehn. His laid back style, easy wit and expert programming have drawn a loyal following of late-night listeners. From Hawaii to Iowa, his audience continues to grow, commending Hoehn's ability to communicate well from coast to coast.

Each night from a Minnesota Public Radio studio in St. Paul, Hoehn reaches out to listeners, leading them on a fascinating nighttime journey through classical music. Selections for the program range from Renaissance and Baroque through the Romantic and Impressionist eras, as well as selected 20th century materials. The program includes some explorations and surprises mixed in with standard repertoire. Listeners hear a variety of instrumentation including occasional solo vocal and choral works. Periodically, Hoehn cycles through symphonies, sonatas, quartets/quintets, or other series of works by selected composers. The selections are drawn from Minnesota Public Radio's 35,000 discs which now includes more than 300 compact discs.

Mark Handley, the station manager of WSCL-FM, said, "It's nice to know that we can now provide high quality music services to the Delmarva Peninsula 24 hours a day. We could not have done this without the overwhelming support of the people and businesses on the peninsula."

The Gallery: A Season of Exciting Exhibits and Lectures

The College Gallery announces its fall schedule which features, besides the annual faculty show, exhibitions of photography, American architectural history and contemporary art.

According to Ursula Ehrhardt, the Gallery's director, "The exhibitions give the campus community and the general public the opportunity to see many different types and styles of art, including national traveling shows on loan from other institutions."

Vintage photographs by the late A. Aubrey Bodine, whose work for The Baltimore Sunday Sun Magazine from 1927 to 1970 gained him a wide regional following and national reputation, will be on view September 12 through October 1. The exhibition was organized by Kathleen Ewing, an authority on Bodine's work and author of A. Aubrey Bodine: Baltimore Pictorialist, 1906-1970, published by Johns Hopkins University Press. Ewing, who is owner of a Washington gallery, will present a slide-lecture on Bodine's work on Wednesday, September 23, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

"America's City Halls" will be shown October 3 through October 22. It documents 50 examples of noteworthy American city halls which show, through photographs and text panels, 200 years of change in architectural styles and concepts of local government. Organized jointly by the American Institute of Architects and the Historic American Buildings Survey of the National Park Service, it is being circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibition Service.

Architectural historian William Lebovich, curator of "America's City Halls," will give a talk on the exhibition on Friday, October 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Gallery.

WSCL's 'Sound Money'

A $1,000 grant from Benchmark Financial Services has been made to WSCL-radio to present the program Sound Money. Mark Handley, station manager said, "Without this grant we would not be able to make this program available to the Delmarva community." Robert Caldwell, of Benchmark Financial Services, who also writes extensively on financial planning said, "We felt because we provide a very important community service that it is important to make this service available to as many people as possible. We can do this with the radio program Sound Money."

Sound Money, the only live, call-in financial program on public radio, helps listeners increase their assets. In the process, they've increased their listeners. Sound Money, in its second year, airs nationally over 70 American Public Radio affiliate stations—almost twice the number that carried the program its first year. Sound Money can be heard on WSCL-89.5 every Saturday from 11 a.m. to noon.

Barbershop Competition

"Harmony in the Key of Sea" is the theme for the upcoming Mid-Atlantic District Convention and Contest of Barbershop Singers at the Ocean City Convention Center October 9-11.

Twenty-nine quartets and 19 choruses will vie for first place honors in sound, interpretation, stage presence and arrangement which enables them to compete further towards the international title next July in San Antonio, Texas.

"You will hear the best in barbershop four-part harmony and be well entertained," said Bob Jones of Eden, chairman for this year's hosts, Salisbury's Peninsulares Chorus. He is expecting over 4,000 in attendance for the three performances and urges the public to purchase reserve seating by contacting Norman Bounds at 749-6669. Tickets are for "combined events" and purchasers will be able to attend all contests and the quartet finals and jamboree for $14.

Quartet Competition is Friday, October 9, at 7:30 p.m. Chorus Competition is Saturday, October 10, at noon with the Quartet Finals and jamboree all Saturday at 8 p.m.

Golfing for Scholarship

The first Wallace French Memorial Golf Tournament will be held on Friday, September 11, at 10:30 a.m. at the Ocean City Yacht and Country Club.

Money from the all-day golf tournament goes to establish a scholarship at the College, memorializing the late Maryland health official. A long-time resident of Salisbury, French first worked for the Wicomico County Health Department, then became state regional director of Water and Sewer for the Eastern Shore. When he retired in 1985, he continued to work as a consultant to the Worcester County Health Department.

French had a reputation for being a diplomat in a field where confrontation was frequently the norm, friends said. "He didn't get easily ruffled and was a real gentleman," according to Pete Maugans, with the Worcester County Health Department and a long-time friend.

Born in Rumbley in Somerset County, French served overseas in the Air Force during World War II. He graduated from the College in 1950 and taught on Smith Island after the war before joining the Health Department in 1952.

He died last year of a heart attack. Since then, family, friends and co-workers have sponsored a dinner and raffle to raise money for the scholarship fund endowment. According to Maugans, they are approximately halfway to having the money needed. They hope the tournament will put them over the top.

Golfers, friends or organizations wanting more information on the tournament should call Maugans at 632-1100, 289-5786 or write Box 399, Rt. 1, Ocean City, MD 21842. Official organizers of the tournament are the Tidewater Environmental Health Association.

Monster Book Sale

Blackwell Library will be having its Annual Monster Book Sale on Tuesday, September 15, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the terrace in front of the library.

Items will be on sale for 35¢ each, (3 for $1) —every book a bargain.

There will also be give-aways!

Outdoor Club

Interested in outdoor activities—hiking, backpacking, canoeing, whitewater rafting, caving, downhill and cross country skiing? The SSC Outdoor Club offers exciting opportunities for all of these as well as the chance to experience the peace and solitude of nature. Attend the initial meeting on Wednesday, September 9, at 6:30 p.m. in the Chesapeake Room of the College Center. Sign-ups will be taken for the Delaware River whitewater canoe trip on the weekend of September 18, 19 and 20. The deposit is $15, and the cost of the trip is $27. It is open to those of beginner level and above.

Planning is also underway for an introductory backpacking trip on the weekend of September 25, 26 and 27. The cost for this trip is $5.

After September 9, Outdoor Club meetings will be every Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in Tawes 118. Meetings feature speakers, films and demonstrations having to do with the outdoors. Plan to attend.

Campuswide Policies

At the time each student picks up a class schedule for fall semester a number of important College documents will also be made available, including the Alcohol Policy, Code of Conduct and Sexual Harassment Policy. Individuals wishing additional copies may pick these up at the Dean of Students Office and the College Center Information Desk.

Student Insurance Plan

SSC students and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to enroll in a very flexible and convenient insurance plan—The Sentry Student Security Plan.

Any student under the age of 65 who is registered and attending a state accredited college or university that formally authorizes the Sentry plan is eligible to enroll. There are no restrictions based on the number of credits or non-credit scholastic hours. Coverage also may be maintained during the summer vacations and up to one term after graduation. This program offers several good options. Please stop by the Health Center for a brochure or application. Salisbury State College has authorized this insurance program.

PUBLICATIONS GUIDELINES

The Salisbury State College Publications Department, in conjunction with the Public Relations Office, exists to service the campus departments and its organizations. It is the College's policy that all publications come through the Publications Office.

Our goal is to provide you with the best possible product, whether it be a flyer or a newsletter, in a timely and cost efficient manner.

JOB STATUS

A job status board is located outside the Publications Department (HH 260). The board shows what jobs are being done that month and where they are in the Publications process.

Also located on this board is the date you can expect to have a job done if you submit it that day.

THE PROCESS

Planning

As soon as you determine you require our services (even if you have not finalized dates, content, budget, etc.), call us. Providing us with advanced notice (at least three months, more if possible) allows us to schedule on a longer term basis. This is important as jobs generally require three to four weeks from receipt of your work order to completion. We realize many jobs come up literally at the last moment and we have inevitably succeeded in completing those "surprises" while still meeting the deadlines of our scheduled work. Too many surprises, however, can obviously result in a logjam; and the first logs out will necessarily be the scheduled work versus the surprises and unscheduled jobs.

THIS NARRATIVE WAS SET IN HELVETICA

Editing

Editing can simply involve a spelling correction or be as complex as a total rewrite. Each publication is examined independently. However, to make our editing job as efficient as possible, please submit all copy typed and double-spaced. DO NOT submit copy laid out in the design you would like the publication to reflect. Your publication dummy should contain placement directions only (eg., Copy A here, Copy B here, etc).

We use the Associated Press Style book, with a few modifications, for all publications.

THIS NARRATIVE WAS SET IN TIMES ITALIC

Design

Design is the plan behind the final product. It is the creation of order and beauty out of a chaos of pictures, copy, headlines and white space. In this process our graphic designers make a series of decisions as to size, medium, typography and art based on the information you provide.

This is why it is critical to the design that all the elements be provided when you submit your job.

THIS NARRATIVE WAS SET IN OPTIMA MEDIUM

Typesetting

Typesetting of all copy is done on the Mergenthaler CRTronic 200. The CRTronic has the capability of setting type from 4 to 128 points, bold or italicized.

We have a variety of typefaces and sizes which should be discussed during the design stage to save time and money. After typesetting but before paste-up you will be contacted to proof your copy.

Please note that all the narratives in this display have been set in different typefaces.

THIS NARRATIVE WAS SET IN CENTURY BOLD

Paste-Up

Paste-up is when the graphic designer puts together all the final elements to produce a camera-ready board. This board is exactly what will show up in the final printing of your job.

Paste-up is exacting and tedious so major alterations in text (rewrites) or design should not be made.

THIS NARRATIVE WAS SET IN BODONI

Printing

Printing is done internally in Duplication Services or externally at independent print shops. Design factors and budget determine whether your job is Xeroxed in Duplication Service or offset at the printers.

Time factors vary according to print location. Duplication Services usually takes five working days for completion. Print shops request at least 10 working days.

All external jobs must go through the bid process. This process can take from a few days to five weeks depending on the cost of the job. This time is in addition to printing time. Planning, designing and paste-up also represent additional time.

Grumman Chief Is First Great Leader Lecturer

Mr. John Bierwirth

John C. Bierwirth, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Grumman Corporation, opens the Great Leader Lecture Series 1987/88, sponsored by The Perdue School of Business, on Tuesday, September 15, at 11 a.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. It is free and open to the public.

Grumman began operations in Salisbury two years ago. The pilot facility located on Glen Ave. began with a cadre of 20 to 30 transfers from other Grumman plants and now numbers 340 employees. The Salisbury plant manufactures electrical cables and harnesses that go into the five major military aircraft types.

"The Perdue School is vitally interested in offering enriching experiences to students, faculty and the community throughout the academic year," said Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of The Perdue School. "This lecture is the first of what promises to be a world-class program that will have a swift and favorable impact on the community."

In July 1972, Bierwirth joined Grumman Corporation as vice president-finance. In November 1972, he was elected president of Grumman Corporation and in November 1974, he became chief executive officer. He was elected chairman of the board of Grumman Corporation effective January 1, 1976.

Bierwirth is a director of the DCNY Corporation, General Re Corporation and Westvaco Corporation. He is a member of the Long Island Hall of Fame and the President's Committee of Smith College. He is also a member of the board of trustees of the Center for the Study of the Presidency and the Yale-China Association. He is a director of the New York State Business Council, the Foreign Policy Association and the United Nations Association of the United States of America.

In May 1983, President Reagan appointed Bierwirth to an International Private Enterprise Task. The 18-member panel was created to advise the president and directors of the Agency for International Development on the role private enterprise can play in foreign aid. Also in May 1983, Bierwirth was appointed by New York Governor Mario Cuomo to the state's newly created Council on Fiscal and Economic Priorities. The council, composed of 21 key business, labor and academic leaders, advises the governor on spending, taxation, capital development, human resource development and other major state policy issues.

Bierwirth received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Yale University in 1947 and his law degree from Columbia University in 1950. He was admitted to the New York Bar in 1951. Bierwirth has been awarded honorary doctorate degrees by National Chung Hsing University (Law), State University of New York at Farmingdale (Law), and Long Island University (Humane Letters).

From 1950 to 1953 Bierwirth was an associate in the law firm of White and Case in New York City. In 1953 he was elected an assistant vice president of the New York Trust Company (now Chemical Bank) where he remained until 1957, when he was appointed assistant treasurer of National Distillers and Chemical Corporation. Bierwirth was elected a vice president in 1958 and was appointed general manager of its International Division when it was formed in 1963. He was elected a director in 1966 and an executive vice president in 1969. In the spring of 1972 he resigned from National Distillers and Chemical Corporation.

For more information on Great Leader Series, call The Perdue School of Business at 543-6315.

Bodine's Work In College Gallery

An exhibition of photographs by A. Aubrey Bodine, whose work for the Baltimore Sunday Sun from 1927 to 1970 secured him a wide regional following and national recognition, will be on display at the College Gallery from September 12 through October 1.

Sponsored by the Baltimore Sun Newspapers, the exhibition was organized by Kathleen Ewing, the executor of Bodine's photographic estate and author of A. Aubrey Bodine: Baltimore Pictorialist, 1906-1970, published by Johns Hopkins University Press.

Ewing, owner of a Washington Gallery specializing in 20th century photography, will give a slide-lecture on Bodine's work on Wednesday, September 23, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium, followed by a reception in the College Gallery. The public is invited to both events, which are free of charge.

According to Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the College Gallery, the 50 vintage photographs in the exhibition span five decades of Bodine's photographic career, from 1925 to 1968. Besides images of Baltimore and its surrounding countryside, there are many Eastern Shore

"The Ward Brothers" by A. Aubrey Bodine circa 1950.

PROUD Meets September 24

PROUD (Progressively Reaching Out Toward Understanding Disabilities) the Disabled Students Union of SSC is an advocate organization concerned with the rights of the disabled. In the recent past, it has been able to accomplish several tasks which have made Salisbury State more accessible to students with a wide variety of disabilities. These disabilities include mobility impairments, sightless, hearing disorders and learning challenges. It has recently purchased several pieces of equipment for the training room in Maggs.

This year it has several activities planned to bring the general population into its activities, thereby helping other students and faculty understand members' disabilities, and more importantly, their abilities. Please plan to attend the first meeting on Thursday, September 24, at 4:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 105. The meeting will allow all to become more aware of others needs. PROUD welcomes the attendance of all students. (It doesn't discriminate.)

WSSC Interest Meeting

WSSC will have its first interest meeting on Tuesday, September 15, at 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 118.

WSSC is the College's student-run radio station. It has openings in all areas. New and old members are encouraged to attend.

If you cannot attend, then please contact Susan Dedejan, personnel director at the station. WSSC is located in the back of Tawes; the phone number is 543-6195.

SSC News Guidelines

The SSC News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Monday prior to publication.

Any story relating to the life of the campus, whether it be of interest to students, faculty or staff, is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are usually proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Monday to get your article to the Public Relations Office (HH 264).

Because we cannot canvass the campus personally, we are grateful to those who keep us current on the activities and issues affecting College life. Our office looks forward to hearing from you.

Rights and Privacy Act

SSC will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student. Directory information is defined as a student's name, local address (if listed), date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of an athletic team member, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, most recent previous educational agency or institution attended and listing of officers of student organizations (including names and addresses).

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please notify the Office of the Dean of Students, ext. 6080, or stop by HH 243.

Clams," 1948; and "The Ward Brothers," from about 1950.

Bodine worked in a photographic style known as "pictorialism." Originating in England and Europe in the 1880s, this style was strongly influenced by painting in its subject matter and composition. Its characteristics, Ehrhardt said, include soft focus, dramatic light-dark contrast, and picturesque or romantic subjects which evoke 19th century landscapes as a creative artist producing a work of art rather than a precise documentary record," Ehrhardt said. "Instead of taking a 'straight' photograph and printing the image as he saw it through the camera lens, the pictorials would manipulate both the negative and the printing process to achieve more painterly effects." Bodine, for example, would add clouds or brush out distracting objects. He also experimented with several unusual photographic processes to achieve fine detail and rich total effects.

Although pictorialism was already in its decline when Bodine began his career in 1925 at the age of 21, he worked in this style throughout his life, eventually achieving a national and international reputation as a "pictorial photojournalist." Most of his prize-winning photographs, exhibited in photographic salons across the United States and throughout the world, were originally taken for the Baltimore Sunday Sun, primarily its Sunday magazine.

Gallery talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Wednesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Mitchell also conducts tours of the exhibition for small groups. These may be arranged by calling the Gallery at 543-6271 or the Art Department at 543-6270 at least one week in advance of the desired tour date.

Paradox in Higher Education—Rubin's Convocation Address

Dr. Sharon Rubin, new dean of the School of Liberal Arts, discusses many of the paradoxes in higher education at SSC's fall Convocation on Wednesday, September 16, at 10 a.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Rubin's speech, entitled "Being, Belonging, Becoming: Notes on the Goals of Education," initially will explore the conflicts students face as they enter College.

When they arrive as freshmen, said Rubin, "they must sort out who they are and what groups they want to be associated with. This choice of individuality versus group membership, or being versus belonging, is the central conflict of higher education."

Rubin will also analyze three other conflicts, those of theory and practice, emotions and intellect and specialty of a discipline and universality of knowledge.

She will then discuss how education helps one decide how to use those conflicts, either to make appropriate choices or to live with the ambiguities of the choices available. She labels this the "becoming" aspect of the paradox.

Foundation Golf Classic Set For October 16

Some 144 golf enthusiasts are expected to tee off at the third annual SSC Foundation Fall Golf Classic on Friday, October 16, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club.

Dick Young, president of Salisbury Brick Co., and co-chairman of this year's tournament, anticipates the field to fill quickly.

"I am very pleased with the community support given the tourney last year and expect it to be even better this time, both through participation and sponsorship," said Young. Roy Beauchamp, vice president of Mountaire farms of Delmarva, Inc., is the other co-chairman.

This year's prime sponsor is Alarmguard of Delmarva, Inc. Donnie Williams, president of Alarmguard which donated $2,500 to the tournament, said the purpose of the event is to raise private support for special programs and projects no longer entirely funded by the State of Maryland. State support of Salisbury State College's operating budget has dropped to only 44 percent as compared to 73 percent in 1970. This type of fundraising is one way to pick up the slack. Some programs that benefit are faculty research and development, cultural enrichment, Honors and campus beautification.

A general sponsorship is $200. The entry fee is $40 per player, entitling the participant to greens fees, golf cart, refreshments throughout the day, two bar tickets for after-the-round use, roast beef and chicken buffet that evening and a complementary gift.

Two special features of this year's tourney are a pair of hole-in-one opportunities which would yield the lucky golfer splendid prizes. An ace on the par-3 eighth hole could earn someone a deluxe Caribbean cruise for two, sponsored by Hall's Tidewater Travel. One the par-3 14th, a hole-in-one would allow a golfer to drive off in a 1988 Chevy Cavalier, displayed by Oliphant Chevrolet.

The low gross team of golfers will have their names placed on the President's Cup which is on permanent display in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Trophies will be given to low gross and net, men, women and mixed teams. Cash and merchandise prizes for other low gross and low net teams, merchandise awards for long drive, worst drive on first tee and closest ball to the hole on other par 3 holes will also be awarded.

Bob Gearhart, executive director of the SSC Foundation, who sponsors the tournament, views the success of the tournament as a great benefit to the SSC Foundation.

Gearhart said, "not only does the tournament cement ties with the community, but it provides needed funds for worthwhile College purposes."

Mescon on TV

Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of The Perdue School of Business, discusses critical issues to industry and business in Delmarva on a twice weekly business Report which premiered September 8 on WBOC-TV, channel 16, in Salisbury.

Management Seminars

Three management development seminars, sponsored by The Perdue School of Business and designed to hone manager's skills in supervision, time management and motivation, are offered evenings this fall.

"We are committed to management development training at The Perdue School," said Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of the School, "and serving the needs of business, industry, education and the public sector on Delmarva."

Approved for Continuing Professional Education (CPE) by the Maryland State Board of Public Accountancy and for Continuing Education Units (CEU) by The Perdue School, the seminars study Executive Time Management, Dynamics of Motivational Management and Dynamics of Supervision.

Executive Time Management offers executives, managers and supervisors practical procedures for increasing their productivity and that of their people by improved management of time resources. The seminar lasts nine weeks.

The Dynamics of Motivational Management is a motivational training program designed specifically for the senior level manager, whether experienced or newly promoted. Its purpose is to develop the manager's ability to achieve results through other people by improving expertise in communication, human relations and application of effective management principles. It is 13 weeks long.

The Dynamics of Supervision is designed for entry level managers, those who, whether they are called managers supervisors or foremen, directly supervise the actions of other people. It not only teaches management and supervisory skills, but encourages personal growth and development. It lasts nine weeks.

Classes begin September 24. Class size is limited to 10 participants per seminar; early registration is encouraged. For more information, contact Maria Chile at The Perdue School at 543-6315.

VOL. IX NO. 3

May '87 Grads Win Scholarships Worth $640,000

After awhile, it's repetitive. In conversation after conversation the 24 students have kind, laudatory glowing words for their professors. It's enough to make a mother blush, but the student's gratitude is understandable.

With the encouragement and help of their teachers the two dozen May 1987 graduates of Salisbury State have won scholarships worth over $210,000 for the current academic year to universities across the nation. The value of the scholarships, over the length of their degree programs, is estimated at over $640,000.

Just as significantly, the students are enrolled in some of the top-ranked graduate programs in the country, from Carnegie Mellon University (CMU) and the University of Minnesota (UMn) to William and Mary, and the ivy league University of Pennsylvania (UP).

Charles Hill of Salisbury, for example, who received his bachelor's and master's degrees from SSC, has won a teaching assistantship to CMU for a doctoral degree in Rhetoric. CMU has one of the top Rhetoric programs in the country, Hill said, and he was one of only seven people accepted into its program this year.

Edward Sumstine, also of Salisbury, a Political Science graduate, has been awarded a Ph.D. assistantship to UMn. According to an American Council on Education survey the UMn Political Science program is ranked eighth in the nation. "UMn gave him a sum of money for research that I would enjoy having," joked Dr. Harry Basehart, chairman of the SSC Political Science Department and Sumstine's adviser.

Carol Culp of Rockville and Ocean City is awarded a full tuition and support scholarship to UP for her Ph.D. in Psychology. UP is considered among the top 10 universities in the country and its Psychology Department has an outstanding reputation; it is well-known internationally, said Dr. Natalia Stovall, SSC professor and Culp mentor.

The SSC graduates were competing for admission and scholarships with graduates from colleges and universities across the nation. In addition to these 24 students, 17 others from the class of '87 also are enrolled in graduate schools this fall, although not on scholarship. The largest number of both groups of students are majors from the schools of Liberal Arts and Science, followed by Education and Professional Studies.

The scholarships take the form of grants, waiver of tuition and fees, advanced placement, teaching assistantships and research fellowships.

"We have a pipeline to certain schools," said Dr. Calvin Thomas, chairman of the Geography Department. We can get our good students into a good school with financial assistance." Geography majors this year were awarded scholarships to UP, Virginia Polytechnical and State University, Clemson and the University of Georgia. Georgia's department is ranked in the top 20 nationwide, Thomas added.

Frequently the Geography graduate student will return to SSC to talk to others in the classes about graduate school. The message is, said Thomas, "In our experience, they will do well and distinguish themselves."

Several Biology and Chemistry majors also have won scholarships to the University of Delaware.

And in Social Work, four students earned advanced placement allowing them to complete a two-year master's degree in a year and a summer. This not only saves on tuition and fees, said Dr. Marvin Tossey, chairman of the Social Work Department, "but students enter the labor market a year earlier which gives them in the ballpark of $20,000 income that otherwise they would not have had that year."

"We've had more good students this year . . . and a trend—an awareness that job competition requires a higher level of credentials," he continued. "We're advising them, if they do have academic potential, to do it (graduate school) now."

Many students do go to graduate school, but not immediately after graduating. "We don't know what those figures are," said Dr. John Molenda, dean of the School of Science. Since he came to SSC in 1978, however, he feels the number of students going on for additional schooling, both immediately and later, has grown. For this he credits the faculty. "They see the students that have potential and encourage them."

Dr. Connie White, chairman of the English Department which also saw several of its majors win scholarships this year, thinks many were mature students who knew what they wanted. Proselytizing the virtues of an English degree, she said it can be the basis of everything from a career in business to law and medicine. Many of the English Department graduates, however, are working toward a career in college teaching. Said White, "The real compliment in their going on is that what they've seen you do doesn't look so bad. Something you do is appealing."

PROUD Meets September 24

PROUD (Progressively Reaching Out Toward Understanding Disabilities) the Disabled Students Union of SSC is an advocate organization concerned with the rights of the disabled. In the recent past, it has been able to accomplish several tasks which have made Salisbury State more accessible to students with a wide variety of disabilities. These disabilities include mobility impairments, sightless, hearing disorders and learning challenges. It has recently purchased several pieces of equipment for the training room in Maggs.

This year it has several activities planned to bring the general population into its activities, thereby helping other students and faculty understand members' disabilities, and more importantly, their abilities. Please plan to attend the first meeting on Thursday, September 24, at 4:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 105. The meeting will allow all to become more aware of others needs. PROUD welcomes the attendance of all students. (It doesn't discriminate.)

SSC News Guidelines

The SSC News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Monday prior to publication.

Any story relating to the life of the campus, whether it be of interest to students, faculty or staff, is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are usually proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Monday to get your article to the Public Relations Office (HH 264).

Because we cannot canvass the campus personally, we are grateful to those who keep us current on the activities and issues affecting College life. Our office looks forward to hearing from you.

Management Seminars

Three management development seminars, sponsored by The Perdue School of Business and designed to hone manager's skills in supervision, time management and motivation, are offered evenings this fall.

"We are committed to management development training at The Perdue School," said Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of the School, "and serving the needs of business, industry, education and the public sector on Delmarva."

Approved for Continuing Professional Education (CPE) by the Maryland State Board of Public Accountancy and for Continuing Education Units (CEU) by The Perdue School, the seminars study Executive Time Management, Dynamics of Motivational Management and Dynamics of Supervision.

It not only teaches management and supervisory skills, but encourages personal growth and development. It lasts nine weeks.

Classes begin September 24. Class size is limited to 10 participants per seminar; early registration is encouraged. For more information, contact Maria Shiles at The Perdue School at 543-6315.

Michael Feldman: Public Radio's Quintessential Quizmaster

Michael Feldman loves to talk to people, but conversation with him is like walking a Great Dane — one never quite knows who's pulling whom.

His unique thought-processes tug thousands of minds across the country every week during Whad' Ya Know?, National Public Radio's weekly two-hour comedy/quiz talk show. The program, produced live by Wisconsin Public Radio, blends humor, national call-in quizzes, and special guests, along with profiles of randomly-chosen "Towns of the Week."

NPR member station WSCL 89.5 FM airs Whad' Ya Know? each Sunday at 10 p.m.

Feldman, who often refers to himself as "one of life's idiosyncracies," is the originator of Whad' Ya Know? and also master of its madness. He packs a sardonic worldview and an uncanny ability to redirect the English language, shooting wit from the hip at any target that tickles his fancy.

Once introduced by announcer Jim Packard as "the man who's becoming a household word in his own home," Feldman opens the show front and center with a brief monologue, putting his own spin on the course of news around the world. Then he poses his trademark question, "So... Whad' Ya Know?" And the audience booms back, "Not much, you?"

This sets the stage for the always-popular call-in quiz, designed for "those who would like to test the fruits of their liberal arts education." People call in from all corners of the country to pool their knowledge within members of the studio audience, answering a strange brew of questions like: "Why is there salt in the Ocean?" and "Why are there missing parts on Cornish Hens?" ("Maybe they're highway kills," muses Feldman.)

Next up is the celebrated "Town of the Week" segment. Each week a volunteer aims a dart at a large map of the country, thereby selecting the honorary attraction for the following week. A history of the town is duly delivered by Jim Packard, research firmly in hand, and then Feldman takes over with a series of "cold calls" to residents and businesses in the chosen town.

He sometimes meets with a firm click of the receiver, but if he's lucky, the call reveals a personal and often amusing glimpse beneath the covers of the sleepy towns. From a mild-mannered youngster named Kevin, for example, Feldman got a rundown of the best hangouts in Briston City, NC. On another occasion he found himself talking to "Tuffy," a retired crocodile wrestler, now in a new career, wrestling bears.

Additional yarn from Feldman's tangled mind can wrap itself around almost anything. Feldman recently called a dentist in Connecticut whose neighbors were protesting his frontyard tooth sculpture. Another segment focused on the Maggot Races held in Sealy Lake, Montana, where more than 1,000 people showed up to view close-up coverage.

The entire show is calculated chaos, which Feldman insists does not reflect his personal life. "I'm sensitive, vulnerable, prone to arranging fruit in a bowl just so, not at all the fellow who digs in his basement at all hours of the night."

Whether his tongue is permanently implanted in his cheek is a matter of pure conjecture. "I'd like America to think of Whad' Ya Know? as a program of great significance. We ask, and answer, the burning questions of the day. Like, what IS the Auger Hole Society anyway? What's so terrific about maggot races? And can 10 cows really burp enough methane gas to heat a small home?"

"Literature In London, January 1988"

The English Department is sponsoring a course in London during the January winter term.

On campus-classes will be held during November and December to prepare students for the London trip and course, to be offered in January by Dr. Tom Erskine and Jim Welsh of the English Department. The course is team-taught, and the two are experienced tour leaders.

An interest meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, September 23, at 5 p.m. in the Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium. This fifth annual January course and trip to England is tentatively set to depart January 4, for two weeks in London, with side trips to Windsor, Stratford-upon-Avon, Salisbury, Oxford, Canterbury and Bath. In London proper the course will focus upon the theatre scene and sites of historic, literary and dramatic importance.

Trip costs for the forthcoming January course currently are being negotiated, but every effort is being made to hold costs to what was charged during previous years. Last year that was $775, which covered air transportation, bus transfers from Salisbury and into London, and two weeks' lodging in a conveniently located London hotel, with continental breakfasts.

There are both advantages and disadvantages in travelling to London during January. "The main advantage," Welsh noted, "is that costs can be kept to a minimum during the off-season. One does not encounter long waiting-lines at popular tourist sites such as Shakespeare's birthplace in Stratford or the Roman Museum at Bath in January, and it is much easier to obtain reasonably-priced theatre tickets in London."

The only disadvantage, according to Welsh, is "the unpredictability of the weather," as the SSC group discovered in 1987, when the worst winter storm in 40 years hit London. Even then Americans were stacked up to purchase stand-by tickets to the most popular plays in town, such as "Phantom of the Opera" and "Les Miserables." Grail travel out of London was difficult for a few days, Welsh admitted, "but it was pretty much business as usual in the city itself."

Those interested in the 1988 January course and trip may call 543-6445 for additional information and direction. Besides the English Department course, Edna Quinn of the Nursing Department will be offering, "Cultural Considerations in Nursing," in London at the same time the "Literature in London" course is taking place. For information regarding the Nursing course, call 543-6414. Quinn also will attend the interest meeting September 23 at 5 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium.

She knows the Middle East intimately, having lived there and traveled widely in the region. As one person put it, "She is incredibly well-connected and personally knows all the major players in the Middle East." She will soon take on the directorship of the Foundation on Middle East Peace in Washington, D.C.

The respondent to Ms. Pressberg's presentation will be Jan Murphy who also knows the Middle East well, having worked in Washington, D.C. for the American Near East Refugee Aid Organization. Her duties often took her to the Middle East.

He has over 10 years of experience in the sportswriting field, and last year worked as the Sports Information Director at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, VA.

Stewart is '87 NEH Scholar

For Dr. Polly Stewart, chair of the Liberal Studies Department, it was a summer of "breaking open the text."

If that sounds like a spy cracking open a code, in a sense it was. Stewart was one of 30 national scholars with backgrounds in everything from American transcendentalism to palaeography (the study of medieval manuscripts) selected by the National Endowment for the Humanities to study the Canterbury Tales by Geoffrey Chaucer.

A 14th century English diplomat and courtier who may have done a little spying himself, Chaucer wrote a collection of stories in rhymed couplets students still read for their beauty, narration and insights into 14th century life, not to mention ribald humor.

During the six weeks at the institute, held at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, Stewart and the other 29 scholars, some from as far away as Puerto Rico and Hawaii, found their days divided into three parts. In the morning a group of 10 would discuss a particular tale; most afternoons an outside specialist would give a guest presentation; meanwhile smaller groups of three would work in the library annotating recent research on the tales—all to help one another better explore the world of Chaucer. "It was very much a collaboration," Stewart said.

"One of the most exhilarating things about the institute was it made it possible to see the tales in a startlingly different way. We didn't read the General Prologue, which most classes study first, until the latter half of the seminar. We defied the conventional order of the tales and instead grouped stories by style or subject matter. We would select a passage from each tale which we thought 'broke open the text' revealing its core," she added. The end result was new insights into the stories and the Middle Ages.

The fourteenth century in Europe was one of tremendous upheaval caused by war, plague and social revolution, paving the way for the "new learning" and world of the Renaissance. Parallels between the 14th century and our own times have been drawn.

For Stewart and the others, however, the most immediate and significant discoveries were new ways to excite students about a collection of tales which still delight after 600 years.

SEPTEMBER 24, 1987

VOL. IX NO. 4

From the Sea Gulls' Nest

The sports scenario of 1987 is quite similar to that of 1986. As a matter of fact, not many of the names have been changed.

During the 1986 football season, the Salisbury State Sea Gulls scored 17 points in their first game against C.W. Post and only 16 in their second at Ferrum. Yet, starting with their game at Frostburg, the Gulls went on an offensive rampage, scoring 405 points in their next 11 games, an average of 36.8 a game, this being all the way up until the NCAA Championship Game.

Well, here they are again. Eighteen of the starters are back from last year's team. In the first game, at C.W. Post, the Gulls once again scored 17 points. Last week against Ferrum, the Gulls scored 14 points. And, if all goes according to form, somewhere in the area of 45 points should be scored by SSC this week as they begin their offensive roll.

And who better to get started against than Augustana, the team that beat the Gulls for the title last year. Well, it's not exactly Augustana. It may be Augustana's defense though. The new coach of the Bobcats, Dennis Riccio, was defensive coordinator at Augustana, during their four-year title run.

It looks as though Mike Coppa, who ran for over 90 yards in each of the first two games, is ready for a 100-yard day, as is Kevin White, who has thrown just one interception in his first two outings. And the defense has performed admirably.

The run started with 48 points against Frostburg last year. Could magic strike twice?

For last season's other finalist from Salisbury, the defending National Championship field hockey team picked up where they left off last year, winning their first two games of the season under new coach Dawn Chamberlain.

In the opener against Catholic University, the Gulls got a three-goal hat trick from junior forward Jill Stewart in the first half, with the scores coming in a span of less than 17 minutes, and coasted for the rest of the game, earning the 3-1 victory. Catholic came in unbeaten in three games, but couldn't put anything by senior goalie Karen Stockton until there were only seven minutes left.

On Sunday, a superior defense and goals by sophomore forward Theresa Dorando and senior midfielder Terri Buysse led the Gulls to a 2-0 whitewash of Mount St. Mary's, with junior goalie Tracey Short tossing the shutout.

Also putting up zeroes for an entire game was freshman goalie Matt Diehl. Diehl, making his first NCAA start for the men's soccer team, blanked Division I, East Carolina in the consolation game of the North Carolina Wesleyan Invitational, 1-0. Junior forward Peter Noto scored the only goal of the game with less than 10 minutes to go in the first half, converting a pass from junior forward Chris Yaconne.

This was the second shutout for the Gulls in their last three outings. Before losing to NC Wesleyan in the opening round of the Invitational, they masterfully handled Wesley, 8-0. In that game, the Gulls got three goals from junior forward Bryan Watson, two from Neil Benz,

Belov To Lecture on Russian Theatre in the 20th Century

Before the 1980 Olympics in Moscow, Yury Belov was asked to direct a show for the international games by the Soviet authorities. Said Belov, "I really didn't think about politics here. After all, I thought, there's no politics in athletics."

With his background in both circus clowning and theatre, Belov created a show about artists, who wishing to become celebrities like athletes, try to train and compete in sports. As he describes the show, people trying to become something they're not provokes whimsical, gentle humor. "It was funny, without politics," he said. When he presented his production to the chairwoman of the panel representing the Communist Party, however, she became angry.

"The Olympic Games are an important event and you're making fun of it," she snapped. Belov was about to vehemently disagree when a colleague nudged him. "Don't (burst out). Listen to her. Listen to her." Although Belov never had been jailed, he had had several run-ins with the authorities. "If you start arguing, you're already in jeopardy," he noted.

Two years later he and his family emigrated to the United States, and two months after that he was presenting a show at "Theatre for the New City" in New York. "I came here anticipating not a lot of censorship, but I didn't understand none," Belov waited for the theatre owners to ask to see a copy of his script. They didn't. He anticipated their coming to dress rehearsal. They didn't. Finally he asked if they were coming to opening night. They wanted to see the production, they told him and promised to see it later in the run. Belov had never imagined such artistic freedom. "I've never felt so good. I've found this new feeling for myself."

The effect of freedom on theatre, and its lack, will be one of the subjects of a lecture he is giving on Thursday, October 1, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Since emigrating Belov has maintained contact with the Soviet theatrical world through Russian language publications as well as colleagues still in the Soviet Union, and he is carefully observing Gorbachev's new "openness." His talk is titled, "Stanislavski to Glasnost: A Lecture on Russian Theatre in the 20th Century."

Belov is artist-in-residence at the College where he is teaching and directing The Cherry Orchard by Anton Chekhov. Born and raised in Moscow, Belov is a former director of the Moscow State University of Theatre Arts and the Moscow State Stanislavski Theatre, among others.

Besides his personal experiences in the theatre, he also will focus on the work and influences of the great Russian director and actor, Constantin Stanislavski, who first directed The Cherry Orchard and who has had a seminal influence on acting worldwide in this century. A question and answer session with the audience will follow. Admission is free and public is invited.

His appearance is made possible by a joint effort among the Maryland Humanities Council, the Salisbury/Wicomico Arts Council, the Salisbury State Foundation, and the College's Department of English, Honors Program, College Center and Theatre program.

PROUD Meets September 24

PROUD (Progressively Reaching Out Toward Understanding Disabilities) the Disabled Students Union of SSC is an advocate organization concerned with the rights of the disabled. In the recent past, it has been able to accomplish several tasks which have made Salisbury State more accessible to students with a wide variety of disabilities. These disabilities include mobility impairments, sightless, hearing disorders and learning challenges. It has recently purchased several pieces of equipment for the training room in Maggs.

This year it has several activities planned to bring the general population into its activities, thereby helping other students and faculty understand members' disabilities, and more importantly, their abilities. Please plan to attend the first meeting on Thursday, September 24, at 4:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 105. The meeting will allow all to become more aware of others needs. PROUD welcomes the attendance of all students. (It doesn't discriminate.)

SSC News Guidelines

The SSC News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Monday prior to publication.

Any story relating to the life of the campus, whether it be of interest to students, faculty or staff, is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are usually proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Monday to get your article to the Public Relations Office (HH 264).

Because we cannot canvass the campus personally, we are grateful to those who keep us current on the activities and issues affecting College life. Our office looks forward to hearing from you.

Prescriptive students who completed diagnostic tests in reading during the 1986-87 academic year are urged to resume working in the Literacy Development Center on their individual prescription. Prescriptive students who fail to demonstrate an appropriate level of competency by the completion of their sophomore year will not be allowed to continue at SSC. To resume your prescription, report to the Literacy Development Center, Caruthers Hall 202A, or contact Mrs. Laney Howard or Ms. Sharon Boatright, Caruthers Hall 202A, at 543-6392.

Notice: Prescriptive Students in Reading

Freshmen and transfer students whose score on the reading placement test, given during orientation, was in the 32-38 range are classified as prescriptive students in reading. These students must register to take further diagnostic tests designed to determine areas of strength and weakness. Various test dates and times have been scheduled to accommodate all students. The test sessions are:

Session 1-Wed., Oct. 7, 2-3:00 p.m.

Session 2-Thurs., Oct. 8, 2-3:00 p.m.

Session 3-Wed., Oct. 14, 2-3:00 p.m.

Session 4-Thurs., Oct. 15, 2-3:00 p.m.

Students need to register for one session of testing. Registration will be conducted in the main office of the Literacy Development Center, Caruthers Hall 202A.

If the diagnostic test scores indicate no serious reading problems, the prescriptive student will have fulfilled the requirement just by taking the test. If, however, deficiencies are found, the student must work in the Development Center until those deficiencies are remediated. Failure to fulfill this requirement by testing out or working in the Center until remediated by the completion of the sophomore year may result in dismissal from the College. If a student is in doubt about his test score, he should contact his advisor or the Literacy Development Center at 543-6392.

WEEKEND EDITION On Saturdays

The pace of the week changes on Saturday, and WEEKEND EDITION with Scott Simon reflects that change. The National Public Radio program reports up-to-the-minute news, but there's also time to get to the bottom of things. There's plenty of room for news analysis and personal matters like health and finance, small town news, movies, books, sports and listener letters too.

WEEKEND EDITION with Scott Simon is heard on National Public Radio member station WSCL-FM 89.5 every Saturday at 9 a.m.

"WEEKEND EDITION (on Saturdays)....is probably the best written and most entertaining news program on the dial," wrote the Washington Post.

In its first year, host and chief correspondent Scott Simon won a Robert F. Kennedy Journalism Award for WEEKEND EDITION coverage of racial tension in a south Philadelphia neighborhood; and a 1986 Silver CINDY award for a report on conditions at a Texas detention center run by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Simon, former head of National Public Radio's Chicago Bureau, has reported from Central America, the Middle East, India, Europe, Canada, and throughout the United States. Among the broadcast journalism awards he has won are the 1979 Major Armstrong Award for his report on the American Nazi Party rally in Chicago and a 1978 Unity in Media Award for political coverage on ALL THINGS CONSIDERED. He also won a 1982 national Emmy for "The Patterson Project," a public television documentary.

In addition to reports and features generated by WEEKEND EDITION staff, the program is put together with reports from National Public Radio bureaus in Washington, D.C., Chicago, New York, Los Angeles and London; from National Public Radio member stations; and from freelance reporters.

Kimmel To Attend Art Conference

Dr. Kent N. Kimmel, professor of Art in the Department of Fine Arts, will participate in the 51st annual Conference of the Mid-American College Art Association, which convenes in Minneapolis, MN on October 21-24.

The conference, entitled "Visions & Revisions," will bring together artists, designers, educators, professionals and students from across the nation to actively examine, challenge and rethink presuppositions in the discipline areas of the studio arts, design, art history and criticism. Through lectures, seminars and panel discussions, participants will explore the past, present and future of the visual arts.

In addition to keynote addresses from prominent figures representing the four major discipline areas, more than 50 selected panelists from across the country will present papers on a wide range of theoretical and practical topics.

Kimmel's presentation, entitled "The Need for an Increased Role of the Graphic Specialist in Psychological Research," is co-authored with Dr. John Eliot, a professor at the Institute for Child Study, University of Maryland, College Park.

The presentation will focus on the desired relationship between the role of psychologists and graphic specialists in the development of better test instruments and the projected need for more discriminating devices with which to evaluate potential job candidates. Kimmel will propose that the need for better testing measures requires the development of a new generation of visual spatial tests and potentially a new graphic design industry for interested artist/designers.

Turner To Perform

Katherine Turner, a new faculty member of the Music Department at the College, will be performing at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in downtown Salisbury on Tuesday, October 6, at 12:15 p.m. She is one of many area performers to be a part of the church's "Bach's Lunch" recital series.

The students, faculty and staff are warmly invited to attend. Don't forget to pack your lunch.

Wildlife Art Exhibit

Paintings of "Wildlife" will be exhibited at the Art Institute and Gallery in Gallery II from September 28 to October 30.

Entries will be accepted from all artists age 18 years old or older, professional or amateur. All media is accepted except photography or commercial offset productions. Applications and more information can be obtained at the Art Institute or by calling 546-4748 from noon to 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, or Phyllis Billman at 546-0313. Art works will be received on Saturday, September 26, from 9 a.m. until noon. A qualified judge will award prizes of money and ribbons.

A one-man show by Persis Wallace will be in Gallery I at the same time.

The public and members of the Art Institute and Gallery are invited to a reception to be held Sunday, October 4, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Art Institute, located at the corner of Rt. 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane in downtown Salisbury.

and one each from Yanconne, Robert Novak and Greg Martel. The Gulls, in dominating Wesley, outshot them 32-0.

Another third place finish came Saturday from the Sea Gulls volleyball team, over the weekend, at the Mary Washington Invitational. Going into the tournament 2-0, after beating Division II opponent Maryland Eastern Shore, 15-4, 10-15 and 15-9, and UDC 15-1 and 15-2, the Gulls were faced with the challenge of taking on host MWC in the first round. The Eagles were the defending South Regional champions. But, before too long Peggy Troiano's group of setters and hitters had upset MWC 15-6 and 15-1.

In the second round, the Gulls upended North Carolina Wesleyan in straight games, 15-2 and 15-2. In the third round the Gulls fell to the second-place finisher, Western Maryland 15-5, 16-14. And in the last game, they put up a great fight and almost came away with another upset victory to North Carolina-Greensboro, the eventual champion, losing. As a matter of fact, the Gulls won the first game 15-8. However UNCG proved too strong and won the final two games, 15-8, 15-11.

In the tournament, 6'2" senior hitter Debbie Givvens had 13 aces, while junior setter Brenda Bowlin had eight and sophomore hitter Sandy Jankevicius had six.

And, in yet another Invitational, the cross country team came up with a fine second place finish in the Washington College Invitational, Saturday at Chestertown. Catholic came in first with 22 points, followed by SSC with 38 and Washington with 68.

Junior Doug Mock finished second in the race with a time of 26:52, just 10 seconds behind the winner, Tom Cafferty of Catholic. Other Gulls in the top 12 were senior Steve Tiller in fifth place with a time of 28:49, Tim Blasko in seventh with a time of 30:05 and, finishing 12 seconds apart in eleventh and twelfth were freshmen Jon Witacre and James Rapp.

Receiving top soccer tournament honors were Novak and junior back Leo Raymond, both named to the All-Tournament Team, selected by the coaches.

In the Mary Washington Invitational, of six players named to the All-Tournament Team, also selected by the coaches, three belonged to Salisbury. They were Bowlin, senior hitter Elaine Allnut and freshman hitter Shelly Conaway.

SSC News Guidelines

The SSC News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Monday prior to publication.

Any story relating to the life of the campus, whether it be of interest to students, faculty or staff, is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are usually proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Monday to get your article to the Public Relations Office (HH 264).

Because we cannot canvass the campus personally, we are grateful to those who keep us current on the activities and issues affecting College life. Our office looks forward to hearing from you.

Catholic Mass

Roman Catholic Mass is said at 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers 118 each Sunday that college is in session.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Lower Eastern Shore needs just three to six hours of your time each week. You'll spend this time with a child from a single parent family who needs additional adult contact. You could take him/her swimming, stroll the mall, go to the park, or just "hang out." Your time and love are a valuable resource to a child in need.

Big Brothers are especially needed. Approximately 30 boys are on the waiting list. Call 543-BIGS for more information.

Great Lectures Date Change

The October 7 presentation by W.J. Hindman, chief executive officer for Jiffy Lube International Inc. as part of the Great Leader Lecture Series sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business has been rescheduled.

Hindman will now address students, faculty and the general public on Thursday, November 12, at 9:30 a.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The next speaker in the Great Leader Lecture Series is R. Gordon McGovern, president of Campbell Soup, on Wednesday, October 14, at noon in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

For more information on the series, contact the Perdue School at (301) 543-6315.

SAT Prep Class

Beginning Wednesday, October 7, the College will sponsor a four-week course to prepare students to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT). The course will be taught from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday nights in room B130 of Caruthers Hall.

Instructors will be Dr. Thomas Erskine, professor of English, and Dr. Donald Cathcart, professor of Mathematics. Both have offered the course several times in the past and have had extensive experience in working with high school students.

The course, which will stress test preparation and will review common problems in English and Mathematics, is designed to help students do their best on the examination, which is an admissions requirement at most colleges and universities.

The cost of the course is $65, plus the textbook, which will be available for purchase at the first class meeting.

For information and registration call the Office of Continuing Education at (301) 543-6170. Registration is also possible at the first meeting of the class, but enrollment is limited to 20 students.

Faculty Development Committee Honors Request

In April 1983 the Faculty Development Committee announced the availability of blank videotapes for faculty use. Dr. Robert Hedeon, professor of Biology, sent a memo via campus mail on May 27, 1983, to Dr. Marvin Tossey, committee chair—the request was received August 26, 1987.

Though all of the original tapes were distributed four years ago, the committee has agreed to honor its announcement by sending Dr. Hedeon a new tape.

Thompson Speaker at Historical Society

On September 14, Dr. G. Ray Thompson, professor of History and co-director of the Delmarva Historical Archives Center at SSC was the guest speaker at the fall meeting of the recently established Fruitland Historical Society. Prescriptive students who completed diagnostic tests in reading during the 1986-87 academic year are urged to resume working in the Literacy Development Center on their individual prescription. Prescriptive students who fail to demonstrate an appropriate level of competency by the completion of their sophomore year will not be allowed to continue at SSC. To resume your prescription, report to the Literacy Development Center, Caruthers Hall 202A, or contact Mrs. Laney Howard or Ms. Sharon Boatright, Caruthers Hall 202A, at 543-6392.

Notice: Prescriptive Students in Reading

Freshmen and transfer students whose score on the reading placement test, given during orientation, was in the 32-38 range are classified as prescriptive students in reading. These students must register to take further diagnostic tests designed to determine areas of strength and weakness. Various test dates and times have been scheduled to accommodate all students. The test sessions are:

Session 1—Wed., Oct. 7, 2-3:00 p.m.
Session 2—Thurs., Oct. 8, 2-3:00 p.m.
Session 3—Wed., Oct. 14, 2-3:00 p.m.
Session 4—Thurs., Oct. 15, 2-3:00 p.m.

Students need to register for one session of testing. Registration will be conducted in the main office of the Literacy Development Center, Caruthers Hall 202A.

If the diagnostic test scores indicate no serious reading problems, the prescriptive student will have fulfilled the requirement just by taking the test. If, however, deficiencies are found, the student must work in the Development Center until those deficiencies are remediated. Failure to fulfill this requirement by testing out or working in the Center until remediated by the completion of the sophomore year may result in dismissal from the College. If a student is in doubt about his test score, he should contact his advisor or the Literacy Development Center at 543-6392.

Architectural Historian To Give Gallery Talks

William Lebovich, curator of America's City Halls, which opens at the College Gallery on October 2, will give two gallery talks on this show on Friday, October 9, at 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. The afternoon talk will be primarily for area high school students and the evening talk, for the general public. College students may attend either. The event is free, but due to space limitations, participants should pre-register by calling the College Gallery at 543-6271 or the College Center at 543-NEWS.

The exhibition consists of photographs, including both exterior and interior views, as well as details of important architectural features, of 50 significant examples of America city halls, documenting 200 years of changing architectural tastes and styles. The buildings range in time from the late 18th century, which still reflects Colonial traditions, throughout the various "revival" styles of the 19th and 20th centuries, to various interpretations of the modern tradition since World War I.

Area examples represented in the show include the city halls of Baltimore (1875) and Philadelphia (1901), both in the French Second Empire Style; the Richmond City Hall (1984) in the Victorian Gothic style; and three civic halls from Wilmington, the Old Town Hall of 1800, the City and County Building of 1917, and the New City and County Building of 1976.

Lebovich's gallery talks will focus primarily on the architectural and physical history of the buildings. He also will discuss briefly the historical and municipal issues underlying the development of city halls and address the problem of their preservation.

Lebovich is an architectural historian with the United States Department of the Interior and has been involved since 1980 with the Historic American Buildings Survey, which documents, through photographs, drawings, and records, historically important American buildings. He is also an architectural photographer and a consultant on architectural history and preservation issues.

The exhibition will be at the College Gallery through October 22. It was organized jointly by the America Institute of Architects, the Historic American Buildings Survey, and the United States Conference of Mayors and is being circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service. Regularly scheduled gallery talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Wednesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Gallery tours for groups, also given by Mitchell, may be arranged by calling the Gallery one week in advance of the desired tour date.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERIES: The Quiet American

All screenings are in Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium at 7 p.m. Screenings are organized by Jim Welsh for the College Center. Admission is free.

On Tuesday, October 6, The Quiet American (1957) is being shown. It is based upon Graham Greene's novel written and set in Vietnam before the French evacuation, warning the United States about the dangers of political involvement there. Greene's warning was ignored in this country and Joseph Mankiewicz changed the story to make the American of the title sympathetic and heroic rather than idealistic and dangerous.

Black Student Union Holds Mixer

Some 85 people, a record number, attended the College's Black Student Union Unity Social, recently in the Social Room.

The social was dedicated to the memory of Deedra Johnson of Quantico, an SSC student killed in an automobile accident last year. A member of the BSU and the SSC Gospel Choir, she had urged the BSU to quickly begin meetings at the start of the school year to help introduce students and build unity, according to Lyle Grandison, BSU president. The mixer was one of the first organizational events held on campus this semester. In an address to the new and old members as well as guests, Grandison urged black students to use their education to make a commitment to their community and not just a comfortable life. Planning is now underway for BSU events which traditionally have included Black History Month celebrations and concerts by its Gospel Choir.

WSCL Launches First On-Air Fund Drive

WSCL-89.5, the new noncommercial radio station licensed to the Salisbury State College Foundation and located on the campus, is planning its first on-air campaign for listener support. Called the "Quiet Drive" and scheduled to begin October 5 and run for several weeks, the fundraiser, the first since WSCL went on the air this spring, is designed as an experiment seeking support while leaving regular programming essentially intact. The station hopes to raise $45,000 during the month of October.

"Listeners have told us," said Station Manager Mark Handley, "and research data confirm that the more conventional kind of on-air fundraiser, with its characteristic disruptiveness, can raise money in the short term but alienate listeners in the long run. Good music and news, not chatter and drum-banging, are why people listen to radio stations like WSCL-FM. So we feel our listeners deserve music and news even while we ask them for their support."

"Delmarva arts audiences," added Handley, "have an exceptionally good track record of supporting work they value. Just the same, we're taking a risk with this Quiet Drive. It's up to our listeners to make it a success-in which case, we'll stay quiet the next time around-or a failure. If it's not a success, I guess we'll have to resort to a Noisy Drive like other public television and radio stations. But we're betting that won't happen."

During the Quiet Drive, FM 89.5 will give two minutes each hour to produced "spots" during which on-air personalities at the station and other spokespersons from the Delmarva community will explain how listeners can contribute and why.

The station needs to raise these funds because it is almost totally dependent upon listener support. Continued classical music programming and in-depth news reporting will rely increasingly on income from listeners.

The broadcast fundraising spots will explain the station's five-tier membership system, ranging from $35 to $500 and the benefits available to members. Membership benefits include a subscription to WSCL 89.5's monthly program guide, participation in WSCL's special events, opportunity to attend receptions, tours of the station and some of the finest music and public affairs on Delmarva.

SSC Students Cruise Bay for Research

As part of the laboratory experience for College 410 Estuarine Biology, students will be spending three days aboard the University of Maryland's 65-foot research vessel the RV AQUARIUS. This vessel has served as the platform for much of the aquatic research that has occurred on the Chesapeake Bay over the last 15 years, research that has delved into the pollution problems of the Bay.

Dr. Thomas Jones, associate professor of Biology and the instructor of the course, will supervise the students as they collect data on the physical, chemical and biological nature of the Bay and some of its tributaries.

On October 3, the class will leave from Crisfield on the AQUARIUS and travel south to Cape Charles near the mouth of the Bay and then return to Crisfield where the class will spend the night reviewing the day's findings. On the following day, they will sample Tangier Sound and the Wicomico River, debarking in Salisbury Sunday evening. On October 31 - November 1, the group will leave from the University of Maryland's Horn Point Environmental Laboratory near Cambridge and study the Choptank River. The class will spend the night near Horn Point and tour the lab facilities the second day.

Along with being a laboratory experience in Estuarine Biology for these students, the data and biological specimens that are collected during these cruises are to be included along with previous years' collections with the aim of developing a long-term data base at SSC for these river systems and the development of an aquatic museum of Chesapeake Bay species.

Literature Film Quarterly: Happy 15th Anniversary

The ongoing success of Literature Film Quarterly, now read in 26 countries around the world and published at the College, is discussed by James Welsh, associate professor of English and LFO founder, on WESM radio's "A Novel Experience," a community affairs program airing Thursday, October 1, from 7:30 to 8 p.m. Dr. Richard C. Keenan, associate professor of English at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, hosts the program, which broadcasts at 91.3 on the FM dial. LFO, now celebrating its 15th anniversary, focuses upon the problems of adapting literature and dramatic works to the screen.

For the Salisbury State Sea Gulls, this past weekend was a very profitable one.

On Saturday, the football team played host to cross-state rival Frostburg State. The volleyball team hosted Lincoln University of Pennsylvania and the field hockey team was hosting Indiana University of Pennsylvania, the State University of New York at Oneonta and Wesley College in the fourth annual Sunfest Tourney.

The result were astounding.

The football team, behind 104 yards from Mike Coppa and 12 tackles from Chris Snyder, finally put it all together and buried the Bobcats 40-3 to up its record to 2-1. The Gulls host UDC on Saturday.

In volleyball, the Gulls took care of Lincoln very quickly, 15-1, 15-1 and 15-7, to up their record to 5-2 and 1-0 in the Eastern States Athletic Conference. However, in pre-game warm-ups, quarterback and co-captain Brenda Bowlin was lost for three to four weeks with a sprained left ankle.

The field hockey team which had won two straight Sunfest Tournaments, dominated Wesley, 7-0, in the opening round, behind three goals and an assist from Glenda Lowe, two goals from Vicki Miller and a goal and two assists from Jill Stewart. Later in the day, the Gulls shut out Oneonta 4-0, with Stewart and Lowe pacing the attack.

A perfect Saturday in Salisbury. Four wins and no losses. Outscoring opponents by a margin of 96-12.

The Gulls managed to capture their third straight Sunfest on Sunday with a 1-0 win over Indiana (PA). The goal was scored by Terri Buysse at 14:12 of the first half to extend the Gulls current winning streak to 26. Tracey Short, as she had been all weekend was magnificent in net, and on many occasions came through in the clutch.

Let us not forget the road teams, however.

SSC's Vicki Conklin plays against Wesley at the Sunfest Tournament

The cross country team, featuring Don Mock's best personal performance ever, placed third at the Christopher Newport Invitational. And the soccer team raised its Eastern States Athletic Conference record to 1-0-1 with a 1-1 come-from-behind tie at Shenandoah. A profitable weekend indeed.

Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard: A World Still With Us

The Cherry Orchard by Anton Chekhov is not produced all that often on American stages, but it should be.

That is the impression Yuri Belov, currently artist-in-residence at the College creates. For Belov, who emigrated from the Soviet Union six years ago and is now in rehearsal with The Cherry Orchard, Chekhov's pre-revolutionary world (the play was produced in 1904, 13 years before the outbreak of the Russian revolution) is akin to life in the United States today.

"When I lived in the Soviet Union, I thought, The Cherry Orchard was boring," said Belov. "But when I came here (the U.S.) I started to meet the characters Chekhov had created." Now a professor of theatre at the North Carolina School of the Arts, Belov was introduced to a man who owned a plantation house with much land. The landowner was cash poor, however, and could not afford to maintain his property. "I asked him why he didn't sell some of the land and he was shocked. 'Sell the land? Never!' was his reaction. It was just like the situation in The Cherry Orchard."

Chekhov, who died the year The Cherry Orchard was produced, was a seminal influence on world theatre. This, his last play, was considered his most mature, if not his best work. Set on a country estate, Madame Ranevskaya, the owner, returns home as her house and land are about to be auctioned to pay off huge family debts. Ranevskaya, who has lived a self-indulgent life, is nevertheless a charming woman and Lopakhin, a former serf and now a prosperous merchant, pleads with her to sub-divide her land and lease it for summer cottages, thus saving the estate. But that would mean cutting down a now useless cherry orchard which she loves. Her actions, which have far-reaching implications for her family, and by inference, her world, are the core of the play.

They also have provoked considerable thought by Belov, who is giving the production a novel interpretation. First, "it is a play about money," Belov recently reiterated to students studying the script, "not about love." Ranevskaya leaves a lover in Paris to return to Russia. Lopakhin is in love with her. Meanwhile, she is trying to marry her adopted daughter to Lopakhin.

For Belov, however, all these romantic involvements are secondary to the theme of property. He believes, and critics like Robert Brustein concur, that Chekhov took the melodramatic form and inverted it. In his last play, the roles in the traditional story of the villain at the gate ready to steal family hearth and home almost have been reversed. The result is still pathos, but more significantly, Belov feels, satire and laughter. And this complexity of conflicting emotions in what otherwise would be a simplistic and melodramatic situation, is what makes Chekhov, in the words of critic John Gassner, "one of the greatest playwrights of the modern world."

Chekhov's plays demanded a style of presentation that not only revolutionized the Russian stage, but went on to become the dominant force in world theatre in this century, including the American cinema. That style was realism or naturalism.

The famed Russian director and teacher, Constantin Stanislavski, with the Moscow Art Theatre (later dubbed the house of Chekhov) successfully brought Chekhov's plays to the Russian, and world, public. But not without struggles. In The Cherry Orchard, for example, Chekhov wrote that he was sending Stanislavsky's theatre a comedy, "almost a farce," said Belov. "Stanislavski wrote back that he (Chekhov) has written a great play, possibly his greatest but it was a 'drama, almost a tragedy.'" The resulting changes in dialogue Stanislavski requested emphasized the nostalgic and his concept of what the play should be. This did not please Chekhov who complained shortly before his death, that he wondered if Stanislavski had ever really read the play.

No copies of the original draft Chekhov submitted to Stanislavski now exist. Belov's interpretation, however, would seem to go back to the playwright's original concept.

"His (Belov's) interpretation borders on brilliance," according to Dr. Andrew Hepburn, director of Theatre at SSC. "I've never read or heard anywhere of such an interpretation on stage."

Audiences have the opportunity to see this fresh version of a world classic on Friday, October 16, when it opens for six performances at Holloway Hall on stage. Call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228 for reservations.

Pulitzer-Winning Poet Here October 15

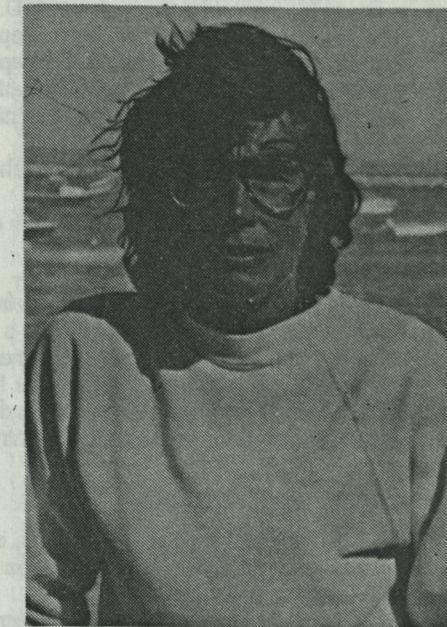

Pulitzer Prize-winning poet Mary Oliver will read from her work on Thursday, October 15, at 7:30 p.m., in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The program is free and the public is invited.

"Far beneath the surface-flash of linguistic effect, Mary Oliver works her quiet and mysterious spell," said author James Dickey. "It is a true spell, unlike any other poet's, the enchantment of the true maker."

Oliver won her Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1984 for American Primitive. Her other works include Twelve Moons (Little, Brown, 1979), Sleeping in the Forest (Ohio Review Chapbook, 1979), The Night Traveler (Bits Press, 1978), The River Styx, Ohio and Other Poems (HBJ, 1972) and No Voyage and Other Poems (Houghton Mifflin, 1965).

In addition to her Pulitzer, she was awarded the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters Achievement Award in 1983, the Shelley Memorial Award in 1972 and a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship for 1972-73.

She was the Elliston Poet in Residence at the University of Cincinnati and Visiting Poet in

1984 Pulitzer Prize Winner Mary Oliver

Residence at Bucknell University, both in 1986, and the Mather Visiting Professor in Creative Writing at Case Western Reserve University in 1980 and 1982.

She is a contributor to the following magazines: The New Yorker, Poetry, Atlantic, Kenyon Review, Georgia Review, Ohio Review, Partisan Review, Yale Review, Harpers, The New Republic and Harvard Magazine.

Of Twelve Moons, Publisher's Weekly said, "Oliver might be described as a nature poet, but she is working on a much larger loom than her contemporaries. These spare, superficially pretty lyrics spring from a grand, quasi-mystical view of creation and the seasons of life. Nothing's static in these poems. They pulse with a drama that Oliver's slippery lines persuade us is the necessary ferment of the natural order of things. Oliver is already well published, but this is a breakthrough book. Poem by poem, Twelve Moons is a progressive hammering out and refining of what could become a major vision."

For more information on Oliver's presentation, call the College Center at 543-NEWS.

Theatre Season Opens With 'Cherry Orchard'

A pre-eminent Russian Theatre artist directing a pre-eminent Russian play, a double-bill of powerful dramas and one of Gilbert and Sullivan's most popular operettas with full orchestra accompaniment are highlights of the 1987-88 theatre season. And subscription tickets now on sale offer patrons a distinctive savings to this distinctive season.

First opening night is October 16 with The Cherry Orchard, a comedy by Anton Chekhov directed by guest artist Yuri Belov. Belov, theatre professor at the North Carolina School of the Arts, had directed at the Moscow State Circus and the Moscow State Stanislavski Theatre. He also has worked in New York where his Clown Conspiracy troupe was critically praised by Anna Kisselgoff and Jack Anderson in The New York Times.

The Cherry Orchard is followed on November 13 by a double bill of Israel Horowitz plays: The Indian Wants the Bronx and It's Called the Sugar Plum. Horowitz is a contemporary playwright popular with urban audiences around the world and his works have brought to public notice such luminaries as Al Pacino, Richard Dreyfuss, Marsha Mason and Jill Clayburgh. His The Primary English Class is Canada's longest running play. He has won Obie, Emmy, French Critics Prize and New York Drama awards as well as the Eliot Norton Prize. The Salisbury double bill is directed by Gerald Patt of the SSC theatre faculty, who knows Horowitz and has worked with his plays in New York.

In March, the SSC Theatre program and the Department of Music collaborate on the rollicking Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, The Pirates of Penzance. With pirates, innocent maids and constables galore, this swashbuckling musical farce promises enough high jinks and high spirits to delight the whole family. Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chairman of the Music Department, will conduct the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra playing the original 1879 score. T. Paul Pfeiffer of the Communication Arts Department is stage director.

In addition theatre subscribers will receive tickets to The Fantasticks, off-Broadway's longest running musical which opens with the now classic, Try to Remember and which is being produced by Sophanes, the student theatre club. An added benefit is two tickets to the Children's Theatre program, which tours

Films on October

The passionate underside of American life is explored in two movies playing in October in the International Film Series.

On Tuesday, October 13, it's A Soldier's Story, directed by Norman Jewison and adapted by Charles Fuller from his own Pulitzer Prize-winning, A Soldier's Play, produced in New York. "This is a splendid, overlooked film," said Jim Welsh, film series organizer and arts critic. In this murder mystery, a black officer played by Howard E. Rollins Jr. is sent from Washington, D.C., to Fort Neal, LA, to investigate the murder of a crusty black sergeant (played by Adolph Caesar) which might have been racially motivated. Herbie Hancock did the jazz score.

On Tuesday, October 20, the screen sizzles with Bob Rafelson's realistic remake of James M. Cain's purposefully sleazy novel about lust, betrayal and murder, The Postman Always Rings Twice. An all-star cast is led by Jack Nicholson, Jessica Lange and Anjelica Huston. David Mamet, who wrote the script for the summer screen hit, The Untouchables, adapted the novel into film.

All screenings in the film series are at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium on campus. Admission is free. For a listing of film series offerings, write the Information Desk, College Center, Salisbury State College, or call 543-NEWS.

Teacher Certification Testing

As of April 1987, 44 states have implemented programs requiring prospective teachers to pass specific examinations before being given certification for teaching. These testing programs are primarily designed to keep unqualified individuals out of the teaching profession. State departments of education seem to be committed to certification tests but have tended, for one reason or another, to establish relatively low passing scores.

To assist prospective teachers in sorting out test requirements, the following information is provided. The Maryland test requirements include the National Teachers Examination (NTE) which costs $90 and is comprised of two tests, Core Battery (communication skills, general knowledge, professional knowledge) and Specialty Area. It should be taken as late in the college career as possible. Information is given during student teaching semester which is when the test should be taken.

Delaware test requirements include the Pre-Professional Skills Tests (PPST). It costs $35 and is comprised of three tests (reading, writing, mathematics). The Department of Public Instruction (DE) recommends that the test be taken as soon as possible after junior status is reached. In this way, retests can be taken, if needed.

Virginia test requirements are the same as Maryland's.

Crossing Intersection Of Route 13, Bateman Street

Everyone who has a need to cross Route 13 at Bateman Street should use the crosswalk provided and the walk light. The walk light can be activated by the button on the pole next to the crosswalk on both sides of Route 13.

Only cross Route 13 when the "Walk" light is on or the "Don't Walk" light is flashing.

Many people have been observed crossing Route 13 at places other than the crosswalk and crossing at the intersection against the light. Both of these situations are dangerous and for your protection you are urged to use the crosswalk in the proper manner.

Annapolis Brass Introduces Season

The Annapolis Brass Quintet returns to Salisbury for the 1987-88 concert series beginning in November. Sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, the ABQ promises an exhilarating musical season of quality brass chamber music.

The season opener, Sunday, November 1, at 8 p.m., at Holloway Hall, revives the collaborative work between the ABQ and the Salisbury Choral Society, conducted by Ray Ziegler of the Music faculty. Members of the SSC Choir and members of the brass section of the Salisbury Symphony will expand the Annapolis Brass and the Choral Society for a special evening of chamber music and choral works.

The second performance of the series ushers in the holiday season on December 15 at 8 p.m. at Trinity United Methodist Church. ABQ will combine the bright sounds of brass with the sacred and secular music of celebration.

On February 23, at 8 p.m., at Trinity Methodist Church, the ABQ will perform an all-Russian concert full of the rich music associated with the Romantic Era of the great Russian composers.

The final concert of the season will take place at Holloway Hall on April 4 at 8 p.m. The ABQ will be joined by "Naked Feet," an innovative modern dance company from Baltimore.

Season subscriptions are now available by calling the Arts Council at 543-ARTS, by stopping by the office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, or by utilizing the ticket outlet service provided by all 11 Peninsula Banks, during regular lobby hours, or the two Salisbury locations of John Hanson Savings Bank. Watercolors Exhibited Persis Wallace will have a one-woman show at the Art Institute and Gallery in Gallery I from September 28 through October 30.

Mrs. Wallace is a graduate of the Chicago Academy of Fine Art and has worked as a commercial artist and as a fashion designer.

Mrs. Wallace made some radical changes in her form of self-expression when she met John Pike, a top watercolorist in the country, and with encouragement attended his school in Woodstock, NY. She considers watercolor to be a more challenging form of art than oil and switched from oil portraits to watercolor landscapes. She is always interested in becoming a better artist and has gone with Pike and other famous artists on about 15 separate European trips where they spent entire days on location painting and evenings critiquing each other's work.

Mrs. Wallace has had numerous one-person, juried and invitational shows. Her paintings hang in private and gallery collections in the United States and Europe. Most of her work is done from sketches made on location, sometimes doing several of one subject, then painting the final work in her studio.

She is a member of the Eastern Shore Art League, The Wine and Watercolor Society, Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury, Southern Vermont Art Association, and the Salmagundi Club, the oldest Art Club in America.

The public and members of AIG are invited to this show and the "Wildlife" Exhibit in Gallery II and to visit Monet's Corner Gift Shop.

The Art Institute is located at Route 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane in downtown Salisbury. It is open Monday through Saturday from noon to 4 p.m. Telephone 546-4748 for details.

Honors Convocation Committee Seeks Nominees

The Honors Convocation Committee requests nominations for three awards, Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who.

Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his/her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a letter of recommendation on his/her behalf.

Be sure to nominate early so there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of November 13.

Names of students being nominated are due in the Dean of Student's Office no later than November 2.

The Achievement Key is awarded by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.25 academic average for each of two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive the award up to four times. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any participant of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award. Graduate students are not eligible to receive this award.

The Campus Life Award is granted by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.0 cumulative average. The award is limited to not more than one percent of the full-time student body. Graduate students are not eligible to receive the award. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the College and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Nomination forms are available from the Dean of Students Office, HH 243.

Sea Gull Club Expands

The Sea Gull Club, a community social organization in its 15th year of operation which has raised over $100,000 for SSC since its inception, is expanding its types of membership.

This year, in addition to the social membership, booster memberships and corporate sponsorships are being offered.

The social membership, featuring six cocktail parties and two dinners plus free season tickets to all home football and basketball games, is $135 for a couple and $85 for an individual member.

The booster membership, establishing the official booster club for athletics at SSC, includes one season ticket to all home football and basketball games, a certificate of recognition and a bumper sticker for $50 per person.

The corporate sponsorship provides a plaque to be displayed in the sponsor's place of business for $200.

The funds from the booster membership and corporate sponsorship will go into a central fund to be administered by the College for the enhancement of intercollegiate athletics. Additionally, two fund-raising functions will be held each year, the first planned for spring 1988, which will directly benefit athletics at SSC.

"We believe this expansion of the Sea Gull Club's membership opportunities will allow us to more effectively support our fine student-athletes and fulfill the other goals that the Sea Gull Club has maintained over the past 14 years," said A. James Smith, president of the club.

For membership applications call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

'The Cherry Orchard' Cast Prepares for Premiere

"Never will I write (again for the theatre)... not if I live to be 700 years old," Russian dramatist Anton Chekhov lamented to a friend in 1896.

That year a St. Petersburg troupe had presented Chekhov's The Sea Gull and the author had walked out of the performance in embarrassment. Many of the actors had not bothered to learn their lines and no one connected with the play seemed to have any idea of how to cope with its radically different dramatic approach.

Fortunately, the Moscow Art Theatre (MAT), co-founded by the great director and teacher, Constantin Stanislavski, persuaded Chekhov to let it do the play and its production became theatrical history. Chekhov's greatest works would premier on the MAT stage, including his masterpiece and final comedy, The Cherry Orchard, now in rehearsal at the College. Through MAT, Chekhov became a major influence on world theatre, affecting playwrights as diverse as Tennessee Williams and Neil Simon.

In the past few weeks, SSC students and faculty, along with local residents, have been working under artist in residence, Yuri Belov, to bring to life what theatre historian Oscar Brockett called one of the most demanding and complex plays of the modern repertory. Belov is uniquely qualified to do so. A professor at the North Carolina School of the Arts, he is a former director of the Moscow State Circus and the Moscow State Stanislavski Theatre, among others. He emigrated with his family from the Soviet Union six years ago and his shows in New York have been favorably reviewed in The New York Times. At a recent rehearsal, one of the actors, Martha Hutchins, could be heard praising Belov despite a tense four-hour session. "Isn't he incredible?" she whispered (she'd lost her voice after a day of teaching fourth graders). Somewhat bleary-eyed (it was after 11 p.m. on Friday), she nevertheless sounded excited and awed by what she had seen and done, in spite of fatigue.

A survey of other cast members garnered comments like: "This play has opened my understanding of the theatre and of analyzing a script."

"Although it's difficult, he has advanced my acting skills 100 percent in the right direction. I feel lucky to be working with him."

"Yuri is the most interesting and spellbinding director that I have worked under, and acting under his direction is an experience."

Chekhov plays are among the most difficult to act because "the action is muted," wrote Brockett. "Since the characters, like most human beings, do not fully understand their own feelings and motives and since they seek to conceal as much as to reveal emotions, it is in the seeming trivia, the nuances, the subtext that underlies the dialogue" that one finds dramatic meaning.

"Don't judge the characters by what they say, but by what they do," Belov advised. By so doing, The Cherry Orchard becomes less an elegy to a dying way of life (a family estate in turn of the century Russia is on the verge of being auctioned to pay off debts) and instead, becomes a comedy, as Chekhov originally defined the script.

Leading the cast is Mary Stames as Madame Ranevskaya, a profligate landowner. Stames recently appeared in On Golden Pond for the Salisbury Community Players. At SSC she appeared in The Hot L Baltimore. T. Paul Pfeiffer, on the SSC Communication Arts faculty, plays Gayev, her inept brother. Pfeiffer directed Arsenic and Old Lace for the Community Players and SSC's Of Mice and Men earlier this year. Dr. Andrew Hepburn, who heads the SSC Theatre program, plays Lopakhin, Ranevskaya's would-be rescuer. Hepburn most recently directed SSC's Cat on a Hot Tin Roof and Antigone.

Hutchins plays the pure Varya, Ranevskaya's adopted daughter. She was Maggie in Cat on a Hot Tin Roof and Dorine in Tartuffe. Geoff Wright of the Communication Arts faculty is Trofimov, a perpetual student. Sheila Hughes plays Carlotta, a governess. Peter Loughrey is Yasha, a young valet, and Cheryl Howard plays a guest in the residence.

Also in the cast are Carreen Koubek, Tim Bowman, Craig Pettinati, Keith de Sales Davis, Steve Wilson, Allen Clark, Charles Daringer, Kristin Franks, Darryl Dillard and Rebecca Jaap.

Set and lighting design are by Gerald Patt.

Costuming is by Pfeiffer.

The Cherry Orchard opens Friday, October 16, at 8 p.m. at Holloway Hall on stage, for six performances. Performances are Friday and Saturday, October 16, 17, 23 and 24, and Thursday, October 22, at 8 p.m. with one matinee on Sunday, October 18, at 2 p.m. Admission is free to SSC students, faculty and staff, but seating is limited. Call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228 for reservations.

Belov's residency is made possible by a joint grant from the Maryland Humanities Council, the Salisbury/Wicomico Arts Council, the Salisbury State Foundation, the College's Department of English, Honor's Program, College Center and Theatre program, and a generous gift by Salisbury attorney, Arthur D. Webster.

Alcohol Awareness Week, October 19-25

President Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, officially proclaimed October 19-25 as Alcohol Awareness Week here.

The declaration coincides with National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week (NCAAW), a nationwide effort sponsored by the Inter-Association Task Force, which represents all college personnel staffs across the country.

Alcohol Awareness week is intended to make alcohol education and information available for students, to emphasize prevention through education as a viable means of helping, to solve problems associated with alcohol misuse and abuse, and to increase awareness of the individual as the one ultimately responsible decision making regarding alcohol, but to emphasize that it is ultimately an individual's responsibility to make those decisions," said Dr. Bellavance. "We must begin to realize that only a personal commitment to making responsible decisions regarding alcohol will make an impact on the problems associated with its misuse and abuse."

Alcohol Awareness Week will include various displays and activities across campus, all aimed at promoting prevention of abuse through education and individual responsibility in the use of alcohol.

Outward Bound To Celebrate Reunion

In the early days of World War II as German U-Boats played havoc with the British navy, many young English seamen were dying, not only from the attacks, but afterwards, from exposure. To help the men learn to survive in rafts or in the water, they were given "survivalist" training to find what they needed to live from the elements, and themselves.

More than four decades later, this program has gone beyond teaching a survivalist existence to become an international human potential movement known as Outward Bound.

On Sunday, October 18, from 7:30 to 9 p.m., Outward Bound alumni from Salisbury State College will gather in the Social Room of Holloway Hall to celebrate a reunion. Members of the community with questions about Outward Bound programs are invited to attend.

In the last two years as Salisbury students, faculty and staff have participated in Outward Bound programs, some 100 people from the College have gone on its wilderness trips, mostly at Hurricane Island, ME. The experiences there promote self-confidence, trust in others and oneself, and exploration of human potential through a confrontation of rugged nature challenges, both physical and psychological.

Students from SSC's award-winning Freshman Orientation in the Wilderness and Outward Bound Scholarships Available

The College has been notified that two scholarship programs are now available to its students for Outward Bound courses sponsored by the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School (HIOBS).

Mrs. Kathleen Markey-Perdue has awarded a gift for two scholarships, for a female and for a male SSC student. These awards may be used for any 22-day course in the HIOBS system or for a shorter HIOBS course of the students' choosing. If shorter courses are selected then three scholarship awards are possible. Full-time student status and intent to "maximize potential" will be considerations for awarding these scholarships.

Also, monies from the HIOBS "Garrett Fund" are now available. The terms of this trust require that applicants be deserving students, 19 years of age or younger, preferably from the Baltimore area, but definitely from Maryland. Financial need, full-time status and intent to "maximize potential" are also considerations for successful selection. Successful applicants will need to provide approximately one-third of the course costs.

To be considered for one of these scholarships the student must complete an application form available from the Dean of Students Office, 243 Holloway Hall. Students may nominate themselves or be nominated by faculty/staff. The deadline for receiving completed applications is November 23. A general interest meeting for interested applicants will be held Sunday, October 18, from 7:30-9:00 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Social Room. HIOBS staff will be present along with College staff and student alumni of Outward Bound courses.

Outward Bound conjures up many images including rugged outdoor challenges, hard physical work, and close cooperation with people who days before were complete strangers. It teaches awareness of self and environment and stresses service as a key, value-forming experience. The Outward Bound philosophy "to strive, to serve and not to yield" is demonstrated through programs where participants learn respect for self and from this respect for self flows compassion and concern for others.

Teacher Certification Testing

As of April 1987, 44 states have implemented programs requiring prospective teachers to pass specific examinations before being given certification for teaching. These testing programs are primarily designed to keep unqualified individuals out of the teaching profession. State departments of education seem to be committed to certification tests but have tended, for one reason or another, to establish relatively low passing scores.

To assist prospective teachers in sorting out test requirements, the following information is provided. The Maryland test requirements include the National Teachers Examination (NTE) which costs $90 and is comprised of two tests, Core Battery (communication skills, general knowledge, professional knowledge) and Specialty Area. It should be taken as late in the college career as possible. Information is given during student teaching semester which is when the test should be taken.

Delaware test requirements include the Pre-Professional Skills Tests (PPST). It costs $35 and is comprised of three tests (reading, writing, mathematics). The Department of Public Instruction (DE) recommends that the test be taken as soon as possible after junior status is reached. In this way, retests can be taken, if needed.

Virginia test requirements are the same as Maryland's.

Crossing Intersection Of Route 13, Bateman Street

Everyone who has a need to cross Route 13 at Bateman Street should use the crosswalk provided and the walk light. The walk light can be activated by the button on the pole next to the crosswalk on both sides of Route 13.

Only cross Route 13 when the "Walk" light is on or the "Don't Walk" light is flashing.

Many people have been observed crossing Route 13 at places other than the crosswalk and crossing at the intersection against the light. Both of these situations are dangerous and for your protection you are urged to use the crosswalk in the proper manner.

United Charities Campaign To Begin

Pledge cards will be included with full-time faculty/staff payroll checks for a voluntary contribution to the 1987 United Charities Campaign on Wednesday, October 14. Prior to this date a brochure which lists all participating agencies will be mailed to all faculty/staff. This agency listing is helpful if you wish to designate a specific agency to receive your contribution or if you require the services of one of the agencies.

This year as an incentive for you to support this important campaign, the SSC Foundation has donated a Video Cassette Recorder (VCR) which you will be eligible to win if you give at least $1.50 per pay period. If you wish to see the VCR, it is located in HH room 202. The campaign ends Wednesday, October 28. The drawing for the VCR takes place Monday, November 2; the winner will be contacted immediately.

While considering whether or not you wish to contribute, please bear in mind that the agencies which receive funds from United Way Charities depend on your generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you. Be as generous as you can.

Campaign coordinators at the College this year are Dee Hedrick (543-6060) and Gains Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them if you have any questions.

AIDS Lecture

Dr. James I. Slaff, former medical investigator at the National Institutes of Health, makes a presentation based on his book, The AIDS Epidemic, How You Can Protect Yourself and Your Family—Why You Must, on Monday, October 19, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board, Health Center and School of Science, the program is $3 per person for the general public.

Slaff graduated from Yale University in 1975 and the University of Virginia Medical School in 1979. He received his post-graduate training in Internal Medicine and gastroenterology at the University of Florida. He was a medical investigator at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, MD, when The AIDS Epidemic was published in December 1985.

The AIDS Epidemic has been endorsed by The New York Times and the American Red Cross, and has sold more copies than any other book on this subject. He has presented AIDS research, conducted in the laboratory of Dr. Robert Gallo, at the National Cancer Institute to a national scientific meeting.

Slaff has made many national radio and television appearances to articulate the public health agenda detailed in the book. In addition, he has served on an American Legal Institute panel, American Bar Association faculty panel, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners Advisory panel on AIDS and is a new scientific advisor to the National AIDS Prevention Institute.

Most recently, Slaff delivered the annual Albert H. Lucas Lecture at the St. Albans School in Washington, D.C. He has a unique overview of the many complex issues created by the AIDS epidemic. The program provides the facts, the latest findings and practical, personal steps one can take to safeguard oneself and one's loved ones.

Slaff has recently returned to Florida, where he continues to pursue AIDS related research in preparation for a revision of The AIDS Epidemic.

Celebrate Oktoberfest October 28

Sausage, sauerkraut, strudel and sponges mark the tenth student Oktoberfest, to be celebrated on the campus Wednesday, October 28, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Sponsored by the German Club in cooperation with the Modern Languages Department, the party will be held under a tent pitched between the Ruth Powell Dining Hall and the College Center.

Oktoberfest originated in Munich, Germany, according to club advisor Klaudia Thompson, celebrating the end of harvest. Traditionally, the 10 day festival is also noteworthy for its consumption of beer. At the SSC celebration there will be near beer, soft drinks and a lunch of German sausage and potato salad, sauerkraut and rolls. Aided by German cookbooks, students are making pastries including strudel, ginger bread and chocolate cakes to sell.

While umpah music is playing, students also get a chance to take out mid-term frustrations in the sponge throw. A faculty member (usually Mrs. Thompson's husband, Ray, who teaches History) volunteers to stick his head through a wooden cutout of an alpine figure, and students may throw sponges soaked with whipped cream at him. "This year it might just be water instead of whipped cream" said Mrs. Thompson; the cream is difficult for husband to wash out of his hair and beard.

Festival-goers also will have the chance to play other carnival games such as darts and ring toss, as well as test language skills in word games. SSC students have been celebrating Oktoberfest for a decade, with attendance as high as 200-300 depending on the weather, Mrs. Thompson said.

A "surprisingly large" segment of the local Shore population has German roots," she added, and the public is invited to celebrate Oktoberfest with the students.

Campus Organizations Invited to Participate In O.C. Parade

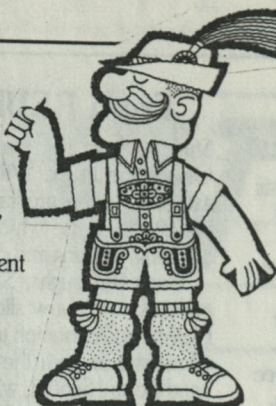

SSC campus organizations are invited to participate in the 5th Annual Ocean City Christmas Parade, sponsored by the Gold Coast Mall, Saturday, December 5.

This parade has grown from its infancy into one of the largest parades on the Shore. Last year, over 80 groups participated, which was witnessed by about 2,500 people. This year, 100 groups are expected.

Prizes have been expanded and first, second and third place trophies will be presented in the following categories: school bands, non-commercial floats, school floats, commercial floats, antique vehicles, fire companies, horse units and marching units. This year, a professional photographer will video tape the parade with cassettes available at reasonable prices.

The parade begins at 11 a.m. and proceeds from 93rd to the Gold Coast Mall at 115th St. Groups wishing to participate in another parade later in the day will be placed at the front of the O.C. parade to enable them to pass the judges stand in front of the mall prior to noon. Please advise organizers of your intent to participate in this year's parade by contacting Jim Whittemore, Gold Coast Mall, 11523A Coastal Hwy., Ocean City, MD 21842, or calling 524-3000.

There is no entrance fee for non-commercial participants.

Sports Update

For the College athletic teams, the week past provided a great deal of success, and still a lot of heartbreak. The football team won its game, while the field hockey, soccer and volleyball teams each only dropped one contest. The field hockey team also knocked off two other opponents, the volleyball team four and the soccer team managed a tie.

The soccer team started the week off on Tuesday by being tied by Washington College, 2-2, despite dominating the entire contest, outshooting Washington 39-3. The Gulls got both scores off of the foot of Tony D'Antonio.

On Wednesday, the field hockey team got its sixth shutout of the year from goalie Tracey Short, two goals from Glenda Lowe and a score on a penalty stroke from Terri Buyse to upset fifth-ranked Shippensburg University, 3-0.

On Friday, it was the football team's turn to knock off a ranked team, as the Gulls traveled to Glassboro, and beat the 18th-ranked Profs, 20-15, on the strength of three interceptions and a stingy defense that gave up less than 100 yards on the ground. The Gulls got first half touchdowns from Keith Rawlings on a 22-yard interception return and Frank Oliver, on a play that changed the momentum for the entire game, a one-yard run with one second left on the clock in the first half, to give the Gulls a 13-9 lead. The Gulls scored their other seven points on a 30-yard scoring strike from Kevin White to Mike DiLeonardo.

For the Sea Gulls volleyball team, its success started on Friday and continued until Saturday. For the first time in Gull volleyball, the Gulls went through an entire tournament, to the finals, without losing a match. On Friday, the Gulls beat Goucher, 15-11 and 15-11 and Shenandoah, 15-7 and 15-3. On Saturday, behind strong performances of Debbie Gibbens, Amy Geppi and the comeback of Brenda Bowlin, the Gulls rolled against Shepherd, 15-4, 12-15 and 15-5, and then trounced host Washington College, 15-11, 15-7. In the finals, however, after winning the first game 15-10, the Gulls dropped the last two, 15-9 and 16-14.

Also on Saturday, the soccer team dropped a tough ESAC match 3-2 at Spring Garden, while the field hockey team traveled to upstate New York for a weekend set against 12th-ranked Cortland and 8th-ranked Ithaca, on Sunday.

On Saturday, in field hockey the Gulls got goals from Buyse and Debe Clarke and a 20-save performance from Short to beat Cortland 2-1. On Sunday, however, despite a 19-save outing from Short, the Gulls managed only a single score from Theresa Dorando and lost, 2-1.

Dailey at Kiwanis

Any civic, service or educational organization desiring a speaker should contact the SSC Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Honors Convocation Committee Seeks Nominees

The Honors Convocation Committee requests nominations for three awards, Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who.

Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his/her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a letter of recommendation on his/her behalf.

Be sure to nominate early so there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of November 13.

Names of students being nominated are due in the Dean of Student's Office no later than November 2.

The Achievement Key is awarded by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.25 academic average for each of two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive the award up to four times. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any participant of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award. Graduate students are not eligible to receive this award.

The Campus Life Award is granted by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.0 cumulative average. The award is limited to not more than one percent of the full-time student body. Graduate students are not eligible to receive the award. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, service to the College and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Nomination forms are available from the Dean of Students Office, HH 243.

Eight new people join the administrative staff this year. "They're young professionals with academic credentials and we have great expectations for them," said Joseph K. Gilbert, vice president of Administration. "The challenge for the professional staff is to support the primary function of the institution which is to promote learning. We feel fortunate to have such quality people join us."

The eight bring a variety of experiences to their positions:

Joseph Andrade III is a counselor in Counseling Services. He earned his M.S. from California State University, Sacramento where he worked with the developmental and social issues of minority students in community and college counseling.

John Arford is assistant director of Physical Plant. A graduate of the University of Maryland, College Park, he worked on the construction of the Baltimore Metro Subway and was resident engineer for the Maryland State Department of Agriculture and the Maryland State Archives.

Richard W. Culver, a Salisbury State alumnus, has been named assistant director of Public Relations. A former Daily Times reporter with an M.F.A. from Wayne State University, Detroit, he has a background in management and promotion at the University of Michigan's Professional Theatre Program and with the Broadway Lena Company in New York.

The campus Food Services and Catering Department has two new assistant directors. Betsy Gow was assistant director of Food Services at Lebanon Valley College and York College, PA. Michael Ruane was food service manager for the Augustana College, IL, College Center and held management positions with the Saratoga Springs, NY, State Park Service, the Indianapolis Exposition and Convention Center as well as operating his own restaurant in Hillsdale, IL. He has his B.A. from Michigan State University.

Karen Kimpton has been named assistant director of Programs for the College Center. While a graduate student at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln where she earned her Master of Education degree, she advised the programming board and served as a consultant to student organizations.

Teacher Certification Testing

As of April 1987, 44 states have implemented programs requiring prospective teachers to pass specific examinations before being given certification for teaching. These testing programs are primarily designed to keep unqualified individuals out of the teaching profession. State departments of education seem to be committed to certification tests but have tended, for one reason or another, to establish relatively low passing scores.

To assist prospective teachers in sorting out test requirements, the following information is provided. The Maryland test requirements include the National Teachers Examination (NTE) which costs $90 and is comprised of two tests, Core Battery (communication skills, general knowledge, professional knowledge) and Specialty Area. It should be taken as late in the college career as possible. Information is given during student teaching semester which is when the test should be taken.

Delaware test requirements include the Pre-Professional Skills Tests (PPST). It costs $35 and is comprised of three tests (reading, writing, mathematics). The Department of Public Instruction (DE) recommends that the test be taken as soon as possible after junior status is reached. In this way, retests can be taken, if needed.

Virginia test requirements are the same as Maryland's.

Crossing Intersection Of Route 13, Bateman Street

Everyone who has a need to cross Route 13 at Bateman Street should use the crosswalk provided and the walk light. The walk light can be activated by the button on the pole next to the crosswalk on both sides of Route 13.

Only cross Route 13 when the "Walk" light is on or the "Don't Walk" light is flashing.

Many people have been observed crossing Route 13 at places other than the crosswalk and crossing at the intersection against the light. Both of these situations are dangerous and for your protection you are urged to use the crosswalk in the proper manner.

Honors Convocation Committee Seeks Nominees

The Honors Convocation Committee requests nominations for three awards, Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who.

Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his/her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a letter of recommendation on his/her behalf.

Be sure to nominate early so there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of November 13.

Nominees of students being nominated are due in the Dean of Student's Office no later than November 2.

The Achievement Key is awarded by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.25 academic average for each of two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive the award up to four times. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any participant of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award. Graduate students are not eligible to receive this award.

The Campus Life Award is granted by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.0 cumulative average. The award is limited to not more than one percent of the full-time student body. Graduate students are not eligible to receive the award. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the College and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

United Charities Campaign Underway

Pledge cards were included with full-time faculty/staff payroll checks for a voluntary contribution to the 1987

United Charities Campaign on Wednesday, October 14. Prior to this date a brochure which lists all participating agencies was mailed to all faculty/staff. This agency listing is helpful if you wish to designate a specific agency to receive your contribution or if you require the services of one of the agencies.

This year as an incentive for you to support this important campaign, the SSC Foundation has donated a Video Cassette Recorder (VCR) which you will be eligible to win if you give at least $1.50 per pay period. If you wish to see the VCR, it is located in HH room 202. The campaign ends Wednesday, October 28. The drawing for the VCR takes place Monday, November 2; the winner will be contacted immediately.

While considering whether or not you wish to contribute, please bear in mind that the agencies which receive funds from United Way Charities depend on your generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you. Be as generous as you can.

50 Year Reunion Held

It was September 1937 50 years ago when Salisbury State Teachers College welcomed a freshman class of almost 100, large for those days - the end of the Depression era, the eve of World War II and the 150th year of the Constitution.

About 30 of those 1937 freshman got together at a dinner in the Ruth Powell dining room on Saturday, September 19, to renew acquaintances and to reminisce on what their SSC experience meant in their lives.

Thirty-two of those incoming freshmen graduated as elementary school teachers in 1941 and were "grabbed up" by County superintendents to fill teaching slots as WW II began. Some very soon left teaching to join the armed forces or to be "war birds"; others had long and distinguished careers in education.

Many of the incoming freshmen transferred to other institutions and later followed careers in law, business, nursing, engineering and other fields. Some, not continuing into higher education, turned to other endeavors and have made remarkable contributions.

All agreed that their time at SSC had made a great difference in their lives. In 1937 it was very difficult for the average Eastern Shore young person to go to college but SSC and Dr. J.D. Blackwell's active recruiting made the impossible dream come true for many.

It was a different world: formal program dances; "beau corners" in the Social Room; 9:45 p.m. curfew for dorm girls; hazing for freshmen boys.

This "special" reunion began as the dream of Paul Phillips. He laid the groundwork and the arrangements were largely made by Catharine and Goldy Tyler with the able cooperation of Judy Pielemeier, executive director of the SSC Alumni Association. Hamilton Fox who had served as president of the 1937 class acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Special guests for the evening were Margaret Black, former music instructor at the College, Benn Maggs longtime physical educator and coach, Dr. Wade Caruthers, president of the Alumni Association, and Dr. Bellavance.

Two long distance attendees at the reunion were Phoebe Nock Perry and Reverend Edward Dougherty, who offered the grace for the evening, both from Florida.

O'Loughlin Speaks at Chesapeake CC

Dr. Michael O'Loughlin of the Political Science Department spoke at Chesapeake Community College, Thursday, October 15, on the place of the Vice Presidency in the Constitution.

O'Loughlin examined the question of the Vice Presidency's Constitutional authority as originally understood and whether or not that authority has changed. Then he discussed whether the office of the Vice President should be abolished.

Theater Trip to Arena

On Tuesday, November 3, the English and Communication Arts Departments will co-sponsor a theater trip to Arena Stage in Washington, D.C., to see August Wilson's Joe Turner's Come and Gone. In this production by the Yale Repertory Theatre, the Tony Award-winning playwright Wilson gives a poetic, mystical account of black life in a Pittsburgh boardinghouse in 1911.

Ticket price includes bus transportation; the bus will depart from Maggs Gym circle at 2:30 p.m. and will return immediately after the play.

Celebrate Oktoberfest October 28

Sausage, sauerkraut, strudel and sponges mark the tenth student Oktoberfest, to be celebrated on campus Wednesday, October 28, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Sponsored by the German Club in cooperation with the Modern Languages Department, the party will be held under a tent pitched between the Ruth Powell Dining Hall and the College Center.

Oktoberfest originated in Munich, Germany, according to club advisor Klaudia Thompson, and celebrated the end of harvest. Traditionally, the 10 day festival is also noteworthy for its consumption of beer. At the SSC celebration there will be near beer, soft drinks and a lunch of German sausage and potato salad, sauerkraut and rolls. Aided by German cookbooks, students are making pastries including strudel, ginger bread and chocolate cakes to sell as well.

While ummah music is playing, students also get a chance to take out mid-term frustrations in the sponge throw. A faculty member (usually Mrs. Thompson's husband, Ray, who teaches History) volunteers to stick his head through a wooden cutout of an alpine figure, and students may throw sponges soaked with whipped cream at him. "This year it might only be water instead of whipped cream, however" said Mrs. Thompson; the cream is difficult for husband to wash out of his hair and beard.

Festival-goers also will have the chance to play other carnival games such as darts and ring toss, and test language skills in word games. SSC students have been celebrating Oktoberfest for a decade, with attendance as high as 200-300 depending on the weather, Mrs. Thompson said.

A "surprisingly large" segment of the local Shore population has German roots," she added, and the public is invited to celebrate Oktoberfest with the students.

University of Maryland Graduate School Recruiter

A recruiter from the University of Maryland School of Social Work and Community Planning will be on campus during the afternoon of Monday, October 26.

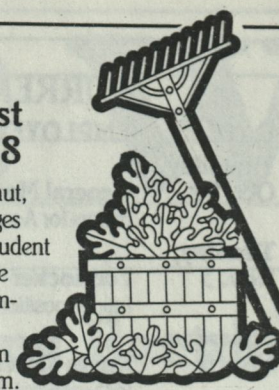

Mrs. Nancy Wilson, the coordinator of the Eastern Shore Program, will be available to answer questions about her program and about the School in Baltimore. She will be available for individual and small group conferences from 12:30 - 2:15 p.m. at the Social Work Department office on the third floor of Holloway Hall.

At 2:20 p.m. she will make a presentation to Dr. Brennen Taylor's class in Caruthers Hall, room 109. That presentation is open to all students.

The University has changed the rules about advanced standing, and it is important that students attend.

Decker Published

Dr. Wayne H. Decker, associate professor in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, has published an article titled, "Attributions Based on Managers' Self-Presentation, Sex, and Weight." The article appears in Psychological Reports.

Jones & Murray Attend Meetings in New Orleans

Drs. Thomas Jones and Laura Murray of the Department of Biological Sciences will be presenting the results of some of their research activities at the Estuarine Research Federation meetings in New Orleans, LA during the week of October 26.

The Estuarine Research Federation is an international organization that meets once every two years for the exchange of information concerning the worlds estuaries. Estuaries are bodies of water where fresh water from land runoff meets salt water from the oceans.

The title of Dr. Murray's talk is "Light Relations for the Seagrass, Thalassia testudinum and Its Epiphytic Algae in a Tropical Lagoon." The data for this talk was collected by Murray during several of her trips to a tropical lagoon near the Yucatan peninsula in Mexico.

The title of Jones' talk is "Carbon Metabolism in Estuarine Phytoplankton: Regulation of Photosynthetic Fixation Patterns." In this paper Jones reports on his work on Chesapeake Bay phytoplankton (microscopic aquatic algae) and how the estuarine environment influences their photosynthetic physiology.

In addition to presenting the paper, Jones is a co-author on another paper that is being presented at the meeting entitled "Feeding by the American Oyster and Its Possible Consequences on Turbidity in Chesapeake Bay"; he is also a convener for one of the day-long sessions at the meetings.

Townsend Presents Workshop on Reading

Dr. Barbara A. Townsend, associate professor of Education, presented a three-hour workshop for The Sussex County Organization for Reading Excellence on October 14 at Delaware Technical and Community College in Georgetown, DE.

The workshop dealt with ideas for using children's literature in the public elementary schools. Delaware teachers who attended received in-service credit.

Ideas for incorporating poetry into the school day, making flannel board and magnetic board stories, and using stories for the coming holidays were presented. During the meeting teachers constructed a mini-diorama to accompany Petunia by Roger Duvoisin.

Townsend has been a member of the School of Education for 14 years. She teaches Communication Arts Methods, Children's Literature and Adolescent Literature.

Human Volunteers Committee

The Human Volunteers Committee has scheduled meetings for Friday, November 6, and Friday, December 11, for consideration of research protocols involving human subjects.

If at all possible, the Committee would like the forms submitted by Friday, October 30, for the November 6 meeting and Friday, November 20, for the December 11 meeting. Expedited reviews can be done without full committee approval and can usually be acted on within a few days.

To qualify for expedited review the research must carry minimal or no risk to the subject, contain no way of linking subjects' names to the research and not ask sensitive questions about the subjects' behavior. Faculty researchers and advisors are requested to plan ahead adequately for committee consideration. If you have any questions, contact either Fran Kane, 543-6429, or Karin Johnson, 543-6412.

Homecoming Reunions Set

They are coming from three areas of the United States, far apart from one another. They graduated from Salisbury State College five, fifteen and twenty-five years ago, respectively. Yet, this weekend, all three will be coming back to Salisbury.

Even though they graduated years apart, and grew up with different ideas, each agrees that Salisbury State College was "a great place to be."

That feeling was expressed by Jerry Wilson, who graduated from SSC in 1962. Wilson now lives in Chattahoochee, GA, about 20 miles north of Spokane, where he has lived for 14 years. He is the superintendent of the Riverside School District and manages to come back to Salisbury about every five years.

Which is about how long Hazel Berman has been out of college. Berman graduated in 1982 and now works for Electronic Data Systems near her home in Cedar Park, TX, just outside of Austin.

Graduating in between Wilson and Berman, in 1972, was Sue Hess. Hess moved to Norcross, GA, a northeast suburb of Atlanta, in 1974, where she is selling residential real estate.

Times have changed since Hess graduated. "The most dramatic change that I remember in my four years at SSC was that when I got there girls were not allowed to wear slacks on campus and we had a 10 p.m. curfew," said Hess. "By the time I graduated there were co-ed dorms."

On the other hand, Wilson expects to see more of a physical change in the campus. In his previous return trips, he has already seen a great deal of change. "There has been so much that has changed in my last two trips. The school has jumped from a real small college to almost a university," said Wilson who played soccer and basketball and can remember when basketball was played in what is now Holloway Hall, before moving to Tawes Gym. Wilson also remembers the "close-knit group of people. The friends that I am looking forward to seeing that I haven't seen in 20 to 25 years."

Hess echoes Wilson's sentiments, 10 years later. "I expect to see new buildings as well as looking forward to seeing the size of the student body. When Hess started classes at SSC, there were 800 students. By the time she graduated, the size of the student body had almost tripled to 2,000."

"I had a lot of good friends who I am looking forward to seeing. Friends that I haven't seen in 10 years," added Hess.

For Berman it hasn't been 10 or 20 years since she last saw her college chums. Yet, she is looking forward to seeing them, just the same.

"Having a lot of people come back makes it all worthwhile," said Berman, who worked on The Flyer, the College newspaper, for two years, and was its editor during her senior year. She was also a member of the Business-Economic Society and participated in the Student Government Association.

Berman expects to find "the same old town that used to be there, which is one of the reasons I chose Salisbury—a small friendly town that was close to the ocean."

And I have no regrets about choosing Salisbury at all," said Hazel. "If I had the opportunity, I probably would not change anything. They were four of the best years I ever had."

And even though 20 years had passed between the time that Jerry Wilson graduated and Hazel Berman graduated, his recollections of his college days are no less vivid, and pleasant.

"I had no complaints at all," said Wilson, "at the time I was in school or now. There is not one particular moment that sticks out. All of my time there was enjoyable."

And Sue Hess, who graduated between Wilson and Berman, has similar fond memories. "There was the exposure to other people from different backgrounds. I had great friends and I wouldn't have done anything differently."

Berman sums up the anticipation of Homecoming for all three. "I'm looking forward to it. To seeing the campus and all of my friends that I haven't seen in a while. I am counting the days."

Horovitz Double Bill Opens November 13

A double-bill of powerful, award-winning plays by Israel Horovitz exploring the corrosive nature of contemporary life open Friday, November 13, at Holloway Hall on stage.

The Indian Wants the Bronx and It's Called the Sugar Plum, winners of the Obie and Vernon Rice Awards for 1968, will play for six performances at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, November 13 and 14, and Thursday through Saturday, November 18-20, with a matinee at 2 p.m. on Sunday, November 15. Admission is free to SSC students, faculty and staff.

The Indian Wants the Bronx, about the mindless cruelty of two teenage punks towards a helpless East Indian who gets lost on his first day in New York City, earned its author unqualified critical praise. "The best off-broadway play of the season," the Village Voice said. "Superbly written . . . it is unquestionably the best American short play since Albee's The Zoo Story," said critic Stewart H. Benedict. In the SSC premiere, Paul Lewis and Craig Pettinatti play the young thugs; Darryl Dillard is the East Indian.

It's Called the Sugar Plum is a funny and perceptive play detailing the progressively more cordial relationship between a college girl whose boyfriend had been accidentally run down and killed while riding his skateboard, and the young driver whom she visits to confront with his guilt. "Israel Horovitz is a playwright of unmistakable talent and the possessor of two of the most necessary qualities for stage writing—word sense and dramatic flair," said critic Martin Gottfried. " . . . remember the playwright's name. . . . I think we will be hearing it again," wrote Clive Barnes in The New York Times. In the SSC production, Laura Foran and Sean Thomas play the young college couple.

Horovitz has written more than 50 plays which have been translated and produced in more than 20 languages worldwide. Popular with urban and university audiences, his works have brought to public notice such luminaries as Al Pacino, Richard Dreyfuss, Marsha Mason and Jill Clayburgh. His The Primary English Class is Canada's longest running play. He also has garnered the American Academy of Arts and Letters Award, the Eliot Norton Prize, the NY Drama Award, the French Critics Prize as well as television's Emmy Award.

Directing the SSC double bill is Gerald Patt, who also is designing sets and lights. Costumes are by Paul Pleiffer. Poster design is by Steve Corbett.

For information and reservations contact the Salisbury State College Theatre Box Office 543-6228.

Honors Convocation Committee Seeks Nominees

The Honors Convocation Committee requests nominations for three awards, Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who.

Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his/her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a letter of recommendation on his/her behalf.

Be sure to nominate early so there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of November 13.

Names of students being nominated are due in the Dean of Student's Office no later than November 2.

The Achievement Key is awarded by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.25 academic average for each of two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive the award up to four times. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any participant of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award. Graduate students are not eligible to receive this award.

The Campus Life Award is granted by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.0 cumulative average. The award is limited to not more than one percent of the full-time student body. Graduate students are not eligible to receive the award. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, service to the College and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Nomination forms are available from the Dean of Students Office, HH 243.

During off hours, December grads can also sign up at the switchboard in Holloway Hall. All participants must sign up no later than Friday, October 30.

For more information, contact the Dean of Students office at 543-6080 or Chris Peach at 5543-6513.

Teacher Certification Testing

As of April 1987, 44 states have implemented programs requiring prospective teachers to pass specific examinations before being given certification for teaching. These testing programs are primarily designed to keep unqualified individuals out of the teaching profession. State departments of education seem to be committed to certification tests but have tended, for one reason or another, to establish relatively low passing scores.

To assist prospective teachers in sorting out test requirements, the following information is provided. The Maryland test requirements include the National Teachers Examination (NTE) which costs $90 and is comprised of two tests, Core Battery (communication skills, general knowledge, professional knowledge) and Specialty Area. It should be taken as late in the college career as possible. Information is given during student teaching semester which is when the test should be taken.

Delaware test requirements include the Pre-Professional Skills Tests (PPST). It costs $35 and is comprised of three tests (reading, writing, mathematics). The Department of Public Instruction (DE) recommends that the test be taken as soon as possible after junior status is reached. In this way, retests can be taken, if needed.

Virginia test requirements are the same as Maryland's.

Crossing Intersection Of Route 13, Bateman Street

Everyone who has a need to cross Route 13 at Bateman Street should use the crosswalk provided and the walk light. The walk light can be activated by the button on the pole next to the crosswalk on both sides of Route 13.

Only cross Route 13 when the "Walk" light is on or the "Don't Walk" light is flashing.

Many people have been observed crossing Route 13 at places other than the crosswalk and crossing at the intersection against the light. Both of these situations are dangerous and for your protection you are urged to use the crosswalk in the proper manner.

It's Delightful, It's Delovely, It's Delobster

In the main room of the Ruth Powell Dining Hall, Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of Food Services, wrapped in a chef's apron with a butcher knife in hand, greeted tray-carrying students as they walked through the dining room door. "Do you know how to eat a whole Maine lobster?" DiSylvestro queried, sounding somewhat like a carnival barker. Lifting a bright red lobster off a tray, he sliced the tail, then cracked the two large claws, pointing out the meat. "I'm from New Hampshire, I know how to eat these things," a co-ed replied. "Don't forget your bib, he reminded her.

In the Salisbury Room across the hall, dining hall student employee Dornell Woolford was also manning a table and between slicing open lobsters, wiping his eyeglasses. "I didn't think they'd be that juicy," he muttered.

Woolford and the rest of the dining hall staff of 85 students and 47 employees had been working for two days getting ready for this once-a-year event. Within about a 90 minute period 1,500 lobsters would be steamed live and rushed in serving trays to three student lines.

"The most difficult part was getting the lobsters into the pots alive, then into the serving pans," said Monte Bradley, Food Service director. Approximately 300 lobsters at a time were cooked for 10 minutes in three 60-gallon steam kettles then transferred to serving pans. "It's a lot of weight—the pots are heavy and hot," he added.

Nearly 2,000 one-pound "chicken" lobsters, ordered from a Boston seafood house, had been packed live the day before the dinner in seaweed and wet newspaper, double-sealed in styrofoam and waxed cardboard boxes with blue ice packs, and shipped by refrigerated truck to Salisbury that morning.

At noontime fresh Maine lobsters could be seen swimming in a 50-gallon tank in the Dining Hall lobby where students entered to eat lunch. "We did that to promote lobster night," DiSylvestro said. It worked.

Students were in line early that evening. "The lines are always very, very long on the special nights," said Dawn Spranger, 20, a junior from Hollywood, MD. "You know, it's got to be extra good if you have to stand in line. As far as the dining hall goes, that was the best meal

Barbara Tippet found her favorite, a mean looking crustacean, who despite his looks was tender and tasty. Lobster Night is one of a series of special dinners held throughout the semester.

I've had there."

Fellow classmate, Barbara Tippet, also from St. Mary's County, agrees. "It was only the second time I had lobster. I liked it. They opened it for you. You didn't have to wait. If they ran out, they brought a fresh batch right out."

For the non-lobster lover, the dining hall also served sauteed chicken breast; for vegetarians, spinach lasagna. Most students took all three along with potatoes au gratin, caesar salad, Italian mixed vegetables and strawberry shortcake. "All our desserts are made from scratch," DiSylvestro said, as well as its soups. "No convenience items. No additives, preservatives nor extenders."

"And not one penny of state money goes to the Food Service," said Bradley. "It's paid for by students and people who use the dining hall."

The University of Maryland, College Park, and Salisbury State are the only two Maryland state colleges which don't contract out their food service. "We're not here to make money," DiSylvestro said, but "we want to treat our students like customers. They're the people who are paying for the service and deserve the best. Fortunately, we have an extremely conscientious, devoted staff, who care about the quality of food and service that students receive. The staff is the key to Food Service's success."

With UMCP, SSC has been a member of the National Association of College and University Food Services (NACUP) for several years. Over 500 public and private colleges and universities are members. SSC staff members have attended the NACUP Leadership Institute, and shared menu ideas which have been imitated at other institutions.

In recent years, Food Service has done everything from providing "Steak Night" where every Sunday evening it serves students a steak dinner, to installing a salad bar, vegetarian entrees, going from a three-week menu cycle to a five-week cycle, increasing different food stock items from an inventory of 850 to 1,275, upgrading dining room furniture, even having fresh flowers on the tables. "We believe in variety in menu, dining selection and seating. We want the dining room to look like a restaurant dining room," said DiSylvestro.

"We need monotony breakers," agreed Bradley. "If you come to the same place three times a day, everything starts to seem the same." To this end, special events like lobster night are important in making dining festive. In December plans are now underway for "the world's largest ice cream sundae, something we're going to concoct," Bradley added.

There's more than entertainment value to these occasions, however. Educators across the country are becoming increasingly concerned with the relationship between nutrition and learning. Recent studies show that poor eating habits can directly affect classroom performance. A good meal can be as important to learning as a good book. This is as true for college adults as for children.

"Nothing can replace mom's cooking," one student said, "but it's the best institutional food I've eaten."

New Computer Lab for a Fast Growing Major

by Mary Corddry

With the computer becoming as much a part of any farming region as the tractor, the College is offering one of the fastest growing majors in the nation—Information Systems Management.

The newly developing Franklin P. Perdue School of Business has brought in a specialist in the field, Dr. Ernst P. Goss. Goss, who previously headed a similar department at the University of Alabama in Huntsville, is teaching a sequence of courses on the uses of computer technology in businesses large and small.

"We are trying to focus on good management services to regional industry," Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of the Perdue School, explained. He said that by spring the business school plans to have a second micro computer lab on the Salisbury campus specifically for the use of the business school.

The new lab, Dr. Mescon said, "will be one of the best computer facilities in the state. Our students will have access to the most up-to-date computer lab in the state college system. We are determined that our students will be prepared for the 21st century."

Goss has been brought in "to develop the whole area," Dr. Mescon said. He headed a similar program "in one of the most hi-tech areas in the United States."

Huntsville is the center of the NASA space program but in Salisbury Goss said that the courses he is developing will relate to "business problems typical of the Eastern Shore."

"Computer technology does not always mean a job in a hi tech industry," he explained. The Eastern Shore's big food processing companies such as Perdue and Campbell Soup have "management level and computer programming opportunities, too."

"There will be more local opportunities as computer technology becomes more pervasive. The opportunities are good now but they will increase," Goss said. He said that about 20 students in the Perdue School of Business are now specializing in Information Systems Management, known as ISM.

In the graduate degree program in the new business school, a large proportion of the students are from Perdue or Campbell's, Goss continued. They possess majors in business or agriculture who have come from universities all over the country to jobs in the Shore's food producing industries.

The computer courses now being taught at the Perdue School of Business are described by Goss as "a blend of computer technology and business" which can prepare students in this region for jobs now being filled by students from out of state.

Students in the business school's ISM track "can handle business applications on micro computers or main frame computers in a range from $1,000 to $6,000 for personal computers or up to $1 million to $6 million for main frame systems."

Goss was attracted to the area, he said, "because the economy is not narrowly focused on any one thing." He described Huntsville, on the other hand, as a town tied to national policy on SDI, or the Strategic Defense Initiative, and therefore less stable.

He finds the area "hospitable and comfortable" and was attracted to Salisbury State's new business school because of its plans for "quality instruction, research and community service. I wanted to be a part of it," he said.

He was also "impressed with the reputation of Tim Mescon."

Mescon, who arrived here only recently to be dean of the Perdue School, said he is "amazed at the economic growth here" and at the aggressiveness of Salisbury's business leaders.

"We can educate our students in a first class manner," he said. "There is a tremendous opportunity here."

Bradley on Constitution

Professor Sylvia Bradley of the History Department recently conducted two sessions of the Maryland Retired Teachers Annual Convention held in Ocean City, Maryland. The title of her address in both sessions was "To Form a More Perfect Union," a discussion of the reasons for calling a Constitutional Convention and Maryland's special role in the writing and ratifying of the Constitution.

Mrs. Bradley teaches Colonial and Revolutionary American History and is co-director of the Delmarva Historical Archives Center at SSC.

Townsend at Del Tech

Dr. Barbara A. Townsend, associate professor of Education, presented a three-hour workshop for the Sussex County Organization for Reading Excellence on October 14 at Delaware Technical and Community College in Georgetown, DE.

The workshop dealt with using children's literature in the public elementary schools. Delaware teachers who attended received in-service credit.

Ideas for incorporating poetry into the school day, making flannel board and magnetic board stories, and using stories for the coming holidays were presented. During the meeting teachers constructed a mini-diorama to accompany Petunia by Roger Duvoisin.

Townsend has been a member of the School of Education for 14 years. She teaches Communication Arts Methods, Children's Literature and Adolescent Literature.

Program Planning For Nursing

Program planning begins Monday, November 9, for all Nursing and Pre-Nursing majors. Faculty advisors are requesting that students not phone the School of Nursing for appointments. All advisors will post a schedule of appointments on their office doors in the Hall Educational Center, located on the corner of Locust Street and Waverly Drive.

Epilepsy Association Annual Membership Meeting

The Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore (EAES) will hold its Annual Membership Meeting at the Salisbury Sheraton, on Wednesday, November 11.

The evening will begin with hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar followed by an organizational business meeting. There will be an open panel discussion about parents and children with epilepsy, which is the theme for this year's public awareness campaign.

EAES will have representatives there to answer questions before and after the meeting. Mabel Long will renew her board membership and Susan Orme, Colleen Mene and John Riccio will be proposed as new members.

A display will be set up with brochures and related epilepsy materials as well as several give away items that carry the EAES logo.

A short film titled "Epilepsy, the Child and the Parent" will be shown along with a TV commercial recently made in New York City by the Epilepsy Foundation of America (EFA). Seven year old Andrea Kelley, of Harmon, MD, one of the children selected by EFA for the commercial, will be at the meeting with her parents.

WSCL-FM 89.5 Quiet Drive Exceeds $35,000

"It was a risk worth taking," said WSCL General Manager, Mark Handley, of the new Delmarva Public Radio station's recent quiet drive for listeners' support. In a radical approach to on-air fundraising, WSCL, located on the campus, succeeded in assembling nearly $36,000 in pledged and mailed-in support without disrupting its regularly scheduled classical music, jazz and news.

"From the beginning this is what our listeners have told us they wanted," said Handley of the almost uninterrupted programming the station maintained throughout the drive, from October 12 through October 23. "So we made a promise to do fundraising quietly and kept that promise. And for their part, the listeners kept their end of the bargain: They came through with financial support. That tells you something about Delmarva. The citizens of the Delmarva Peninsula are real activists when it comes to showing tangible support for what they appreciate." Close to 1000 radio listeners in Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Virginia responded to the Quiet Drive by pledging contributions ranging from the basic membership of $35 to the top level of $500. More contributions continue to arrive at WSCL in response to the station's mass mailing that was sent out when the Quiet Drive started.

In undertaking the Quiet Drive experiment, WSCL set a precedent for a new noncommercial radio station operating in an essentially rural community. Though established stations in other cities have conducted modifications of the noninterruptive on-air fundraiser, no new station has ever tried this approach.

"In fact," said Handley, "many public radio people have advised against taking this approach to fundraising. For most radio markets, it seemed too risky an experiment for a station just starting out." WSCL has been broadcasting at full power only since May 29.

In the course of taking telephone pledges, WSCL staff and volunteers elicited information from callers about their radio-listening preferences and habits. Once collated and analyzed, the data will be examined for consideration of what fine tuning, if any, supporting listeners would like in the station's programming.

One preliminary indication, however, even before analysis of statistics, is that the Quiet Drive itself motivated strong support. Nearly all callers reported not only enthusiasm for WSCL's programming; they also expressed explicit appreciation for the nondisruptive drive.

"But the best new of all is that we've made a major step toward earning our name," said Handley, referring to the phrase in the station's full title, Listener Supported Radio.

WSCL-FM 89.5, operates around the clock, seven days a week.

Computer Club Meeting

The SSC Computer Club will hold its next regular meeting, Thursday, November 5, at 3:30 in DB 246. We still have some of our famous Side Water Glasses for sale for the low, low price of $5. See any club member for more information.

Lide at Sports Conference

Dr. William E. Lide, chairman of the Department of Physical Education and athletic director, will be presenting research on "Economics and Sport in American Society" at the 1987 North American Society for the Sociology of Sports (NASSS) Conference in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada on November 4-7.

Rubin Elected Vice President Of NSIEE

Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, recently attended the annual meeting of the National Society for Internships and Experiential Education (NSIEE), held this year in Burlington, VT.

A topic of special concern this year was how to encourage college and high school students to participate in community service activities and how to assure that college curricula and programs support these important student efforts. A number of academic programs in which faculty, students and community representatives have worked together to accomplish projects helpful to the community were highlighted.

Frank Newman, director of the Education Commission of the States, related public service to educational reform movements now sweeping higher education.

At the pre-conference workshop, Rubin led several sessions to help representatives of nearly 100 colleges develop plans to strengthen their internship, cooperative education, volunteer service-learning, or other experiential programs on their campuses. Rubin has been a member of the NSIEE Board of Directors since 1986; she was elected vice president of the organization.

Earlier this month, Rubin attended the Forum of the W.K. Kellogg National Fellowship Program. The conference is an invitational event open only to those who have received a Kellogg National Fellowship. (The fellowship program, which began in 1980, selects 40-50 leaders from higher education, the non-profit sector, and other fields, to participate in a three-year professional development program.)

This year's Forum focused on Education for the Year 2015, and presentations by Fellows and by invited experts varied from a consideration of how family policy at a federal level affects education accomplishment of children to the demographics of higher education in the year 2015.

A special opportunity Rubin had at that conference was to participate on a panel of 21 Fellows led by Fred Friendly, former head of CBS News. Friendly presented the panel with three cases, about an elementary student found to have AIDS, about a bill to require that English be the official language of instruction in the schools and about a tenure decision involving equity for women, blacks and men.

The panel participants took roles comparable to their own roles within their organizations and institutions, and were cajoled and challenged by Friendly into taking stands on these complex and controversial issues.

Rubin also gave a workshop with Richard Couto for other Fellows on experiential learning as a teaching strategy.

Sports Update

For the College, having three out of five fall sports teams going to post-season action isn't too shabby. And, that doesn't even include the football team, which still has an outside chance, or cross country star, Doug Mock, who is also waiting in the wings.

The field hockey Gulls have had a 10-day break since their last contest which was a 3-0 loss at the hands of top-rated Bloomsburg. Yet, Dawn Chamberlin's squad is ranked seventh in the country in Division III, and has two regular season games left, Tuesday, October 27, against Glassboro and Tuesday, November 3, at Mary Washington. With an 8-3-1 record, being ranked seventh in the country and with 16 teams going to the post-season party, it would take an unbelievable collapse for the team led by Tracey Short, Terri Buysse, Jill Stewart and company not to be invited.

The volleyball team, after taking Shenandoah in three straight games on Saturday, already has its invitation, as Peggy Troiano's team, led by "The Wall" of Debbie Gibbens, Sandy Jankevicius and Elaine Allnut, along with Brenda Bowlin and Amy Geppi have piled up 15 wins in 22 outings. The volleyball Gulls will be playing for the Eastern States Athletic Conference Championship at Cabrini College (PA), the Northern Division Champion, on Saturday, October 31, in a best of five series.

The soccer team's fate will probably be decided on Thursday, October 19. And the Gulls won't have a say. The Gulls finished their ESAC schedule with a 2-0-1, October 29, slate. The tie was against Shenandoah, who is 1-0-1, with a game against Frostburg on Thursday. Gerry DiBartolo's team is waiting in the wings, following two straight victories, a 3-0 shutout of St. Mary's and a 2-1 overtime win at Rutgers-Camden, both behind goalie Matt Diehl.

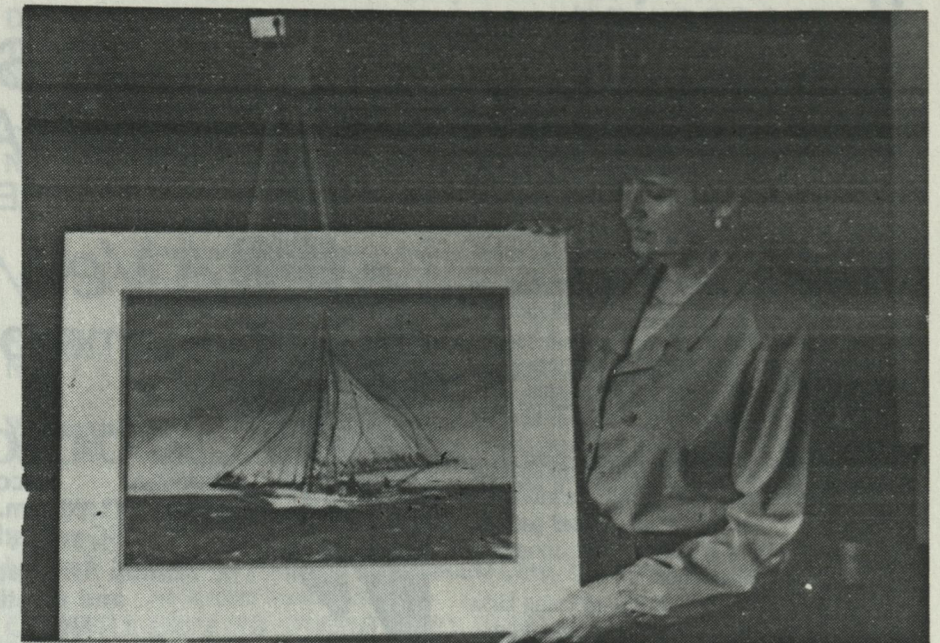

Doug Mock has been on a torrid pace all year, and on Saturday finished fifth in the Mason-Dixon Conference Cross Country Championships with a time of 26:13. This week, Mock and the rest of the cross country team will be traveling to the ESAC Championships, which, with another good time, could push him further.

The Sea Gull football team also needs outstanding performances in its last two games, plus some help from other people, to get a chance to go back to the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl. This past week, the Gulls got the help they needed, as two of the four teams ahead of Salisbury State in the region, lost, with Susquehanna losing to Widener and Gettysburg getting trounced by Muhlenberg. However, after building up a 22-6 lead, the Gulls couldn't hold on and dropped a tough decision, 30-22 at Montclair.

The Gulls were led by outstanding defense, that scored 15 of the Gulls 22 points, 13 on interception returns to touchdowns by Chris Snyder and Joey Slaughter, and another two on a safety, when Snyder blocked a Montclair punt out of the MSC end zone. Yet, the Gulls just didn't have enough, and over the next three weeks, must play tough football, and get a lot of help from their friends.

And, while last year's football and field hockey seasons are tough acts to follow, the winter and spring sports don't have it easy either, following up on a fall sports record, that is to date, 38-23-3. Yet, if success breeds success this year's basketball, lacrosse, baseball and softball fans, along with wrestling, swimming and tennis, will have a lot to look forward to.

Paintings By Powell Portray Shore's Charm

Watercolor paintings by Dolores Powell of Parsonsburg will be displayed from November 1 through December 4 at the Wicomico County Free Library here in Salisbury. The charm of the Eastern Shore is evident in her work. The watercolor landscapes and waterfowl are familiar scenes of the Eastern Shore and the Chesapeake Bay. Also included in this exhibit are paintings of a West Virginia log house, entitled, "Labor of Love," and Pennsylvania and Canadian farms.

Powell is employed here at the College in the Communication Arts Department; art is her hobby and she spends her leisure time with palette, paints and paper. She attended SSC as well as studied under the direction of professional Eastern Shore artists. Among the awards that she has received for her art works was the best wildlife entry in the Spring Fine Arts Show at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury for her painting of Canadian Geese, entitled "Upward Bound." Her two previous exhibits in 1985 and 1986 were well received by the community. She also is an active member and promotions director of the Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury.

Meet the artist at the Wicomico Library on Saturday afternoon, November 7. This exhibit can be seen during regular library hours, Monday through Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Thursday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. The library will be closed Thanksgiving Day only. For more information, call the library at 749-5171, or Powell at 543-6229 or 546-2836. Works in the exhibit are for sale.

Wheelchair Basketball Exhibition November 7

The P.E. Majors Society is sponsoring a Wheelchair Basketball exhibition game on Saturday, November 7, at 7 p.m. The event will be held in the Maggs Physical Activity Center.

This event is being held as an educational experience for the local community and the students, said a society spokesman. This event preceeds the Mid-Eastern Regional Wheelchair Games, which will be held at the College in the spring of '88. The athletes that participate in this event are either amputees, spinal cord injured or spinal cord diseased. All of the athletes also compete in other wheelchair sports such as track and field, weightlifting, swimming and volleyball. Wheelchair basketball is identical to able-bodied basketball with the exception of the dribbling rules.

The wheelchair basketball team is sponsored by the Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association. Some of the members of this team include:

Paul McDowell, an international record holder in the pentathlon. Paul is also a senior member of the team and is one of the originators and early developers of wheelchair sports in the United States.

Bill Demby is a Vietnam Veteran and world class athlete. Bill can be seen on T.V. commercials promoting prostheses made by Dupont Chemical Company.

Bob Ardinger is a world class athlete and represents the United States in international swimming events.

Wayne Miller is a Vietnam veteran and was a world class gymnast before his devastating injury.

Ticket prices for this event will be $2 adults and $1 for students. The funds raised will be used to pay the travel costs for the wheelchair basketball team. Any extra funds will be used to purchase specialized equipment for local handicapped student-athletes.

Homecoming Activities Set

VOL. IX NO. 10

Mime Performs

Keith Berger, a nationally acclaimed mime, performs with his colleague Sharon Diskin on Thursday, November 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The program is sponsored by the College Center and Faculty Cultural Affairs Committee.

Berger has been acclaimed a virtuoso performer. Provocative, accessible and fiercely populist, he has developed an ability to elicit empathy and engage his audience in worlds of imagination.

He has incorporated his eccentric humor and precision into a format of mime that revitalizes old vaudeville conventions, such as 'Verb-o-mime'—the stylized use of dialogue in pantomime. The result is a sophisticated fusion of traditional theatrical forms and contemporary ideas.

Berger adheres to no one 'doctrine' of mime. His influences range from the classical French pantomime of Barrault and Marceau to the dynamic impact of Bruce Lee's Kung Fu films. He was among the first mimes to take his act on to the streets of New York. The public's response to his maverick approach was immediate, and he was promptly thrust into the world of the concert stage. His spontaneity is one of the hallmarks of his work.

Berger has studied and performed with Paul Curtis (and his American Mime Theater) and played before a broad spectrum of the public; from a Royal Command Performance for Princess Grace of Monaco, as part of the Carter Inauguration Day celebrations to hundreds of college campuses throughout the U.S. and Canada, he has presented such shows as "Interruptions" and the renowned "Mime Over Matter." He has sold out at Lincoln Center, the Palm Beach Arts Festival and delighted 36,000 football fans at the New Orleans Superdome.

His TV work includes such diverse appearances as "Red Skelton's Funny Faces" and driving an invisible car for Chevrolet. Among his movie credits are "Angels" and the current "Crossover Dreams" with Reuben Blades.

In addition to his solo work, he wrote and starred in the Off-Broadway show "Broken Toys," and is presently director of the Oberlin Mime Players, based at Oberlin College, which recently completed a tour of Italy. He and partner Diskin have performed on a Royal Odyssey world cruise.

Diskin was for three years a leading performer with the Oberlin Mime Players. As a professional actress she has appeared in numerous roles, including Anne Frank in "The Diary of Anne Frank," Marjorie in "Extremities" and as Peter Pan.

Six SSC Students Complete Internships

What do the Washington, D.C., National Guard, a family-owned insurance business in Salisbury, and a research and development laboratory in New Jersey have in common? Student interns from SSC.

Six students from Salisbury State recently completed internships which had them doing everything from computerizing an office to Chesapeake Bay research.

"I've been pleased," said Tom Horseman, SSC's Computer Science internship coordinator. Internships haven't been busy work or slave labor. They've been developing software, training others to use a computer and performing statistical and systems analyses."

Terri Lynn Timmons, an SSC senior from Delmar, helped Gray Insurance Company of Salisbury reorganize its office to effectively use its new computer system. This senior's performance led to a full-time job with Gray's where she now manages its office.

For Jonathan Alperin of Bowie, MD, his internship with Bell Communication Research, near Rutgers University in Piscataway, NJ, was both "fun" and "a challenge"—working on a prototype for communication systems planners. Active in a gamut of activities on the SSC campus from student radio and theatre to Freshman Orientation and the Computer Science Club, he also wore a rack of hats at Bell.

"I learned a lot of new skills," he said. "I had to give several presentations before 40 to 50 people. It was intimidating until I realized they knew less than I did." At Bell he worked with other students from places like Massachusetts Institute of Technology and California State Polytechnic University (Cal Tech). "I was quite happy that I was going to SSC. I felt like I was accomplishing just as much as they were and getting just as good an education. The thing that helped me the most was that I had a liberal arts background; I had writing, reading and communication as well as computer skills. Because I've a very general background I was able to adapt to different things."

For Norman Daedra, 37, of Salisbury "adapt" was also a critical word. In the military for nine years, this Caroline County native had been installing heating and air conditioning systems when he developed knee problems. He had bought a computer for his children and was fascinated by its programming. Realizing he

Hindman Lecture

W. J. Hindman, chief executive officer of Jiffy Lube International Inc., addresses a campus audience as part of the Great Leaders Lecture Series 1987/88 on Thursday, November 12, at 9:45 a.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The series, sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at SSC, is free and open to the public.

When W.J. (Jim) Hindman acquired an eight store chain of automotive fast oil change and lubrication centers from a Salt Lake City businessman in 1979, he foresaw a dramatic change in how Americans would have their cars serviced in the decades ahead. Hindman parlayed this initial investment into an international network of after-market service centers poised for rapid growth.

By the quarter ended June 30, 1987, Jiffy Lube had a systemwide total of 641 service with another 230 units under construction or contract. Annual rates are now in excess of $50 million.

On July 22, 1986, Jiffy Lube International, Inc., became a publicly traded company issuing 2.03 million shares. On March 20, 1987 the stock was split two for one, and on July 2 an additional three million shares were issued. At present, 14.8 million shares of Jiffy Libe stock are outstanding.

Hindman graduated from Morningside College and earned a master's degree in Hospital Administration from the University of Minnesota. From 1958 to 1964 he served as a hospital administrator in Kansas City before being named director of Medical Administration

Toward the end of the program planning period in November a questionnaire, designed by the Ad Hoc Committee on Advising, will be sent to all academic advisors.

A follow-up to the survey of student perceptions conducted last spring, this confidential questionnaire will gather faculty perceptions about academic advising. Questions about the survey may be directed to Dr. Polly Stewart at 543-6452.

To qualify for expedited review the research must carry minimal or no risk to the subject, contain no way of linking subjects' names to the research and not ask sensitive questions about the subjects' behavior. Faculty researchers and advisors are requested to plan ahead adequately for committee consideration. If you have any questions, contact either Fran Kane, 543-6429, or Karin Johnson, 543-6412.

Honors Convocation Committee Seeks Nominees

The Honors Convocation Committee requests nominations for three awards, Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who.

Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his/her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a letter of recommendation on his/her behalf.

Be sure to nominate early so there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of November 13.

Names of students being nominated are due in the Dean of Student's Office no later than November 2.

The Achievement Key is awarded by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.25 academic average for each of two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive the award up to four times. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any participant of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award. Graduate students are not eligible to receive this award.

The Campus Life Award is granted by the College Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.0 cumulative average. The award is limited to not more than one percent of the full-time student body. Graduate students are not eligible to receive the award. Although students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, service to the College and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Nomination forms are available from the Dean of Students Office, HH 245.

December Graduation Set

The December 1987 graduation will take place on Sunday, December 20, 1987 at 3:00 p.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Price is Nice

Thanks to the generosity of Price Buick-Pontiac, an additional vehicle is available to Salisbury State College organizations and personnel, including the athletic teams. Price Buick-Pontiac has made a car available to Dr. Bellavance, allowing his car to be added to the motor pool's fleet of State vehicles, now numbering eight. Admissions, athletic teams, faculty and student groups are all beneficiaries. The College would like to extend its sincere appreciation to Price Buick-Pontiac.

Outdoor Club Activities

The Outdoor Club has several activities which are forthcoming. At the regular meeting at 6:00 p.m. on Wednesday, November 11, in Tawes 118, Dean Burroughs of the Physical Education Department will continue his slide presentation and talk on the Outdoor Educators Course he took with National Outdoor Leadership School. Burroughs completed the 24-day course in September in the Paseyten Wilderness in the Cascade Mountains in the state of Washington. The slides he has shown so far are stunning, and more of the same are expected.

On the weekend of November 13, 14 and 15, there will be a hiking trip for beginners in the Shenandoah National Park (cost $5). For this last scheduled trip of the semester, participants will backpack about a mile into the park and will set up camps which will be used as a base for circuit hikes involving Old Rag or White Oak Creek Canyon. These hikes both cover beautiful mountainous terrain.

The Club has equipment to lend to hikers. Students wishing to go on any Outdoor Club trip should sign up and pay the fee at regular meetings on Wednesdays at 6:00 p.m. in Tawes 118. All full-time students are welcome. For further information, call Cathy at 749-1747 or Bill at 546-2607, evenings.

HOROVITZ DOUBLE BILL. Laura Foran and Sean Thomas rehearse It's Called the Sugarplum by Israel Horovitz which opens at the College on Friday, November 13.

Horovitz Double Bill Opens November 13

Veterans of the SSC stage plus one newcomer comprise the casts of two award-winning plays by Israel Horovitz, scheduled to open Friday, November 13, in the Holloway Hall on stage. The first of the two, The Indian Wants the Bronx, will be performed by Paul Lewis, Craig Pettinati and Darryl Dillard.

Paul Lewis, 21, a Communication Arts major, plays Joey, a street punk. Lewis has received several acting awards including Best Actor and Best Supporting Actor at SSC and an Excellence in Acting Award from James M. Bennett Senior High School. Since that time he has been attending Salisbury State and working in dinner theatre performing in such plays as Camelot, I Do, I Do and You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown.

The role of Murph, Joey's companion, is portrayed by 22-year-old Communication Arts major Craig Pettinati. Pettinati is a 1983 graduate of Fairlawn High School, NJ, and a transfer student from the University of Maryland, College Park. AT SSC, he has participated in children's theatre and acted in The Cherry Orchard. Last, semester he received the award for best performance in Children's Theatre.

Darryl Dillard, 22, also a Communication Arts major, plays Gupta, an East Indian. A graduate of Surattsville High School in Clinton, he has acted in Tartuffe and The Cherry Orchard at Salisbury. The Indian Wants the Bronx will be his most challenging role yet, he said, because he must learn to speak Hindi for the role.

Wheelchair Basketball Exhibition November 7

The P.E. Majors Society is sponsoring a Wheelchair Basketball exhibition game on Saturday, November 7, at 7 p.m. The event will be held in the Maggs Physical Activity Center.

This event is being held as an educational experience for the local community and the students, said a society spokesman. This event preceeds the Mid-Eastern Regional Wheelchair Games, which will be held at the College in the spring of '88. The athletes that participate in this event are either amputees, spinal cord injured or spinal cord diseased. All of the athletes also compete in other wheelchair sports such as track and field, weightlifting, swimming and volleyball. Wheelchair basketball is identical to able-bodied basketball with the exception of the dribbling rules.

The wheelchair basketball team is sponsored by the Washington Bullets of the National Basketball Association. Some of the members

What do the actors think of The Indian Wants the Bronx? They all agree that it is surprisingly funny, but very unsettling because of the Indian's victimization.

The second play being presented is It's Called the Sugarplum. It features Sean Thomas, 19, a Music and Communication Arts major, and Laura Foran, an 18-year-old Biology major, a 1987 graduate of Laurel High School, MD, who has performed in Oliver and The Wiz as well as talent shows. She plays Joanna Dribble, a college student mourning her boyfriend who is killed in an auto accident by Wallace Zuckerman, played by Thomas. Foran has won her high school's Drama Achievement Award, as well as several student directing trophies.

Thomas is a 1986 graduate of the Broadwater Academy, in Exmore, VA. He has worked in dinner theatre and performed in Oliver, Camelot, The Fantasticks and Charlie Brown as well as Tartuffe at SSC. He also acted in South Pacific, My Fair Lady and Fiddler on the Roof during a summer stock theatre camp.

What do the actors think of It's Called the Sugarplum? They agree that the play is funny yet serious. Among the things it examines is the growing disregard for human life.

The Horovitz double-bill plays November 13, 14, 19, 20 and 21 at 8 p.m. with a matinee Sunday, November 15, at 2 p.m. Tickets are free to SSC students, faculty and staff. Call the SSC Theatre Box Office at (301) 543-6228 for reservations and information.

In 1976, he joined the football coaching staff of Western Maryland College and singlehandedly, with no salary or financial support from the institution, turned a losing program into a winning one.

This kind of dedication and commitment has made Jiffy Lube the "McDonald's of the quicklube industry," said Hindman.

"Peppers" by Rob Evans. From the exhibition: Recent American Works on Paper

'Recent American Works . . . ' Through November 19

"Recent American Works on Paper," an exhibition of paintings, drawings, prints and works in mixed media, are on view at the Blackwell Gallery through November 19. It was curated by Ned Rifkin, formerly curator of contemporary art at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., and now chief curator at Washington's Hirshhorn Museum. The exhibition is being circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Institution.

Rifkin selected approximately 50 works from over 1,000 submissions. In making his choices, he said he looked for works which were challenging, which asked "questions which I may not be able to answer easily," but which nevertheless activate my intellect or emotions." He also looked for an original approach to the use of the paper medium. The result, Rifkin said, is a "stimulating and fundamentally challenging exhibition of works on paper from across the country."

would soon need a desk job because of his knees, he began taking courses at Chesapeake College. In 1985 he was voted its outstanding Computer Science student. He transferred to SSC and recently completed an internship with Microdata Inc. of Salisbury. There he trained business people and others to use different software packages.

His enthusiasm about college convinced his wife, Patricia, also to enroll. "I hope it rubs off on the children," he added.

Two of the internships related to defense. Kimberly Altizer of Clinton taught members of the Washington, D.C., National Guard how to use various software packages. She also developed a manual for the Guardsmen. Stephen Whetstone of Hollywood, MD, worked for Dyncorp, a nationwide defense contractor at the Patuxent River Naval Air Test Center. He worked as a programmer and a systems analyst for test equipment used on carriers and naval planes.

For Bert "Hank" Griffioen of Easton, much of his summer was spent on the water. Working at the University of Maryland's Horn Point Lab-

The works range in style from realism to different kinds of abstraction and include a gamut of subject matter. "It is an important exhibition of contemporary art, reflecting the diversity of styles in the mid-1980s, juried by a nationally respected curator," said Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the College Gallery.

Regularly scheduled gallery talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Wednesday at 11 a.m. and at 1 p.m. Mrs. Mitchell also conducts tours for small groups, which may be arranged by calling the Gallery about one week in advance of the desired tour date.

The Gallery is located on the second floor of Blackwell Library. Hours are Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5 to 8 p.m. oratory near Cambridge, he interned on projects involving the testing of Choptank River waters, followed by wind projection testing of the Patuxent River and mapping salinity in the Chesapeake Bay. About 100 people including other College students from as far away as Brown University also worked there.

Griffioen used a computer in compiling and analyzing the marine data he helped gather. Working with two scientists, "You really had to be flexible," he said. "I didn't know what I'd be doing from one week to the next, but I picked it up as I went."

Computer intern students must provide the College with job objectives, file reports on their work and are evaluated by both the College and their employers. "The internships are real confidence builders," said Horseman. "Often shy students come back very open, very much a part of their class. Students frequently do better in their coursework afterwards, knowing they can do some real-world activities." The internship program underscores "learning to work with other people, to work well with people."

"It's been fun for me," he added. "I find out what's going on in industry. Students keep me up-to-date."

People on their way to work last week may have done a doubletake at the sight of some three dozen joggers in Friday the 13th masks, mummy bandages and Dracula capes running along Camden Ave. and through the downtown area. They were not ghouls retreating toward open coffins before the sunlight got them; they were College ROTC cadets on a morning run. The cadets celebrate Halloween each year by jogging in costumes. Just don't say Boo!

Jones Grant

Dr. Thomas W. Jones, chairman of the Department of Biological Sciences, has been awarded a two-year University of Maryland Sea Grant for $60,000.

The title of Dr. Jones' grant is "The Role of Picophytoplankton in the Nutrition of the American Oyster, Crassostrea virginica." Working with Dr. Jones on this grant is a researcher at the University of Maryland Horn Point Environmental Laboratory, Dr. Roger Newell, who is an oyster physiologist.

Picophytoplankton are extremely small algal cells (less than three micrometers) that seem to be proliferating in the Chesapeake Bay. Larger sized phytoplankton cells are the normal diet of oysters and the ability of oysters to use these smaller sized picophytoplankton cells is unknown.

It is hypothesized that eutrophication of the Chesapeake Bay (addition of nitrogen and phosphorus) is enhancing the growth of these small cells over the growth of the larger more traditional food of the oyster. This situation could further stress an already crippled oyster population in the Chesapeake Bay.

Housing Study Completed

Dr. Marvin Tossey, chairman of the Social Work Department, in collaboration with Morton Hoffman and Company of Baltimore, has completed a study of housing conditions in Talbot County. The final report, "Survey and Analysis of Substandard Housing in Unincorporated Areas of Talbot County, Characteristics and Recommended Actions," was prepared for the Talbot County Community Housing Resource Board.

Tossey designed the methodology and instruments, supervised the data gathering and completed the analyses of the data. Morton Hoffman and Company prepared the recommendations and published the report. The six-month study was carried out to document the rural housing conditions in the county.

Eight Social Work students were involved in the data gathering and coding. Tossey tried to involve the students in all aspects of the project to enhance their learning experience. He said that there is no better way to learn research than to be actively involved in a real research project.

O'Loughlin Presentation

Professor Michael O'Loughlin of the Political Science Department addressed an audience of 60 people at Chesapeake Community College on the "Place of the Vice-Presidency in the U.S. Constitution."

The talk was delivered on Thursday, October 15, as one of a series of lectures on the American Constitution hosted by the College.

VOL. IX NO. 11

SSC Hockey Fielders Flying High

It is a very familiar scenario that the 1987 Salisbury State College field hockey team finds itself in.

For the second straight year, the Sea Gulls field hockey team will be going to the final hour.

Last year, the Gulls capped a perfect season by beating Bloomsburg in the Championship Game, 3-2. This year, the Gulls find themselves with a distinct possibility of meeting up with the Huskies once again for the NCAA Division III Title.

On Friday, the Gulls will be playing in the second half of the doubleheader. In the first game, at 11 a.m., Bloomsburg will play the surprise of the tournament, little-known Southern Maine. In the 2 p.m. match-up, it will be the Gulls taking on the host of the Final Hour, William Smith.

The Gulls will enter Friday's contest with a record of 11-4-1, after taking the South Regional Title by beating fourth-ranked Trenton State 2-1 in overtime on Friday. The Gulls followed that up with a 3-1 win over eighth-ranked arch-rival, Frostburg on Saturday.

As they have done all year, Jill Stewart spearheaded the offensive attack, Terri Buysee kept the defensive zone in tact, and what got by was handled almost flawlessly by goalie Tracey Short.

After Trenton State had gotten off to the early 1-0 lead, Stewart scored towards the end of the first half to tie the score. Following a scoreless second half, Stewart scored the game-winner less than two minutes into overtime.

And her offensive prowess carried into Saturday's game. Once again, the Gulls gave up the first goal in the game, then scored the next three in a row. Stewart scored first tying the game. She then put the Gulls up on top, 2-1, as she converted a pass from Vicki Miller. That is how the half ended. Buysee put the icing on the cake in the second half, tallying her fifth goal of the season on a penalty stroke, of which she has converted four of six attempts.

Short, once again, was a stellar performer in net. In Friday's game she came up with 13 saves, while on Saturday she saved eight of nine opportunities.

For the Gulls, 1987 has been a mini-roller coaster. They won their first five in a row, and were undefeated in their first seven, with only a 1-1 tie with Kutztown, spoiling perfection. After a 3-0 win over Eastern Mennonite, the Gulls ran into a bit of tough sledding, going 3-4 in their final seven regular season contests.

Included in the four defeats were a 1-0 loss at Trenton State and a 3-0 loss to Bloomsburg. The Gulls have since paid Trenton State back. And, should they win on Friday, it would probably be a payback of Bloomsburg that would give the Gulls their second straight National Championship.

Mime Performs November 12

Keith Berger, a nationally acclaimed mime, performs with his colleague Sharon Diskin on Thursday, November 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The program is sponsored by the College Center and Faculty Cultural Affairs Committee.

Berger has incorporated his eccentric humor and precision into a format of mime that revitalizes old vaudeville conventions, such as 'Verb-o-mime'—the stylized use of dialogue in pantomime. The result is a sophisticated fusion of traditional theatrical forms and contemporary ideas.

Berger adheres to no one 'doctrine' of mime. His influences range from the classical French pantomime of Barrault and Marceau to the dynamic impact of Bruce Lee's Kung Fu films. He was among the first mimes to take his act on to the streets of New York. The public's response to his maverick approach was immediate, and he was promptly thrust into the world of the concert stage. His spontaneity is one of the hallmarks of his work.

Berger has studied and performed with Paul Curtis (and his American Mime Theater) and played before a broad spectrum of the public; from a Royal Command Performance for Princess Grace of Monaco, as part of the Carter Inauguration Day celebrations to hundreds of college campuses throughout the U.S. and Canada, he has presented such shows as "Interruptions" and the renowned "Mime Over Matter." He has sold out at Lincoln Center, the Palm Beach Arts Festival and delighted 36,000 football fans at the New Orleans Superdome.

His TV work includes such diverse appearances as "Red Skelton's Funny Faces" and driving an invisible car for Chevrolet. Among his movie credits are "Angels" and the current "Crossover Dreams" with Reuben Blades.

In addition to his solo work, he wrote and starred in the Off-Broadway show "Broken Toys," and is presently director of the Oberlin Mime Players, based at Oberlin College, which recently completed a tour of Italy. He and partner Diskin have performed on a Royal Odyssey world cruise.

Diskin was for three years a leading performer with the Oberlin Mime Players. As a professional actress she has appeared in numerous roles, including Anne Frank in "The Diary of Anne Frank," Marjorie in "Extremities" and as Peter Pan.

For more information, call the College Center at 543-NEWS.

Optometry Opportunities

The Medical Careers Club, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania College of Optometry, is presenting an informational meeting on Tuesday, November 17, at 3:30 p.m. in DH 110. Robert McIntyre will be the keynote speaker. He is an expert in the areas of optometry school and career opportunities in optometry. In addition, SSC has a special affiliation agreement with the Pennsylvania College of Optometry whereby qualified students may earn a B.S. degree from SSC and a Doctor of Optometry degree from the optometry school in seven years instead of the usual eight. This, together with the reduction in fees for Maryland residents, makes the program very attractive.

While the program is especially important for students planning to enter any health career, all interested persons are invited to attend.

"Higher Education in Focus" Series Continues

"Higher Education in Focus," a series sponsored by the Faculty Development Committee, continues Thursday, November 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium with a presentation by Jack H. Schuster, co-author of American Professors: A National Resource Imperiled. Dr. Schuster is professor of Public Policy and Education at Claremont, (CA) Graduate School.

Written with Howard R. Bowen, the work examines the effects of recent upheavals in higher education on the American professoriate. Focusing on such factors as declining enrollment, declining government support and massive shifts in enrollment among academic disciplines, the authors conclude that academics are in an imperiled profession.

The book addresses two main issues: Will our colleges and universities be able to maintain an appropriate professoriate in the sense of attracting well-qualified people? If not, what should be done to assure that the professoriate of the future is capable of meeting its responsibilities?

The final section of the book contains policy recommendations, some directed toward the colleges and universities, some toward federal and state governments. These recommendations are presented from the viewpoint of the public interest.

The issues to be discussed are ones that have great impact on all faculty members. Everyone interested in the future of the professoriate is welcome to attend. A small reception will be held outside Caruthers Hall Auditorium immediately afterward with Dr. Schuster.

Hindman Lecture Set for November 12

W. J. Hindman, chief executive officer of Jiffy Lube International Inc., addresses a campus audience as part of the Great Leaders Lecture Series 1987/88 on Thursday, November 12, at 9:45 a.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The series, sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at SSC, is free and open to the public.

When W.J. (Jim) Hindman acquired an eight store chain of automotive fast oil change and lubrication centers from a Salt Lake City businessman in 1979, he foresaw a dramatic change in how Americans would have their cars serviced in the decades ahead. Hindman parlayed this initial investment into an international network of after-market service centers poised for rapid growth.

By the quarter ended June 30, 1987, Jiffy Lube had a systemwide total of 641 service with another 230 units under construction or contract. Annual rates are now in excess of $50 million.

On July 22, 1986, Jiffy Lube International, Inc., became a publicly traded company issuing 2.03 million shares. On March 20, 1987 the stock was split two for one, and on July 2 an additional three million shares were issued. At present, 14.8 million shares of Jiffy Libe stock are outstanding.

Hindman graduated from Morningside College and earned a master's degree in Hospital Administration from the University of Minnesota. From 1958 to 1964 he served as a hospital administrator in Kansas City before being named director of Medical Administration at the John F. Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

In 1965 he became administrator at Baltimore County General Hospital. In 1967, Hindman joined with partners and launched W.J. Hindman & Associates, a builder-operator of nursing homes and businesses that in the decade ahead would own all or part of 17 different enterprises. By age 35, Hindman was a self-made millionaire.

In 1976, he joined the football coaching staff of Western Maryland College and singlehandedly, with no salary or financial support from the institution, turned a losing program into a winning one.

This kind of dedication and commitment has made Jiffy Lube the "McDonald's of the quicklube industry," said Hindman.

For more information on this or other lectures in the series, contact the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at 543-6315.

Children With Epilepsy Speak Out In TV Campaign

"Sometimes it's hard having epilepsy," one little girl tells the television audience. "But now my seizures are controlled, I can do most anything," a little boy continues.

"We want people to know more about kids like us," says Megan Moran, a talented 10-year-old who wants to be an actress and appears in the Epilepsy Foundation of America's new public service announcement for television. Andrea Kelly, 7, of Hamony, MD, is also in the film. She gets good grades in school, plays lots of sports, rides her bike, walks her dog and collects bears.

The message of the new campaign, which features nine children with epilepsy from different parts of the country, is that more and more children today who have epilepsy are able to overcome the problems it presents and lead normal, active lives.

"Usually these kinds of messages have grown-ups describing the condition and how those who have it are affected," said Helen Fletcher, Board Member of the Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore.

This message is different because it lets the kids speak for themselves. They know from experience that a lot of people are misinformed about epilepsy and they want to change that."

The goal of the 1988 campaign is to improve public attitudes towards epilepsy and promote social acceptance of those who have the disorder, Cecilia Alpert, Director of Public Affairs explains.

The campaign will be launched in the Eastern Shore area during November. National Epilepsy Month.

Technology 'So New It May Be Unique' at SSC

by Mary Corddy

Maryland's once scorned wetlands are today being programmed into computers at the College using technology which might be expected to produce images of supernovas or galaxies.

A system for converting aerial and satellite photographs of Maryland's changing shorelines into computerized images is being developed at this Eastern Shore college under contract to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

The project brings together electronic satellite images taken from space and about 4,000 aerial photographs. The satellite data is obtained from the U.S. Landsat satellite and the French SPOT satellite.

"We are using technology so new it may be unique," K. Peter Lade, the Salisbury professor who is the project's principal investigator, explained. Dr. Lade is on a year's sabbatical from the classroom to head the project.

"We are using hardware that we are among the first to use, manufactured in New England, Colorado and Georgia," Dr. Lade continued. The software has been engineered at the University of Nebraska and the Goddard Space Flight Center at Greenbelt, he said.

The state contracted with the Shore college last December to develop a Map Image Processing System for Maryland's tidal wetlands. The computerized system will replace a mapping system developed by the state in 1972 for the enforcement of The Wetlands Act of 1970.

The new system converts satellite and aerial images into a computer file. The stored images can be brought up on the screen as color photographs. Segments can be blocked off for enlargement, overlays added to identify soils or vegetation, or to establish new wetlands boundaries, and the result printed on any scale.

It involves the latest in IBM micro-computers, optical disks for high resolution images, color scanners and color printers.

The computerized images "will give the state a system to look at the location of wetlands, add information and data and supply reproductions to landowners or counties who want to know where they stand" in complying with the Wetlands Act, Dr. Lade said.

"With computerized procedures, the state permit process can be shortened and better planned development encouraged.

"Computer expertise can be applied to cut through red tape," Dr. Lade believes.

Dr. Lade's heavy involvement in the use of computers and images from space began when he was on sabbatical about seven years ago at the Goddard Space Flight Center at Greenbelt. His field is Anthropology and he was there looking for an efficient way to identify archaeological sites on the lower Shore which are most subject to loss by erosion or by opening new land to farming.

He studied the use of remote sensing from space and of aerial photography.

He got his first contract with the state of Maryland five years ago to develop a system of computerized satellite data related to non-tidal wetlands. He related the techniques he had learned at Goddard to evaluating and monitoring natural resources.

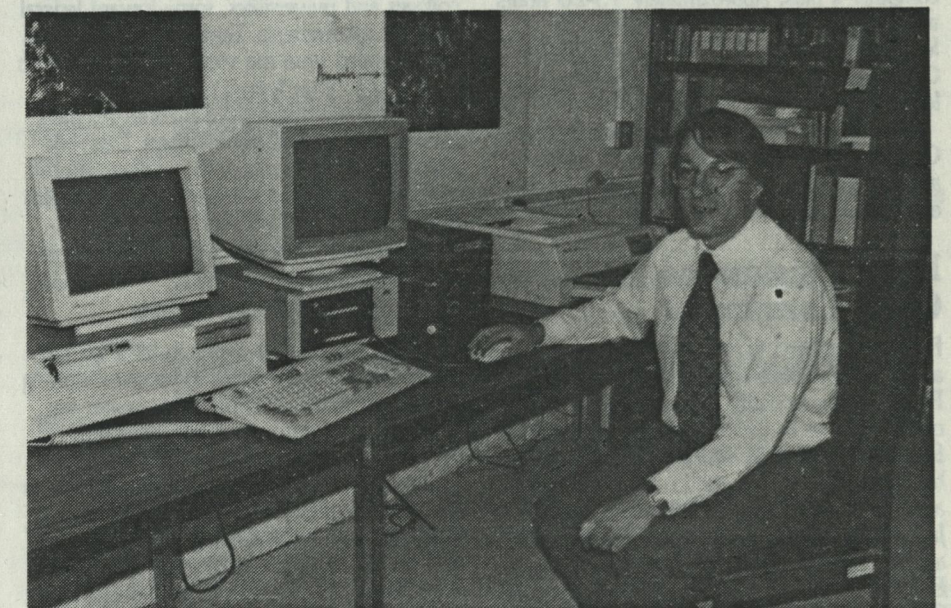

From that project he has now moved on to a computerized system for tidal wetlands for the Water Resources Administration. For that project he has $23,800 worth of 60x60 kilometer sections of the Chesapeake Bay area from a French satellite. The advantage of the French data, he explained, is that it provides higher resolution images and can be acquired more readily than from United States sources. Dr. Lade and his staff have now contracted for three other projects for state agencies.

With satellite and aerial photography and computer techniques he and his associates at the College are mapping submerged aquatic vegetation for the Coastal Resources Division of the Department of Natural Resources.

They also are looking at the distribution of

Faculty Art Exhibit Focusing on Media Opens Saturday

The campus community is invited to attend a reception marking the opening of the annual "Faculty Art Exhibition," on Saturday, November 21, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the College Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library. The exhibition continues through December 17.

Organized by Ursula Ehrhardt, the Gallery's director, the exhibition features paintings by James L. Burgess and John Cleary; drawings by Page Hammond and Dean Peterson; stained glass by Kent N. Kimmel; ceramics by Marie Tator Quillen; sculpture by Matthew Blaine; photographs by John Gencel and Art Wilby; works in handmade paper by Clytie Whitson Taylor; and silkscreens by Charlene Whitney-Edwards.

According to Ehrhardt, the organizing idea of theme underlying this year's show is "media." She asked the artists to select works which would demonstrate a variety of approaches to a particular art medium, such as painting, sculpture or printmaking. "I wanted our students, as well as the general public to consider how the choice of a particular medium—painting as opposed to drawing or even, pencil drawing as opposed to charcoal—contributes to the effect or meaning of a work of art," Ehrhardt said.

A pamphlet with brief statements by the artists, intended to give viewers general guidelines for understanding the work, is available, free of charge, to Gallery visitors. The statements focus on the show's theme, discuss the materials and techniques used by the artists, and examine the specific effects these were intended to achieve.

Regularly scheduled Gallery talks on each exhibition are given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, each Wednesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Mitchell also conducts tours for small groups. These may be arranged by calling the Gallery at 543-6271 or the Art Department at 543-6270 at least one week in advance of the desired tour date.

The College Gallery is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evening from 5 to 8 p.m. Admission is free.

"Higher Education in Focus" Series Continues

"Higher Education in Focus," a series sponsored by the Faculty Development Committee, continues Thursday, November 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium with a presentation by Jack H. Schuster, co-author of American Professors: A National Resource Imperiled. Dr. Schuster is professor of Public Policy and Education at Claremont, (CA) Graduate School.

Written with Howard R. Bowen, the work examines the effects of recent upheavals in higher education on the American professoriate. Focusing on such factors as declining enrollment, declining government support and massive shifts in enrollment among academic disciplines, the authors conclude that academics are in an imperiled profession.

The book addresses two main issues: Will our colleges and universities be able to maintain an appropriate professoriate in the sense of attracting well-qualified people? If not, what should be done to assure that the professoriate of the future is capable of meeting its responsibilities?

The final section of the book contains policy recommendations, some directed toward the colleges and universities, some toward federal and state governments. These recommendations are presented from the viewpoint of the public interest.

The issues to be discussed are ones that have great impact on all faculty members. Everyone interested in the future of the professoriate is welcome to attend. A small reception will be held outside Caruthers Hall Auditorium immediately afterward with Dr. Schuster.

a marsh grass called phragmites to gauge the impact of spraying and other disturbances to its presence along the Bay.

A contract with the Maryland Historical Trust calls for computer software for mapping state archaeological sites on land and underwater in the Chesapeake Bay and tributaries.

Currently in negotiation is a contract with the Critical Areas Commission to develop a land-use data base and a system to keep it updated with the use of computer images and files.

The computerization of tidal wetlands on which Dr. Lade and his staff are now concentrating is an important update on the Wetlands Act of 1970. At the time the act was passed the wetlands along Maryland's coast and around Chesapeake Bay were rapidly being destroyed by dredging and filling for artificial, bulkheaded boating canals and waterfront developments.

It had not been generally accepted at that time that wetlands are not wastelands, but are vital to the food chain which then filled our waters with fish, shellfish and waterfowl. They are also buffers which catch sediments and pollutants and flood waters which would otherwise rush directly from the land into the bays and rivers.

Dr. Lade's project demonstrates the changed status of wetlands today. In his computer lab at Salisbury State images of the whole Bay area or of a shoreline segment that can be measured in yards can be brought up on a screen with the same techniques used by astronomers to probe the universe.

TEN, A Model Program

The Eastern Shore Teacher Effectiveness Network was selected as a model program for presentation at the November 5-6 Council of Educational Administrative and Supervisory Organizations of Maryland (CEASOM) Conference held in the Baltimore Marriott Conference Center. The theme of the conference was "Quality Education; Preparing Personnel to Meet Higher Standards."

A Farewell to Football And Field Hockey

by Barry Packer

This was a fall when two of Salisbury State's athletic teams, coming off championship game appearances, were faced with many questions.

The football team, with three road victories in the 1986 post-season party before losing to Augustana in the Super Bowl of Division III College Football, started 1987 with a sense of optimism, and a little uncertainty.

The team had 18 of last year's starters returning for the '87 campaign. Yet, one person who wasn't coming back was head coach Mike McGlinchey who left SSC for Central Connecticut.

Enter Dr. Joseph Dailey, who had been an assistant coach at Williams (MA) College for 19 years. And enter Dailey into an almost no-win situation. If he won some might say it was because of the senior-laden, talented and experienced team that he was blessed with. If he didn't win, he should have, because of all of those talented players.

By season's end, however, Dailey had proven to all doubters that he had coaching ability as well. He led his team to a 7-2 record, and with a couple of breaks, could have wound up 9-0. His Gulls outscored the opposition 305-127, an average of 33.8-14.1 They were never out of any game. The two which they lost, 15-14 to probable playoff-bound Ferrum and 30-22 at Montclair, were games they held leads in.

While a playoff possibility looked remote, entering the final week of the season, Dailey didn't let his players get down, as they went up to Erie, PA, and ran Mercyhurst into the ground for almost 450 yards of offense and a 45-32 win.

And, the seniors, in their final effort, went out on top. Mike Coppa carried the ball 37 times for 169 yards and five touchdowns. He went out as SSC's all-time leading scorer, as well as the team's touchdown leader. Frank Oliver carried 20 times for 74 yards. Bill Maurer kicked a 32-yard field goal and six extra points to finish his career with 160 points after touchdowns. On the defensive side of the ball, senior linebackers Chris Snyder and Keith Rawlings were in on 10 and seven tackles respectively, while senior defensive back Paul Washington was in on six and senior lineman Mike Burton was in on four and had a quartet-back sack.

In field hockey, young talent and coaching by Dawn Chamberlin carried the day. Last year field hockey won the National Title, and this year, to many people's surprise, went to the Final Four. This is with a roster of only three seniors, and five juniors, five sophomores and 10 freshmen!

Co-captain Terri Buysse is the only member of the 1987 "Bronze Medal" team who played this year. It is going to be a chore to replace her, so to speak. Because of her talent on the field and her leadership on and off-Buysse is irreplaceable. Sure, there will be players who will come and go over the years, and play her position, and wear number 14. Yet none of them will be Terri Buysse.

Many, after a National Championship, might have thought that Head Coach Karen Weaver was irreplaceable. Yet, she left for Ohio State, and turned the reins over to one of her assistants, Dawn Chamberlin.

While Chamberlin also came into a head mentor position, with only one senior on the team, and minus eight senior starters off of last year's squad, including All-Americans Robin Adair and Stacy Stem, there was also much

Kellam Keynote Speaker

"It is time for school nurses to stand up, speak out and show off their invaluable contributions to the health of America's youth!" said Dr. Barbara Kellam, assistant professor in the School of Nursing and Health Sciences. Kellam was keynote speaker at the Maryland Department of School Nurses Convention held recently in Ocean City. The convention focuses on the image of the school nurse.

Kellam discussed historical and economic factors that have contributed to a general misconception of the role of today's school nurse whom she called an "unsung hero." The low-profile presented by school nurses has diminished recognition by others of their significant contributions to the health of America's school-aged children. School nurses must sharpen their image or remain unsung and jeopardize the future role of our nation's school nurses," Kellam said.

School nurses Sue Collins and Doris Culver from Delaware, and Lavessa Mitchell and Beth Wulff from Maryland, participated as panelists in a discussion of issues related to the image of the school nurse as viewed by practicing school nurses. Pertinent and dynamic issues relevant to present-day problems facing school nurses were explored in lively panel discussions. Of particular concern was the wide variation in requirements and role expectations for school nurses across the nation.

Foley has worked for Instructional Television (ITV), a division of the Public Broadcasting System, and his Civil War tapes have been used for history classes at George Mason University, Perdue University and the University of Massachusetts.

ABQ To Give Two Special Christmas Programs

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council announces the Annapolis Brass Quintet's Christmas concert, "The Spirit of Christmas Brassed," on Tuesday, December 15, at 8 p.m. at Trinity United Methodist Church, N. Division and Broad Sts. near the Downtown Plaza.

"Our holiday concerts are always well received, I think, because the tradition of brass music is so firmly associated in people's minds with Christmas music and the sounds of Christmas," said Robert Posten, trombonist with the Annapolis Brass Quintet.

As a special treat for children, the Annapolis Brass has invited Santa Claus to join them for a second Salisbury concert on Wednesday, December 16. Entitled "A Musical Interview with Santa Claus" this performance will highlight many different holiday customs from around the world with Santa's comments and ABQ music. "The concert is a wonderful way to explain to children why Santa is real and yet why they see so many Santas at Christmastime!" said Posten. "A Musical Interview with Santa Claus" is an original adaptation of "An Interview with Santa Claus" by Margaret Mead and Rhoda Metraux.

The Annapolis Brass Quintet's season in Salisbury is made possible, in part, by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Maryland State Arts Council. "A Musical Interview with Santa Claus," is made possible by special arrangement with Walker and Co. For more information contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS or stop by its office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Band Concert Monday

An exciting night of band music is in store for the Salisbury area on Monday, November 23, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The combined College and Community bands under the direction of Dr. Charles F. Smith Jr. of the Music Department will present "A Night of Overtures," drawing from the rich history of this musical style of composition.

The overture, long utilized as a prelude to a larger work such as an oratorio, stage play, ballet or opera, will be represented in compositions from the three great musical eras preceding the 20th century. These will include Handel's overture to "The Messiah," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," and Rossini's overture to "William Tell."

The 20th century solidified a trend of the late 1800s to produce the so-called "concert overture" that held little or no relevance to a trailing work of a larger nature. They were able to stand alone in the concert hall and usually included a descriptive title. Robert Ward's "Prairie Overture," an original band composition subsequently transcribed for orchestra, quite logically uses Western-style tunes to enhance the descriptive content. "Jubilance—An overture" by Caesar Giovanni is a reflection on the many moods we encounter daily. Alfred Reed, a contemporary composer of band music applied no program or descriptive basis to his "A Jubilant Overture" written nearly 20 years ago. It follows the traditional three-part overture format.

To conclude the program the band will perform a medley of Broadway "Showstoppers" arranged in overture style. The concert is free to the public.

much uncertainty, and nobody knew what to expect. As in Dailey's case, Chamberlin was also in charge of a team for the first time.

She had freshmen and inexperienced people starting all over the field. Jill Stewart took charge of the offense, and with Diane Swetnam, were named to the All-Tournament Team this past weekend. Buysse, Debe Clarke and Sharon Montgomery controlled the defense. And, in the net, after being a back-up most of last year was Tracey Short, whose name depicted her height, yet not her talent, nor determination nor the size of her heart.

She ended up with an 11-5-1 record and had eight shutouts. Her save percentage was .932, while her goals against average was just over three-quarters of a goal per game.

While her numbers speak for her success, one cannot help but feel for her. With six minutes left in the third overtime period at William Smith College on Friday, she was facing one of the Heron's top players in a penalty stroke situation. Shooter against goalie. Shooter against a five-foot tall goalie. And as the ball went up over Short to the uppermost part of the net, one could only remember all of the great saves that she had in the previous 15 games, as well as in this one, to get the Gulls where they were.

And, one could only think of the terrific job that Dawn Chamberlin did, and what lies ahead.

Outdoor Club's Montreal Ski Trip

The Outdoor Club is currently making preparations for its Winter Term trip to Montreal for cross-country and downhill skiing January 19 to 29. Cross-country skiing is done in the vicinity of Shawbridge, Quebec, on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill (University) Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on some of the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is recommended for downhill but not for cross-country skiers.

The trip includes sightseeing in old Montreal, a two-day side trip (which includes skiing) to the city of Quebec, and two banquets. Cost including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while at the McGill Outing Club House is $165. The cost this year includes the side trip to Quebec with a two night stay in the youth hostel. It does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Can. per day) or lift tickets for downhill skiers. Lift tickets cost on the average $18 Can. per day or lower with group rates. Downhill skis can be rented in Salisbury for the whole trip or by day at the slopes in Canada.

A place on the trip may be guaranteed by giving a non-refundable deposit of $50 to club treasurer, Bryan Green (543-1269). Sign up by meeting directly with Green or by attending a regular club meeting on Wednesday at 6 p.m. in Tawes 118. Sign-ups will continue every Wednesday until all 23 spaces are filled. An important informational meeting for all those making the trip will take place on December 9 and 6 p.m. in Tawes 118. For further information on the Montreal trip, call Bryan, Cathy at 749-1747, or Bill at 546-2607 (evenings).

At the regular meeting on November 18 at 6 p.m. in Tawes 118, the Club will present a clinic on cold weather camping and on cross-country skiing. Everyone is invited. At the meeting on December 2 a speaker from the Nature Conservancy is tentatively scheduled, and on December 9 the Outdoor Club will host a speaker from the Sierra Club. This presentation will take place at 7 p.m. in the Chesapeake Room of the College Center, right after the regular meeting at 6 p.m. in Tawes 118.

The Club also has information on Hurricane Island Outward Bound School scholarships which are available to full-time SSC students who can demonstrate financial need. This information will be distributed to interested students.

Salisbury Symphony Orchestra Performs December 4

For the past three years Eastern Shore musicians have been taking seldom used instruments out of closets and developing individually and collectively into the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra.

On Friday, December 4, the fifth concert performance of the full orchestra will be at Holloway Hall at 8 p.m.

"A lot of talent reveals itself. There is a lot more than I thought when I first came here," Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, the orchestra's conductor, said of the growing orchestra.

The 25 local musicians who responded to Dr. Elliot's invitation and turned out for the first rehearsal on January 20, 1985, are still with the orchestra and the number of players has now grown to 62.

The December 4 concert will feature Stephen Dewey, pianist, as guest artist. Dewey is known locally as the musical director for the past three summers of the Cabaret Theater at Ocean City's Commander Hotel and for his performance of George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue at the Coastal Hospice benefit here last September. He is a free lance musician who travels about the country to a variety of jobs performing, composing and conducting.

He will play Gershwin's "I Got Rhythm Variations" at the December 4 concert backed by the full orchestra.

The rest of the concert program will be as varied as the backgrounds of the musicians. It will include music by J.S. Bach, Johannes Brahms and Jean Sibelius and introduce the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra Chamber Winds, a group of 13 woodwinds playing "Serenade" by Richard Strauss.

Members of the orchestra include a Salisbury lawyer on first violin, a nurse on the oboe, a local physician on viola, a professor at the nearby University of Maryland Eastern Shore on flute, a school teacher on trumpet, and the operator of a recycling plant for crab shells on cello.

The players come from as far north as Dover, from the Virginia Eastern Shore and Ocean City. A group of six carpools from Easton and Cambridge to the rehearsals every Sunday.

Ages vary from the late 70s to the teens. Dr. Elliot said that one woman in the orchestra had not played the violin for 25 years and has been so stimulated by the experience that she is taking lessons through the College.

Dr. James E. Bowes, the Wicomico County Health Officer, who plays the double bass, said that when he was interviewed for the job here he had asked if there were an outlet here for a musician. "There had to be that for me to take the job," he said.

Dr. Bowes plays also in the Community Band, a group conducted by Charles F. Smith, another professor of Music at the College who also plays percussion in the new orchestra.

Music Major Approved

Starting next fall students at SSC can take a full-scale Music major and receive a Bachelor of Arts in Music degree.

On November 3 the full Board of Trustees of the State Board of Universities and Colleges of Maryland unanimously endorsed the new degree program for Salisbury State.

"It has finally happened," Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chairman of the Music Department, said this week. "It is something the Music faculty has dreamed of for years."

Dr. Elliot said that the new degree program may be pursued immediately. There are already 35 students who have been taking the required courses in contemplation of the degree, he said. He expects the major to grow rapidly and a limit of about 100 students to be established.

Getting approval for the Music degree has been "a long process," Dr. Elliot continued. When he came to the College two years ago as the new department chairman, Dr. Bellavance had made it a top priority.

Hand in hand with the new major will be a new facility at the College. "Part of the plan," Dr. Elliot said, "is for the Music Department to be housed in expanded space in the old Tawes gymnasium." Plans are now proceeding for a renovation or replacement and expansion of that building which is scheduled for completion in 1992.

The Music Department is presently housed in a separate and now crowded building on U.S. 50 known as the Music Arts Center.

Dr. Elliot and his staff have spent the past two years developing the new degree program. To get board endorsement they had to justify the major and establish that the College has a faculty capable of handling it.

They also had to get the endorsement of sister institutions such as the University of Maryland Eastern Shore which has another music department only 12 miles away, and Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore which could later be accepting graduate students from Salisbury State.

Dr. Elliot said that the music departments of Salisbury State and UMES have worked well together. The jazz bands at the two campuses have given a joint concert. With a system of cross registration Salisbury State students can also get credits toward a degree by studying, for instance, jazz improvisation at UMES under John R. Lamkin, well-known trumpeter to Shore jazz fans.

Holiday Art Sale

Artists with regional reputations and international exhibition exposure highlight this season's annual Holiday Art Sale for Scholarships.

The sale is in the College Center's Nanticoke Room on Wednesday and Thursday, December 9 and 10, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Friday, December 11, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Work by students, alumni, faculty and other Art Scholarship Fund supporters including Ron Lambert, Jean Anderton, Beth Fusaro and Kay Ross will be for sale. This will include pottery, paintings, prints, photography, ornaments and other gift selections. Prices range from $1 for handmade Christmas ornaments to several hundred dollars for major art works.

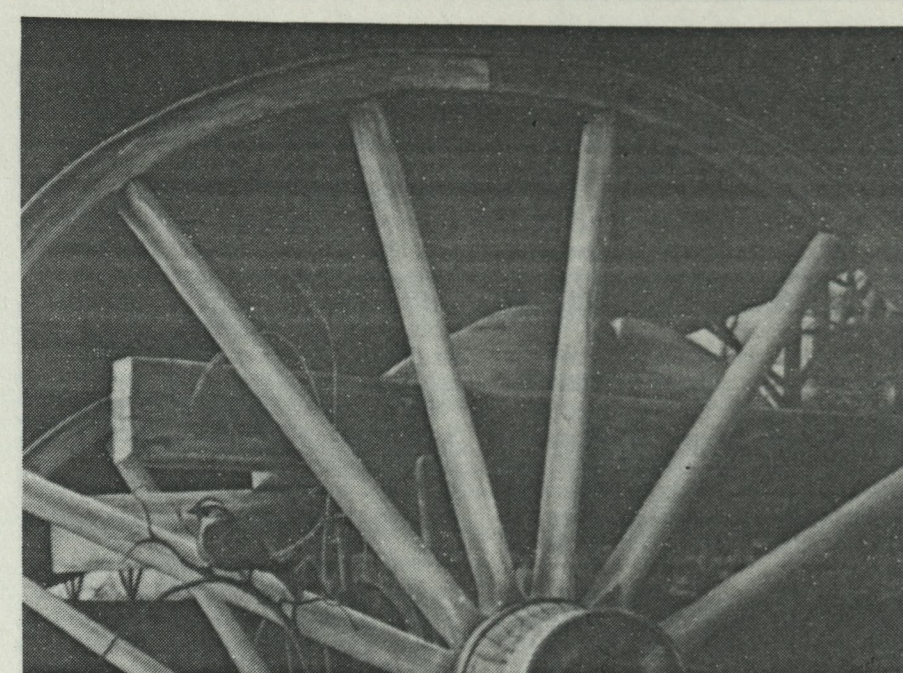

Prominent among new exhibitors this year are Wayne Taylor and Vesna and Joe Dosis.

Taylor, who was born in Tyaskin and raised in Boston, MA, has been called the "Wyeth of the Chesapeake," according to Marie Tator Quillen, exhibit coordinator. A self-described impressionistic painter, he has exhibited at the Peabody Museum of Art in Boston, was selected as the first of 10 American artists to be represented in the famous Ward Foundation Wildlife Art Museum, and is a winner of the World Waterfowl Competition.

He is bringing to the sale a published limited edition of prints. "The prints are made by the same firm that has printed for the Smithsonian Institution and the quality is excellent," said Quillen.

Vesna and Jose Dosis are artists whose work has been exhibited and sold around the world. Originally from Italy, the couple now make their home near Exmore, VA. "Vesna's approach to wildlife art is unlike anyone's, in the unique way she does her oil painting. She uses an explosive technique to create an immediate and dynamic representation of the Eastern Shore. Her husband, an artist and potter, also uses nature for inspiration. "Jose exquisitely represents animal and flora scenes in blues and soft yellows on white stoneware. He works with utilitarian forms such as plates, tiles and cups among others," said Quillen.

The couple have exhibited in Europe, South America, Mexico and Central America. They have had individual as well as collective shows. Her artwork currently is sold in galleries in Chincoteague and Virginia Beach. He exhibits and sells at five major mid-Atlantic craft exhibitions: Richmond and Corzet, VA; Winston Salem, NC; Frederick, MD; and Gettysburg, PA.

Also participating in the sale are SSC alumni, Dan and Rhonda Heinecke, who own "Shore Fire Pottery" in Lewes, DE, and Brad Howard also an alumnus and colleague of the Heineckes. This year Heinecke's Early American cobalt blue crocks with state and city emblems will be featured. A unique display of miniature clay sculpture castles, houses and cottages by Howard also will be on sale.

What is becoming an art sale tradition and generally great fun with patrons, said Quillen, is a selection of door prizes. Over 18 different items will be given to lucky customers. For every $10 worth of purchases a ticket will be placed in the drawing box making the patron eligible for one or more prizes. To be given are gift certificates and specialty items worth $5 to $25 donated by local merchants including City Center Florist, Art Express, the SSC Book Rack, Court Plaza Gallery, Talbot Street Pier, Johnny and Sammy's, English's Restaurants, Baskin Robbins Ice Cream, Ocean City's Sheer Pleasure hair salon, Salisbury Mall Foto Lab, Domino's, LaRoma's, Lombardi's, Ponzetti's, Salisbury Mall Tony's Pizza, the SSC Gulls Nest Snack Bar, Dunkin' Donuts, Thurston's Studio and the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. The drawing for the prizes is Friday, December 11, at 5 p.m.

All donations are tax deductible. "Our goal is to have two scholarships available for fall freshmen Art students," said Quillen. For more information contact the Art Department office at 543-6270 or Quillen at 543-6273.

SSC Athletics: A Balanced Attack precedence over athletics and the locker room.

"Our major mandate," said Lide, "is to continue making academics and a quality educational experience the primary order of business. Athletics is a vital part of our academic mission toward developing the total person, not outside of that mission. We give our student-athletes the opportunity to be students and athletes as well."

"I cannot emphasize enough," continued Lide, "that we demand and hold our teacher/coaches accountable, first and foremost, to a high standard of teaching in the classroom. No matter how good the coaching aspect, teaching and related duties associated with being a good faculty member are weighted heavily in any final analysis."

"We are presently completing an inter-departmental study relative to number of contests for all our programs," added Lide, "length of season for each sport and release time relative to our academic philosophy."

While that study has been pursued, the Athletic Department has seen several significant changes already in Dr. Lide's new administration, including an increase in the overall athletic budget from the previous year.

"With a turnover in coaching for, among others, football," said Lide, additional resources were made available as deemed necessary. The allotment for football, in fact, increased substantially this year from 1986-87. All our programs receive equal proportional consideration, however.

This fall, the College has conference affiliation in the Eastern States Athletic Conference for 11 sports. The other seven, including football are independent of a conference. "The future looms bright," said Lide, "for our football program as a member of a very prestigious conference."

To enhance recruiting efforts, the College has published a new athletic recruiting brochure. Also, recruiting monies are available, in a controlled manner, to assist in efforts to attract quality students.

"Additionally, we now have a full-time Sport Information Director," said Lide. "In the past this has not been the case."

Continued success in both the classroom and the playing field can benefit, said Lide, from private support for the athletic program.

"We welcome financial support of our athletic program," said Lide. "In order that we comply with NCAA standards, and have institutional controls, our department has a priority list of needs generally, and for each sport, which guides the College's fundraising efforts, a list devised by our department. Donations and gifts are encouraged for our general athletic program,

Three Make Presentations

Dr. Kenneth Wilkerson, professor in the Communication Arts Department, recently addressed the Rotary Club in Federalsburg. The topic of Wilkerson's presentation was "The Media and Politics."

Dr. Harry Bashart, chairman of the Political Science Department, recently addressed the Institute of Retired Persons at Devilbiss Hall on campus. Dr. Bashart's topic was the Bicentennial of the Constitution.

Mark Handley, general manager of WSCL radio station, recently addressed the Salisbury Rotary Club at the Elks Club. The topic of Handley's presentation was the new radio station.

All three are part of the Salisbury State College Speaker's Bureau. The Speaker's Bureau offers area organizations several speakers discussing a variety of subjects. There is no charge for the service.

Any civic, service or educational organization desiring a speaker should contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Decker and Greene Participate in Conference

Dr. Wayne Decker and Dr. Benjamin Greene of the Perdue School of Business faculty recently participated in the annual National Conference of the Association of Human Resources Management and Organizational Behavior held in Philadelphia.

Decker presented a paper titled, "Manager-Sex and Rater-Sex Effects Upon Impressions of Managers' Success or Failure." He also chaired a paper session titled, "Fair Employment for Women."

Greene was chairman at a session titled, "End-User Computing and Microcomputer Issues." Prior to the meeting both professors served as reviewers of competitive papers considered for the conference.

Residence Life Conference

Members of the Residence Life staff recently attended a Resident Assistant Conference sponsored by MACHUO (a regional housing association) held at George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

As in attendance were Bryan Black, Nancy Eberhardt, Jeff Giroux, Chris Hall, Caroline Mason, Kris Moore, Kat Prucnal and George Rakis. Area Directors Scott Ranger, Jess Tayloe and Dawn Williams went along as well.

The conference was one day and each participant chose four sessions to attend. Topics included confrontation, programming, motivation, community development, acquaintance/date rape and many more. All agreed that the conference was both fun and a valuable learning experience.

SSC in SWAC Gala

Members of the campus community from the Music and Dance programs performed in the recent Salisbury/Wicomico Arts Council gala, "Song of Salisbury" held at the Sheraton Hotel.

Two students, Eric Forste and Karen Hughes, are members of the Salisbury Symphony string section which played under the baton of Music Department chairman, Dr. Thomas Elliot.

Dance Company director Susan Turner, with students Christine Macabenta, Mary Rebak and Kelli Dial, performed a dance about the Chesapeake Bay. The gala's theme was life on the Eastern Shore.

The entire College Concert Choir with the Salisbury Choral Society sang songs by Casals, Russell and Billings. Dr. Ray Ziegler of the Music faculty directed.

The gala raised money for Arts Council programs.

Soviet Training Discussed

The Military Science Department sponsored a film and question and answer session on the Soviet military training program on December 2 at Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The film, produced by the British Broadcasting Corporation, follows a young Soviet soldier from his selection for military service through completion of training and assignment to a unit.

Following the film, a question and answer session with Major Thomas Hiter, chairman of the department and Captain Thomas Knapp, assistant professor of Military Science, was held. The two discussed differences in American and Soviet training programs as well as Soviet-NATO military equipment.

Music Program Presented

Dr. Ray H. Ziegler, Jr. and Kathy Turner of the Music Department presented a joint musical program recently to the New Century Club of Delmar. This presentation took place at the Masonic Temple in Delmar, DE.

Ziegler and Turner are part of the Salisbury State College Speaker's Bureau. The Speaker's Bureau offers area organizations several speakers discussing a variety of subjects. There is no charge for the service.

Any civic, service or educational organization desiring a speaker should contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Palmer Speaks to Ruritan

William E. Palmer of the Modern Foreign Language and Literature Department at Salisbury State College recently addressed the Rockwalkin Ruritan Club at the Rockwalkin Community Hall in Hebron. The topic of his presentation was his recent pilgrimage to the tomb of St. James in Spain.

Palmer is part of the Salisbury State College Speaker's Bureau. The Speaker's Bureau offers area organizations several speakers discussing a variety of subjects. There is no charge for the service.

Any civic, service or educational organization desiring a speaker should contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

High on the priority list is a Nautilus center and free weight room and a Hall of Fame trophy center in Maggs Gym.

The fundraising organization for athletics at the College is the Sea Gull Club.

"We hope that all our loyal supporters will join this organization if they desire to support us," said Lide, "even though there are other forms of support which we welcome. Presently, two major fundraisers are planned as annual occurrences, with donations going to the general athletic fund."

Those contributions, according to Lide, will help SSC to continue to offer its students one of the premiere Division III programs in the country. Those sentiments are echoed by Dr. Bellavance.

"SSC is 100 percent behind athletics on a Division III level," said Bellavance. "We're looking for the right blend of academics and athletics, and we feel Dr. Lide is the right individual to continue to lead us in that direction. Academics is our first priority at Salisbury State. That does not mean other activities take on third-rate status. We want this institution to be first-rate in all aspects."

Accounting Board Set

An Accounting Advisory Board featuring representatives of many prominent Eastern Shore businesses and accounting firms has been established at The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

"The Board was established," said Doug Marshall, director of the Accounting program at SSC, "to advise and assist the Perdue School in its continued quest for excellence."

"The Accounting Advisory Board members have been selected," continued Marshall, a CPA and associate professor of Accounting, "because of their leadership in the regional and national accounting community. Consequently their experience, expertise and insights will be invaluable in aiding the Perdue School in the development and realization of its goals and objectives."

Board members include: H. William Acker, partner, Price Waterhouse and Company, Baltimore; Theodore Dragich, vice president of finance, the Cambridge Wire Cloth Company, Cambridge; Regina B. Haffner, manager of Rowles and Company, Salisbury; Andy Kim, partner, Andy Kim, C.P.A., Salisbury; Pelham B. Lawrence, vice president of finance, Perdue, Inc., Salisbury; Ronald C. McQuinn, partner, Faw Casson and Company, Salisbury; James Y. Pigg, partner, James Pigg and Company, Salisbury; Edwin A. Rommel III, partner, Twilley and Rommel, Salisbury; Lou E. Satchell, partner, Beatty, Satchell, Evergam and Company, Easton; and Thomas L. Trice IV, partner, C.W. Amos and Company, Salisbury.

At the Board's initial meeting in November, it discussed trends in accounting (local, regional, national and international) and their implications to the Perdue School.

It also discussed development areas and projects the Perdue School is considering that require a significant amount of coordination with the accounting community. Among those was the development of a more formalized internship program defining the responsibilities of the school, the student and the employer.

Board members also talked about development of an annual "Accounting Fair." The fair would be held on the SSC campus and tables or booths would be provided for employers. The fair would allow employers the opportunity to hand out literature, informally meet with students and get an early start on recruiting. It would provide the students with information about accounting opportunities and potential employers.

Consideration was given to the development of a special hands-on course called the "Accounting Practicum." It is envisioned that the course would be team-taught by members of the accounting community and include a certain amount of on-site hands-on experience.

Other areas of interest include: establishment of a Professional Development Program; establishment of a CPE (Continuing Professional Education) program for accountants; establishment of an annual CPA review program; development of a certificate program for those degree holding individuals seeking to take the coursework necessary to sit for the CPA exam; and development of a central library on the SSC campus for research materials, books, periodicals and software.

Children's Theatre

Salisbury State Children's Theatre presented Works in Progress: Tales From Greek Mythology, on November 14 in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Stories in the one-hour performance included the myths of Medusa, Narcissus, Bellerophon, Pegasus and Pandora. The tales were told using narration, sounds and mime. Children also had the opportunity to learn some movement exercises and mime techniques during the hour.

Dental Career Program

The Medical Careers Club is sponsoring a special program on careers in dentistry on Tuesday, December 8, at 3:30 p.m. in Devilbiss, room 110.

Dr. James Swancar, director of Admissions and Recruitment for the University of Maryland Dental School, will be the guest speaker. Dr. Swancar will be providing information about career opportunities in dentistry and about dental schools.

SSC has a special Dual-Degree Program with the University of Maryland Dental School. It allows qualified students to earn a B.S. degree and a D.D.S. degree in seven years instead of the usual eight years. Students in the program can, thereby, reduce not only the amount of time but, also, the overall cost of their education. While all students planning on entering any health career are encouraged to attend this important presentation, all persons interested in learning more about dental careers are invited to attend.

Biology in January

It's getting late so do it now. Register for a Biology course for Winter Term. The Biology Department is offering five courses for January. They are: Biology 101, Fundamentals of Biology; Biology 215, Human Anatomy and Physiology; Biology 216, Human Anatomy and Physiology; Biology 217, Nutrition; and Biology 490, Animal Behavior.

The deadline for registration is Friday, December 18, but don't wait until then. There are enrollment limitations that may close students out of the course of their choice. Registration materials are available from the Registrar's Office and the Office of Graduate and Continuing Education.

Develop Your Literary Taste

Why walk or drive to a local restaurant or fast food joint when you can get a hot, home-cooked lunch right in Holloway Hall?

Beginning Monday, November 23, and continuing on Mondays and Thursdays through December, graduate teaching fellows of the English Department's M.A. in Writing program will be sponsoring "soup, etc." sales.

Chili, soup, cornbread, biscuits and assorted desserts will be sold in the third floor south lounge from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Proceeds will help to pay costs to attend the College Composition and Communication Conference in St. Louis in March.

Legislative Tea

The Salisbury State chapter of the American Association of University Professors and the League of Women Voters of Wicomico County are co-hosting an afternoon tea on Sunday, December 6, in the Social Room of Holloway Hall from 3-5 p.m. for the 37th and 38th Districts' House of Delegates Representatives and State Senators.

An invitation is extended to the College community to come and meet the representatives to Annapolis. This provides a rare opportunity to discuss with them on a one-to-one basis topics of particular concern to the Eastern Shore in general and Salisbury in particular.

There will be a brief presentation by each representative followed by a question and answer session. Come participate in Democracy in action.

Collegium Performance

The College Collegium, under the direction of Dr. Nancy Cooper, presents an "Abendmusik," or "evening music," concert on Tuesday, December 8, at 8 p.m. The concert takes place at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, on the corner of Church and St. Peter's Streets in downtown Salisbury.

"Abendmusik" is a performance of Advent and Christmas music presented in honor of the 350th anniversary of the birth of Dietrich Buxtehude, a German Baroque composer who organized the first "Abendmusik" concerts. A cantata by Buxtehude will be performed with the help of area musicians. Buxtehude's seasonal chorale preludes for organ will be played in alternation with the sung chorales. Other Advent and Christmas music of Charpentier, Gibbons and Balbastre will be performed.

The SSC Collegium is a select group of 20 singers drawn from the College's student body and faculty. Membership is by audition only. The Collegium has performed at the Salisbury Arts Festival, Pemberton Hall's Colonial Fair, the Newtown Festival and the Downtown Association's "Dickens of a Christmas" festival.

The concert is free and open to the public. For further information, contact the Music Department at 543-6385.

The newly established Music major and the fledgling Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, which Dr. Elliot directs, will strengthen each other, he said. He believes that the community orchestra, which is sponsored by the College, will provide an opportunity to perform good music which will help attract students, and that students will add new talent to the orchestra.

Students will be accepted into the degree program only after auditions and periodic evaluation. They can concentrate on performance, music theory and history, composition, arts administration, church music, community music or studio teaching, or set their sights on acceptance to a graduate school.

At the same time, Dr. Elliot stressed, a Music major will be required to have a broad education in other liberal arts courses.

Dr. Elliot came to Salisbury State College from the University of Lowell in Lowell, MA, where he had spent 18 years, first as chairman of the Music Department and then as dean of the College of Music. He holds three degrees in Music from Boston University.

Salisbury State already has a good Music faculty, he said. To fill special needs there are now seven part-time faculty members who come in to teach some of the less common instruments. He expects this number to double in the next three years.

He also hopes to establish a residency program, bringing to the campus accomplished musicians and composers to work with students.

"All things are possible with the approval of the new major," Dr. Elliot said.

Quillen Exhibit

Marie Tator Quillen is exhibiting ceramic sculpture in the national Fulbright Alumni Art Exhibition now through December 9 at the Fine Arts Gallery of Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

A faculty member in the Art Department, she is an alumna of the Fulbright Exchange Program, teaching at the Southport College of Art, England. Her specialty is three-dimensional design in clay.

"I think the orchestra has a great future," Dr. Bowes said. He said he would like to encourage more adults "to pick up their instruments again. It will come back to them quickly," he said.

Dr. Elliot had the orchestra in mind when he first came to Salisbury State College three years ago as the new head of the Music Department. Before that he had been at the University of Lowell in Lowell, MA, for 18 years, first as chairman of the Music Department and then as dean of the College of Music.

In addition to starting the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, he has headed the development of a Music major at the College which won state approval on November 3. The orchestra and the new major can enhance each other, he believes.

The orchestra, Dr. Elliot explained, offers an outlet to musicians who have studied their instruments in school or college and want a chance to perform good music. Music majors will be attracted to a college in a community which offers them a chance to perform.

The community at large has been a good audience, he said. The concerts at Holloway Hall have drawn full or close to full houses each time.

Of its quality, "The second concert was 100 percent better than the first," Dr. Elliot said, "and it continues to improve." A big thing going for it is stability, he said. The original 25 members are all still with it.

"A very essential part of the venture," Dr. Elliot continued, "has been the endorsement of the orchestra by Salisbury State College." The College assures it a home base and a place to perform and the Salisbury State College Foundation provides some financial help along with the Maryland State Arts Council and the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council.

The financial help provides the orchestra with some of the more unusual yet necessary instruments. There are also about six paid player/coaches "to teach and fill out the sections."

What the orchestra lacks and what Dr. Elliot very much wants to add next is sharp.

When he first came to the Eastern Shore from the Boston area three years ago his friends there thought he was coming to "a wilderness," Dr. Elliot said. But he has found that to be very much not the case. "There is a lot of talent here."

Unlike many colleges today "this one is progressing, not regressing," he said. "And here the isolation is an advantage."

Because the people here cannot easily get to a big city to hear one of the major orchestras regularly they are probably more supportive of the community orchestra than they might be otherwise.

The Salisbury Symphony is not yet ready for comparison with an orchestra such as the Annapolis Symphony, he said. But he believes it to be an important addition to this community.

He had a call the other day from a man in Iowa, Dr. Elliot said. The caller had been offered a position in a local industry but he was a musician and did not want to move to a community which did not have an orchestra in which he could participate.

He had been referred to Dr. Elliot for reassurance. The Salisbury Symphony was, in this case, a community asset as significant as the nearby beaches.

His next venture, already on the way, Dr. Elliot said, will be a Youth Orchestra.

The Spirit of Christmas Brassed

"The Spirit of Christmas Brassed," the Annapolis Brass Quintet's traditional holiday performance, will take place on Tuesday, December 15. Beginning at 8 p.m. at Trinity United Methodist Church on N. Division and Broad Street, the concert of secular and sacred holiday favorites is the Brass' most popular performance.

Following the concert there will be a holiday reception for the audience, hosted by the Art Institute and Gallery.

Tickets are $12 or $10 for Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council members and are available by calling the Arts Council at 543-ARTS or by utilizing ticket outlets at John Hanson Savings Bank and all 11 branches of Peninsula Bank during regular lobby hours.

The History Club will hold its annual Christmas Dinner Friday night, December 11, at 7 p.m.

This year's celebration will be at Peaky's Restaurant, Route 13 in Princess Anne. Peaky's has planned a delicious roast-beef dinner, and the History Club has arranged some Baroque music in addition to the traditional carols.

Cost for the evening will be $10 per person. Faculty, students and friends of the College are welcome. Please pay Mrs. Ellen Fykes, in the History Department office (Holloway Hall 380) before 4:00 p.m. Monday, December 7. If you have any questions, call Dr. Tim Miller at 543-6243.

OETAS Meeting

The Institute of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Studies (OETAS), a division of the State of Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, will be on campus on Thursday evening, December 3 to administer challenge examinations for their established training courses.

For information call OETAS in Baltimore, 301-225-6933, or see Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell in the Social Work Department.

Psi Chi Initiations

Psi Chi, the national honor society in Psychology, will induct new members on Friday, December 11, at 3:30 p.m. The initiation will be held in the Social Room at Holloway Hall, after which Dr. Ron Ulm, Psychology professor, will speak on his recent research. All inductees, friends and faculty are invited to attend.

Rubin at Conference

Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, recently spoke at the annual Deans' Institute of the Council of Independent Colleges in Boston on how to promote and strengthen programs which encourage college students to serve the community while they learn.

"Many colleges are now attempting to help students develop habits of voluntarism and good citizenship through participation in curriculum-related service programs," said Rubin. "For instance, a philosophy course in ethics might include a service requirement so that students can understand firsthand the implications of various ethical choices, or a program in English might recommend that all majors participate in a local adult literacy program."

"Maintaining good academic quality and good service quality takes special attention by faculty, students and administrators," added Rubin. She discussed a variety of strategies for assuring this special attention. The goal of the speech was to help administrators, particularly deans, become effective advocates for service-learning.

She also recently spoke at a workshop sponsored by the Mountain and Plains Center for Cooperative Education in Denver. She discussed cooperative implications of experiential learning for students, faculty and administrators.

Phi Alpha Theta Induction

In a candlelight ceremony held in the Social Room of Holloway Hall, 14 students recently were initiated into the international honor society in History, Phi Alpha Theta.

The students, who rank in the top third of their class, are: from Salisbury—Christa Boolukos, Christie Stroup and Richard Webster; Hebron—Stacie Flower; Deal Island—Daniel Zollinger; Hurllock—Joan Harris; Cambridge—Michael Parks; Rhodesdale—Valerie Aaron; Stevensville—Lori Krolicki; Selbyville, DE—Sandra Williams; Ocean View, DE—Kenneth Zack; Crownsville—Heather Fields; Laurel, MD—Emily Pawlikowski; and Manchester—Beverly Welsh.

Phi Alpha Theta has over 650 chapters worldwide and more than 150,000 members. It is the largest of accredited honor societies in the Association of American Honor Societies.

Membership requirements include 12 semester hours in History with a minimum B average in all History courses; a B average in two-thirds of all other coursework; and ranking in the top 35 percent of one's class.

The president of the Eta-Iota Chapter at Salisbury State is Ursula Bono of Rockville. Dr. G. Ray Thompson and Clara L. Small are co-advisors.

Camping Equipment

The Outdoor Adventure Center now gives students, faculty and staff the opportunity to rent various camping equipment (backpacks, tents, stoves, etc.) at reasonable rates. Equipment may be rented for a day, a weekend or longer periods of time.

The center is located in Maggs Gym. Hours of operation are Tuesday and Thursday from 1-2 p.m. and by appointment. Contact Tina Naylor at 548-9537 for more information.

Winter Dance Concert On December 11-13

Jeanette Hillard & David Reed in Putting on the Ritz

A Winter Dance Concert showcasing choreographers opens for three performances at the College on Friday, December 11.

Both students and community dancers will display their choreographic skills, along with Robert Christopher, who teaches at the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center in New York, and Susan Turner, who is SSC Dance Company director while Kathryn Martin is on leave of absence.

Turner has taught at the University of Maryland, College Park, and American University, earning degrees in Dance at both. She performed professionally for two years with Maryland Dance Theatre and for seven years she was a member of Danceteller, a touring modern dance-theatre company now in residence in Philadelphia.

The dancers in the 20-member company represent a variety of disciplines, "from a pre-med football player to a graduate lit major," said Turner. Many are freshmen. A few community members also dance with the students. The disparate group "has been working very hard," said Turner. "I've been really pleased with the company's dedication."

"Attracting male dancers has always been a problem for the program. This year's roster, however, includes two football players and an ROTC cadet. Turner credits recruiting by a student choreographer as well as a growing interest in dance by men. Student choreographers have been allowed more rehearsal freedom this year, she said, and will do pieces ranging from a "slinky, sophisticated Putting on the Ritz" in the style of a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rodgers movie, choreographed by student Jeanette Hillard, to a "strange and funny" piece called Newcleus (sic) that includes "aliens from outer space, old ladies and muscle men, a comment on earthly civilization" said Turner, and choreographed by Joan Martin of Ocean City.

Christopher, who is from Marion Station in Somerset County and who has visited with local dance companies the last few years as guest artist, choreographed two of the dances in the concert. Unexpected Song from the Broadway musical Song and Dance is a "strongly designed piece," said Turner, featuring eight performers. The second, Even Now, is a sad, romantic duet about a past relationship.

Turner is choreographing a number for the whole company, and a solo work. The company piece, I Had a Dream Last Night, is set to music by the German rock group, Tangerine Dream, and Meredith Monk. The solo work which Turner also performs is The Marrow, a tribute to the famous American painter, Georgia O'Keeffe. The Marrow has been performed twice in Washington, D.C., including American University, and at the University of Indiana. It is unusual in that it has no musical accompaniment; instead Turner narrates the piece as she is dancing. The "text" to the dance is based on O'Keeffe's words and many of the choreographed hand positions are from photographs of the painter taken by her husband, Alfred Steiglitz.

Besides Newcleus, Martin, an Ocean City resident who is a production manager for a radio station there and who danced with the company last year, is choreographing Juxtapositioned, a modern piece with "strong and quirky movement," said Turner. Kerry Command, a Nursing major, has also staged an abstract piece, Tiger Tiger, with music by Duran Duran.

The concert is Friday and Saturday, December 11 and 12, at 8 p.m., with a matinee on Sunday, December 13, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission is free to SSC students, faculty and staff. The 80-minute program is suitable for the whole family, said Turner. For reservations and information, call the Dance Company at 543-6353 or the Physical Education Department at 543-6340.

PE Majors Pass Test at Convention

The College was well-represented at the recent Maryland Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (MAHPERD) convention in Ocean City.

The College's Physical Education Majors Society administered approximately 150 fitness tests to participants of the convention. "Our majors did an outstanding job," said advisor Dawn McCrumb. Over 30 SSC Physical Education majors gave tests in six health categories: risk factor survey, body fat percentage, the sub-maximal bike measure, flexibility and strength, and blood pressure screening. "This was by far the most popular exhibit at the convention," McCrumb continued. College professors, public school teachers, county supervisors and Physical Education majors from other institutions all took advantage of the SSC exhibit. "It provided real service. We're extremely proud of their accomplishments."

The MAHPERD convention is held for all Physical Education instructors in the state. Several faculty and students from the SSC Department of Physical Education and Athletics participated, including Dance Company director, Susan Turner, with student members of the company. They attended classes and lectures in jazz, modern and social dance techniques.

The SSC Physical Education Majors Society currently has 40 members and has been active since the beginning of the school year. The Dance company will be presenting its Winter Concert December 11, 12 and 13.

1988-89 Financial Aid Forms

Financial aid packets for the 1988-89 academic year are available in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall 151).

Any student wishing to apply for financial aid, including a Guaranteed Student Loan, should fill out a FAF and mail it to College Scholarship Service in Princeton, NJ. Processing of the forms by the College Scholarship Service takes approximately four weeks.

Outdoor Club's Montreal Ski Trip and Sierra Club Presentation

The Outdoor Club is completing preparations for its Winter Term trip to Montreal for cross-country and downhill skiing January 19 to 29.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge, Quebec, on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill (University) Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on some of the finest slopes in the Laurentians. Prior experience is recommended for downhill but not for cross-country skiers.

The trip includes sightseeing in old Montreal, a two-day side trip (which includes skiing) to the city of Quebec and two banquets. Cost including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while at the McGill Outing Club House is $165. The cost includes the side trip to Quebec with a two night stay in the youth hostel. It does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Can. per day) or lift tickets for downhill skiers. Lift tickets cost on the average $18 Can. per day or lower with group rates. Downhill skis can be rented in Salisbury for the whole trip or by day at the slopes in Canada.

A place on the trip may be guaranteed by giving a non-refundable deposit of $50 to club treasurer, Bryan Green (543-1269). Sign up by meeting directly with Green in the club office in Tawes 138 or by attending a regular club meeting on Wednesday at 6 p.m. in Tawes 118. Sign-ups will continue every Wednesday until all 23 spaces are filled. An important informational meeting for all those making the trip will take place on December 9 and 6 p.m. in Tawes 118. For further information on the Montreal trip, call Bryan, Cathy at 749-1747, or Bill at 546-2607 (evenings).

On December 9, after the ski trip meeting, the Club will host a speaker from the Sierra Club; her topic will be the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge: A Treasure in Peril. This worthwhile presentation, which will include videotape footage, will take place at 7 p.m. in the Chesapeake Room of the College Center. The general public is invited.

15. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.

2. Dress hose.

3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry.

5. No flowers on the academic robe.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.

3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.

4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.

5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.

7. No visible jewelry.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.

2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 20, 1987 in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be The Honorable Paul S. Sarbanes, United States Senator.

3. Caps, gowns, master's hoods, nursing pins and caps will be distributed through the College bookstore beginning December 10, 1987. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bobby pins, etc. will also be available there. Normal bookstore hours Monday through Friday are 8 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Saturday, December 19 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 4 p.m. on that date.

4. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name as it appears on the program. This is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Dr. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

5. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

6. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, December 14, 1987. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas for August and December graduates will be mailed approximately seven weeks after the ceremony.

7. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Danang Rooms 1 and 2 of the Civic Center which are close to the front entrance, in the same corridor as the Midway Room. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective dean.

8. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

9. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Flanders Room of the Civic Center.

10. The School of Nursing will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 19, 1987 at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice-President for Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.

3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

16. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.)

Notice to Faculty

Sarbanes To Speak At Commencement

The Honorable Paul S. Sarbanes, U.S. Senator from Maryland, will be the Commencement speaker at the December graduation ceremony on Sunday, December 20, at 3 p.m. at the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center.

This summer, he served on the Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Opposition.

A three-term member of the House of Representatives, he was first elected on November 3, 1970 to the 92nd Congress. He was subsequently re-elected to the 93rd and 94th Congresses. In 1974, he ran unopposed in the Democratic primary and received 84 percent of the vote in the general election. He served in the Congress as member of the House Judiciary Committee, Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and the Select Committee on House reorganization.

Senator Sarbanes served in the Maryland House of Delegates, from 1966-1970. He was a member of the Judiciary Committee and the Ways and Means Committee. He was vice-chairman of the Baltimore City Delegation for the 1968 session.

Heller, chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers, from 1962-1963. He was legislative draftsman with the Maryland Department of Legislative Reference at the 1961 session of the Maryland General Assembly.

Senator Sarbanes majored in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University, graduating magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa in 1954. He was subsequently a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University, receiving an honors degree in the School of Philosophy, Politics, and Economics in 1957. He then attended Harvard Law School, graduating cum laude in 1960, and worked for a pair of Baltimore law firms until 1970.

New Interdisciplinary Minor

The Department of Physical Education has developed and proposed an Outdoor Education Program. The program will be offered as an interdisciplinary minor. The target date for approval is fall 1988.

Dr. William Lide, chairman of the Physical Education Department, has appointed Associate Professor Dean Burroughs, chairman of the Outdoor Education Minor Adhoc Committee, to explore and develop the program. Burroughs is currently on sabbatical leave and has worked experientially this semester with two notable outdoor organizations, Outward Bound and The National Outdoor Leadership School.

The goal of the Outdoor Education Program is to develop and provide quality outdoor education programming in an academic environment that will foster first-hand learning both in the classroom and in the outdoors.

The focus of the program is two-fold: to prepare the student or the professional field of outdoor education; and to give students the opportunity for non-competitive, personal growth through outdoor education activities.

For more information on this program, please call Lide at 543-6341.

Winter Dance Concert On December 11-13

A Winter Dance Concert showcasing choreographers opens for three performances at the College on Friday, December 11.

Both students and community dancers will display their choreographic skills, along with Robert Christopher, who teaches at the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center in New York, and Susan Turner, who is SSC Dance Company director while Kathryn Martin is on leave of absence.

Turner has taught at the University of Maryland, College Park, and American University, earning degrees in Dance at both. She performed professionally for two years with Maryland Dance Theatre and for seven years she was a member of Danceteller, a touring modern dance-theatre company now in residence in Philadelphia.

The dancers in the 20-member company represent a variety of disciplines, "from a pre-med football player to a graduate lit major," said Turner. Many are freshmen. A few community members also dance with the students. The disparate group "has been working very hard," said Turner. "I've been really pleased with the company's dedication."

"Attracting male dancers has always been a problem for the program. This year's roster, however, includes two football players and an ROTC cadet. Turner credits recruiting by a student choreographer as well as a growing interest in dance by men. Student choreographers have been allowed more rehearsal freedom this year, she said, and will do pieces ranging from a "slinky, sophisticated Putting on the Ritz" in the style of a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rodgers movie, choreographed by student Jeanette Hillard, to a "strange and funny" piece called Newcleus (sic) that includes "aliens from outer space, old ladies and muscle men, a comment on earthly civilization" said Turner, and choreographed by Joan Martin of Ocean City.

Christopher, who is from Marion Station in Somerset County and who has visited with local dance companies the last few years as guest artist, choreographed two of the dances in the concert. Unexpected Song from the Broadway musical Song and Dance is a "strongly designed piece," said Turner, featuring eight performers. The second, Even Now, is a sad, romantic duet

Furnace Town Christmas Service

On Saturday, December 12, a service will take place at Furnace Town in the Old Nazareth Church. This church, built in the 19th century, was originally located on Old Furnace Road near the cut-offs for Princess Anne and Salisbury. The church will be decorated as it would have been in 1840. Kerosene lamps will provide light, and the woodstove will be fired up.

Rev. Herbert Gladden, of Hebron, will conduct the service, bringing in the message as the early 19th century Methodist circuit riders would have done. Music for the service will be played by Ann Kinstler on the (now electrified) pump organ.

Plans are being made for a horse and wagon to bring churchgoers from their cars to the church, adding a real touch of authenticity to this event.

The service will begin at 7:00 p.m. Parking will be along Old Furnace Road, with the walk (or hopefully cart-ride) to the church taking about five minutes. Bring a blanket if it is cold in case you are seated away from the woodstove. There is no admission fee. Collection will be taken during the service and will be given by Furnace Town to a cause of Rev. Gladden's choice.

This is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Dr. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

5. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

8. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

9. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Flanders Room of the Civic Center.

10. The School of Nursing will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 19, 1987 at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

11. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Mall). Please report to Drs. Bozman and Shaffer and line up alphabetically along the outside wall.

facing the front of the building. You will sit in Section 1 on the seating chart.

12. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the Park). Please report to Drs. St. Martin and Basehart and line up alphabetically along the wall next to the main arena, facing the front of the building. You will sit in Section 2 on the seating chart.

13. Bachelor of Arts in Social Work candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the doors and on the side nearest the Park). Report to Drs. St. Martin and Basehart and line up alphabetically behind the B.A. candidates facing the front of the building. You will sit in Section 2 on the seating chart.

14. All master's degree candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors and on the side nearest the Park). Report to Drs. Hedeen or Lewis or Wulff and line up alphabetically in the corridor between the main arena and the Midway Room, facing the main arena. You will sit at the rear (last three rows) of Section 2 on the seating chart. The order of the masters' degrees is M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A. The faculty marshals will place you in line and show you how to place the master's hood over your left arm so you hand it to Dr. Bellavance properly.

15. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry.

5. No flowers on the academic robe.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree

should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice-President for Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.

3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

16. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.)

Notice to Faculty

about a past relationship.

Turner is choreographing a number for the whole company, and a solo work. The company piece, I Had a Dream Last Night, is set to music by the German rock group, Tangerine Dream, and Meredith Monk. The solo work which Turner also performs is The Marrow, a tribute to the famous American painter, Georgia O'Keeffe. The Marrow has been performed twice in Washington, D.C., including American University, and at the University of Indiana. It is unusual in that it has no musical accompaniment; instead Turner narrates the piece as she is dancing. The "text" to the dance is based on O'Keeffe's words and many of the choreographed hand positions are from photographs of the painter taken by her husband, Alfred Steiglitz.

Besides Newcleus, Martin, an Ocean City resident who is a production manager for a radio station there and who danced with the company last year, is choreographing Juxtapositioned, a modern piece with "strong and quirky movement," said Turner. Kerrie Command, a Nursing major, has also staged an abstract piece, Tiger Tiger, with music by Duran Duran.

The concert is Friday and Saturday, December 11 and 12, at 8 p.m., with a matinee on Sunday, December 13, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission is free to SSC students, faculty and staff. The 80-minute program is suitable for the whole family, said Turner. For reservations and information, call the Dance Company at 543-6353 or the Physical Education Department at 543-6340.

VOL. IX NO. 15

Public Invited To Commencement Exercises

Commencement exercises for 251 graduates will be held on Sunday, December 20, at 3 p.m. at the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center.

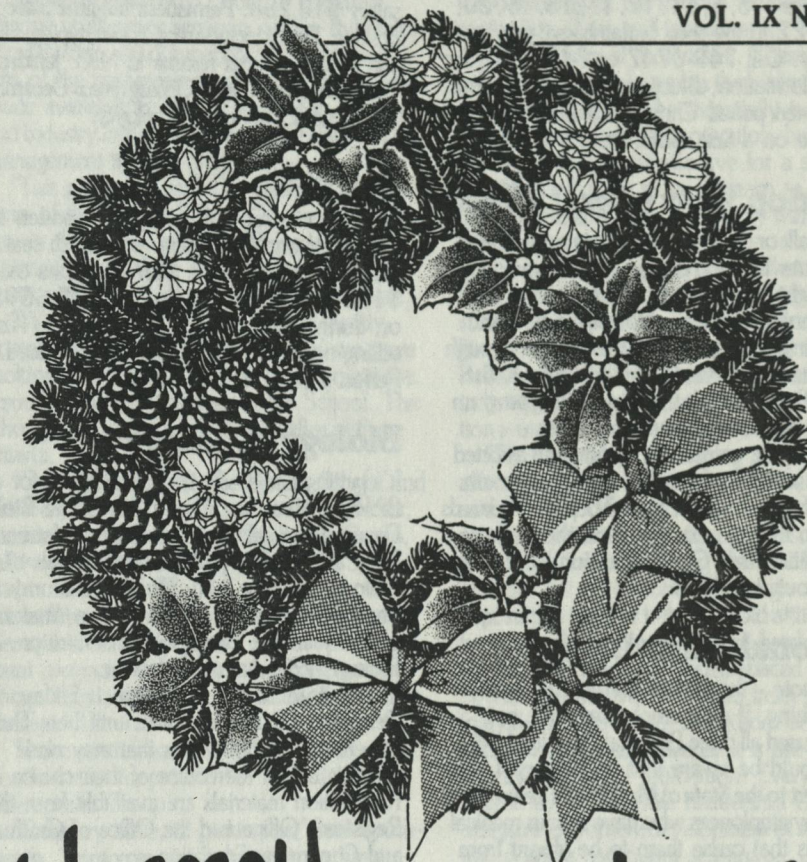

The Honorable Paul S. Sarbanes, U.S. Senator from Maryland, will be the Commencement speaker. The public is invited; there is no admission charge.

The December Commencement is the first fall semester graduation ceremony since 1979. Not originally part of the 1987-88 academic calendar, the ceremony was scheduled after August and December graduates requested the mid-academic year commencement.

The College will graduate 206 students with undergraduate degrees: 114 will earn the Bachelor of Science degree; 86 will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree; and six will be awarded the Bachelor of Art in Social Work degree.

Another 45 students will receive master's degrees: 31 will receive the Master of Education degree; eight will receive the Master of Business Administration degree; five will earn the Master of Arts degree; and one student will receive the Master of Arts with major in Nursing degree.

See page 5 for more details on Commencement. For further information on Sunday's ceremony, contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

American Medical Association Accredits SSC Med Tech Program

The College Medical Technology Program of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences was recently notified by the American Medical Association (AMA) that it had been granted full accreditation.

Evaluation of programs is conducted by an auxiliary agency, the National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Sciences (NAACLS), which sets rigorous standards that all Med-Tech programs must meet or exceed. These standards include requirements for adequate laboratory and classroom space and materials; exemplary college support services for students; and faculty experienced in the laboratory sciences and educational methods.

In September the Med-Tech Program faculty submitted an extensive written document to NAACLS for critical review. Following approval of the document, the agency sent a team of experts to the College to evaluate all aspects of the program on site.

These surveyors favorably reported their findings to the Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation of the AMA which subsequently assessed all reports.

At its October meeting, this committee recommended to the AMA that the Med-Tech program be granted continuing, unqualified accreditation for a period of five years. This marks the first time in the history of the Med-Tech program that the accrediting agency found no areas needing improvement. Indeed, on the national level it is extremely rare that a program is granted unqualified approval.

For more information, call the SSC School of Nursing and Health Science at (301) 543-6401.

'Leadership Through Attitude Change' Is New Business School Program

A unique co-venture involving the Chesapeake Leadership Group of Easton and The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business allows mid-level managers on Delmarva the opportunity to learn and keep abreast of executive development skills and never leave the peninsula.

In conjunction with the Perdue School, the Chesapeake Leadership Group is presently offering multi-week seminars on the dynamics of motivation and of supervision. Those are but two of the numerous programs which will be made available in coming months to business and industry leaders in the area to enhance their management training programs.

"This program," said Dr. Timothy Mescon, dean of the Perdue School, "is comparable to any in the U.S. It's mid-level management oriented, targeted for the size and type of businesses that operate on the Eastern Shore."

"We wanted to hook up with a quality operation," continued Mescon, "and we were looking for someone local to complement the resources we have at the Perdue School. The Chesapeake Group more than satisfies all these criteria."

"Our affiliation with the Perdue School and Salisbury State College," said Jonathan West, president of the Chesapeake Leadership Group, "allows us to service more people on the Shore and in Salisbury. We feel very strongly about this collaborative effort between the Chesapeake Group and Salisbury State. If executive development programs are going to be done on the Shore, they should be done at Salisbury State College."

Those sentiments were echoed by Nate Southworth, vice president of Marketing for the Chesapeake Group.

"Salisbury State, in picking us," said Southworth, "reinforces our belief that we have a proven track record and offer a quality product."

West describes the Chesapeake Group's curriculum as supervisory management development programs that teach techniques and skills, not theory.

"The programs and services marketed by Chesapeake Leadership Group" said West, "provide a vehicle that can help people realize more of their potential by setting and reaching personal goals according to their own plans and abilities. We approach the task of preparing people to meet the challenge of leadership through attitude change. Our programs inform, motivate and inspire participants and encourage them to identify and achieve their personal goals by experiencing measurable growth in those areas important to them.

"Because motivation serves as a catalyst through which an individual may accomplish goals," continued West, "it is important to gain understanding of the various methods of motivation. Fear and incentive are the most common forms of motivation. These are used in homes, in schools, and in the business world and have proven to be essentially temporary and self-defeating. Fear motivation, based upon punishment, may be effective for a short time, but those who are its target learn to ignore its pressure, rebel against it, or simply walk away from it."

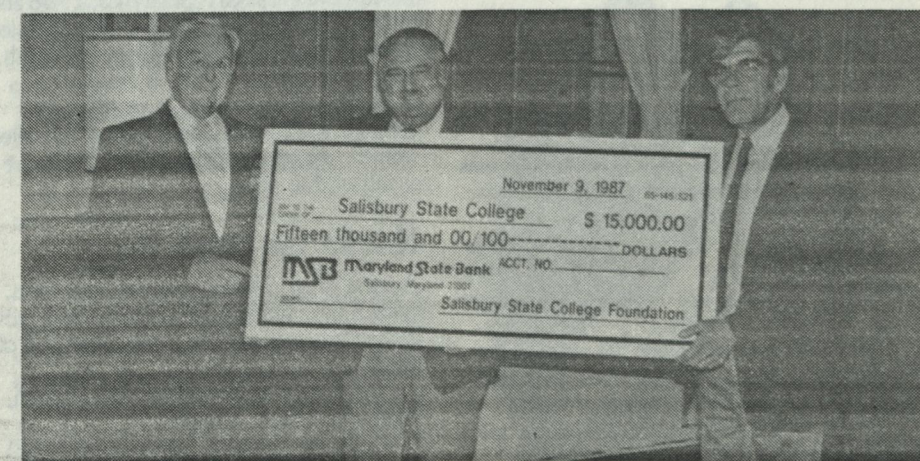

"Incentive motivation," said West, "while based upon reward and appetite relies for its effectiveness upon the promise of a prize of some kind in return for a certain amount of effort. Because the concrete needs and desires of individuals change constantly, incentive motivation is unstable and its results are unpredictable."

"The method of motivating people by affecting a positive change in their attitudes," said West, "does not depend upon outside pressure or temporary attractiveness, and ultimately results in lasting change. Because attitudes are habits formed through repeated exposure to ideas or behavior, old attitudes can be changed by using the same fundamental process which formed them, spaced repetition."

"Attitude motivation comes from within an individual," said West, "and is born of intimate personal desires and needs; it is the most effective means of motivation. Every program offered by Chesapeake Leadership Group is designed to promote development of an expanding, positive participant self-image. Clients are encouraged to recognize and appreciate their strengths; to acknowledge their personal value; and to view their environments and opportunities in light of expanding beliefs and new positive attitudes."

"The overall goal of Chesapeake Leadership Group," said West, "is to assist clients in achieving their greatest potential in all areas of life. Our methods are practical and have been demonstrated to be workable and successful."

For more information, on the various management programs available, call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

15. Dress Code
This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.

2. Dress hose.

3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry.

5. No flowers on the academic robe.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.

3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.

4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.

5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.

7. No visible jewelry.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.

2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree

should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice-President for Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.

3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

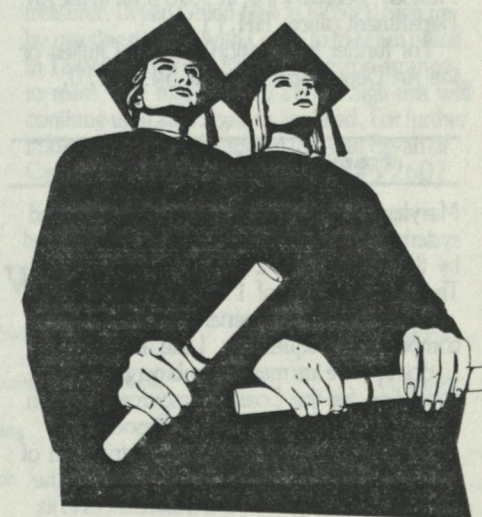

16. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.)

Notice to Faculty

A Holiday Thanks from the Art Department

"A grateful thank you from the Art Department to all those who participated in this year's Christmas Art Sale for Scholarships," said art sale coordinator, Marie Tator Quillen. "It's the most successful art sale we've had, both for money and attendance. Not only the campus but the greater community supported us. Because of it, over $1,000 will be going to the Art Department Scholarship Fund."

"We will be able to give a minimum of two art scholarships to incoming freshmen or art transfer students," she continued. "I particularly want to thank the SSC students who gave not only of their art work, but of their time. Everyone—media, artists, participants, the public—has been generous."

In addition to the sale scholarships, a contributor from the community has donated $500 for another scholarship for incoming BFA students.

Scholarships are to be based on academic and artistic excellence. Application deadline and portfolio entry for 1988 students will be on Monday, February 15, at 3:30 p.m. in the Art Department office, HH 111.

Maryland's tidal wetlands. The computerized system will replace a mapping system developed by the state in 1972 for the enforcement of The Wetlands Act of 1970.

With satellite and aerial photography and computer techniques, Dr. Lade and his associates here are mapping submerged aquatic vegetation for the Coastal Resources Division of the Department of Natural Resources.

They also are looking at the distribution of a marsh grass called phragmites to gauge the impact of spraying and other disturbances to its presence along the Bay.

A contract with the Maryland Historical Trust calls for computer software for mapping state archaeological sites on land and underwater in the Chesapeake Bay and tributaries.

Altogether the College is working on $670,000 worth of contracts for the state.

No matter how hard anybody tried, nobody could stop SSC's women's basketball team this weekend. Gull Classic: The Feathers Flew

By Barry Packer

When speaking of college basketball's greatest memories, it probably won't be remembered in the same thought as Lorenzo Charles's game-winning shot in the 1983 Championship to beat Houston 54-52. Nor will it be talked about in the same breath as Keith Smart's game-winning shot from the 1987 championship game in which Indiana beat Syracuse by one.

Yet, for Salisbury State basketball fans, the name Phyllis Coleman (Snow Hill-Snow Hill HS) ranks right up there with Charles and Smart.

Take it back to Saturday night, for the championship game in the women's bracket of the Gull Classic. After being down to Marymount by nine at the half, the Gulls come out in impressive fashion and went on a 15-2 run to take a 47-43 lead with 15 minutes to play. After it being nip and tuck for a while, the Gulls seemingly put the Saints away, building the lead to 75-68 with 1:50 left.

With 11 seconds, the Saints had whittled the lead to two at 77-75. With 10 seconds left, Marymount's Debbie Clise (Cumberland-Fort Hill, HS), put up a shot that went in off of glass. In an effort to draw the offensive foul on a charge, Coleman, instead fouled Clise to send the 5'7" senior to the line, with a chance to give the Saints a one-point lead.

However, Clise missed the shot. Guard, Sandy Jankevicius (Westminster-South Carroll HS) grabbed the rebound for Salisbury and fed an outlet pass on the right side to guard Diane Bickford (Frederick-Frederick, HS). Bickford, in turn, fed it back across to Jankevicius, who brought it up over the time line and fed it to Coleman. From 20 feet out, and the clock reading 0:01 left in the game, Coleman reached back and brought down rain, as the high arching shot found its way through the hoop, touching nothing but net, and hitting the floor as time expired.

Coleman's dramatic chain of events was just one of a series which highlighted the 12th annual Gull Classic held this past weekend at the College, in which the Gulls took the women's title on the shot by Coleman, while the men's championship went to Eastern College, over Salisbury State, 87-66 in the title bout.

The event started at 3 p.m. Friday. By the time the smoke had cleared at 11:30 p.m. that night, Salisbury's women had taken care of Eastern, while Marymount set up the Championship match by beating Spring Garden. In the men's bracket, SSC held on to defeat Spring Garden, while Eastern handled Ferrum.

The SSC-Spring Garden game was a heart-stopper. Freshman Silas Blanchard (Philadelphia-Bishop McDevitt HS) put Spring Garden on the board first. That was followed by a basket by Salisbury's All-Everything, freshman Andre Foreman (Berlin-Stephen Decatur HS), who to no one's surprise was voted to the All-Tournament Team.

The Gulls, on the strength of Foreman's shooting and that of Rick Sheets (Claymont-Archmere HS) to go along with quality rebounding by Foreman and center Dave Jordan (Wilmington-Archmere HS), gave the Gulls a 39-35 halftime lead.

The score would go one way and then the other in the second half. With 2:28 left, Foreman put home an offensive rebound, to tie the score at 66. All-Tournament selection Dave Duda (Norristown-Bishop Kendrick HS) then put the visitors up by a deuce. However, those would be the last points the Bobcats would score as the Gulls turned to Foreman down the stretch, for a hoop and a pair of foul shots to set up the Saturday match-ups with Eastern's Golden Eagles.

For the Gulls, however, 19 points and 12 rebounds for Foreman, to go along with 13 and eight from Jordan just wasn't enough on Saturday. Along with the fact that senior guard Sheets got hurt, and that Eastern's Chris McCarron and Arnold Johnson were too much, the birds beat the Gulls, 87-66 for the men's gold.

And, probably everything that Phyllis Coleman has been touching has turned to gold as well.

Eastern Shore Epilepsy Association Accredited

The Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore (EAES) has been awarded reaccreditation for a two-year period by The Accreditation Council on Services to People with Developmental Disabilities (ACDD). Mike Carbone is EAES executive director.

To attain accreditation, an agency must be found to be in substantial compliance with 794 stringent requirements during a rigorous survey conducted by professional surveyors who observe all aspects of an agency's programs and services, review client records and interview clients, staff and members of the public. The accreditation survey of EAES was conducted October 1-2.

Mary C. Cerreto, chief executive officer of the Council, stated that "participation in the accreditation process reflects a clear commitment to the provision of services of quality the staff and administration of the Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore have earned The Council's respect and appreciation for that commitment."

Cleary Exhibits In Juried Shows

John Cleary, who teaches drawing and painting in the Art Department at the College has exhibited in two juried shows in Baltimore this year.

A large painting 5'x8' and a smaller painting 22"x30" were selected by a jury consisting of C. Kelly of the Maryland State Arts Council, J. Winslow of Catholic University and R. Hanson of the F. Bader Gallery. This show was arranged for the Life of Maryland Gallery. The other juried show was a part of the Artscape Festival. Dan Dudrow of the Maryland Institute, College of Art, selected a large drawing (55"x42") in mixed media for display.

In 1986 a painting (56"x72") in mixed media by Cleary was selected for the 50th anniversary exhibition at the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, OH. Serving on the jury were D. Christensen, a painter, T. Henson, the curator of Contemporary Art of the Cleveland Museum of Art, and Dr. O. Winsand of Carnegie-Mellon University. Along with the 68 juried works, selected from nearly 3000 submitted entries, were works by artists A. Held, W. Dekooning, L. Rivers, A. Martin and many others.

In 1985, at the College of the Mainland, TX, a small pastel, also shown by Cleary at MAP in Baltimore, was exhibited. Pat Stein a nationally recognized artist, selected art for the show. La Grange, GA, was the site of another juried show. Here, Roy Slade, president and director of the Cranbrook Academy of Art and Art Museum in Michigan selected a mixed media piece by Cleary to be included in this annual exhibit.

That year for a juried show titled Galaxy in Norfolk, VA, Lisa Lyons chose another Cleary mixed media piece. Juror Lyons was formerly a curator at the Walker Arts Center and is presently director of the Museum Fund in New York City. Ed Kern of the Rosa Esman Gallery in New York City served as juror for the annual juried show at the Academy of the Arts in Easton, MD. In this show a mixed media piece from the same series as the previous works by Cleary, was shown.

During 1984 he exhibited 14 shows. They varied from juried to one-person, as well as in format. The juried exhibits were held in North Carolina, Massachusetts, West Virginia, New York, Texas, Kansas and Maryland. Some of the jurors involved were: Howard Fox, associate curator, Hirshhorn Museum; George Neubert, director of the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery; Gibbs Milliken of the University of Texas; Ivan Karp of the O.K. Harris Gallery; Grace Glueck of The New York Times and Michael Monroe, curator of the National Museum of American Art.

During that same year the state of Washington purchased a pastel by Cleary for its program of art for public buildings.

VOL. IX NO. 16

Bozman Is First Riall Professor

On the eve of becoming a university, Salisbury State College has created its first named professorship. Dr. Maurice Bozman, a senior faculty member and leader in Eastern Shore educational circles, has been appointed the first Pauline Riall Professor of Education. His duties include organizing what will be the best endowed lecture series in the 62-year history of the College.

For 27 years, nearly half the life of the institution, Bozman has been a guiding presence in the teaching of both Eastern Shore children and their teachers.

"It seems appropriate that our first named professorship at the College is in Education recalling (our origin as) Salisbury Normal School," said Dr. Keith Conners, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies. "And that it go to Dr. Bozman, who for so long has represented what is best in the school: a very warm, caring, gracious man—a gentleman in the truest sense of the word."

"He will be a steward to the E. Pauline Riall bequests," Conners continued, which are significant in the school's attempts to nurture excellence.

Riall, for 40 years a teacher, then principal of the Salisbury State Demonstration School—a laboratory for elementary teaching and innovation on campus—bequeathed over $250,000 to the School of Education and Professional Studies. A major portion of the bequest will fund a lecture series which is to be inaugurated during the 1988-89 academic year. "This series will bring some of the finest minds and most exciting personalities of our generation to Salisbury," said SSC President, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance. "We want it to be done in a first class manner," added Bozman.

Besides organizing the lecture series, Bozman is co-ordinating a gift to an outstanding Education graduate each year, to be announced at spring commencement. The award is from the interest on $50,000, a second Riall bequest.

Bozman met the late principal when he was a student at Salisbury Teachers College from 1952-56. Following graduation he taught in the school system of his native Somerset County and in 1960, Riall, impressed by what she had seen and heard, invited him to teach fifth grade at the demonstration school.

Bozman joined the faculty of the College's Education Department in 1964, where his first officemate was Dr. Nayland Page, now chair of the History Department. Page later served as academic dean and acting president of the College. "Maurice's greatest asset for me was his ability to look at a problem long range, to see it through—see the net result." His advice "saved me from a lot of embarrassing situations, as acting president and dean," Page said.

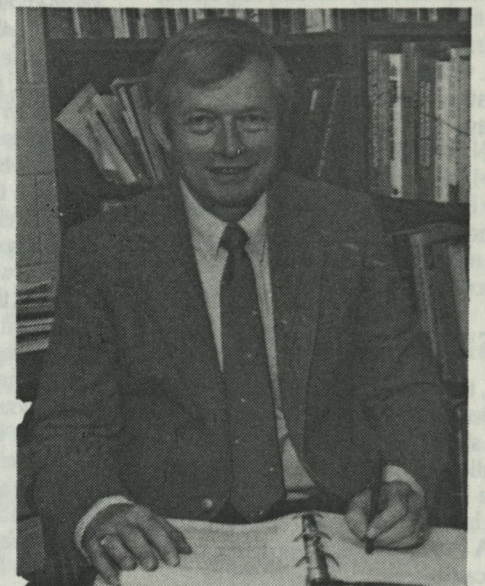

"He also has a shrewd eye for property. He insisted that I buy my first house, practically pushing me to the bank. He was right. It was an investment I've never regretted."

This practicality translated into extremely efficient administration of the Education Department when Bozman became chair in 1975, a position he held for 12 years.

As an administrator and professor at SSC and the University of Maryland, College Park, where he earned his doctorate, Bozman has supervised an estimated 3,000 future teachers and principals in methods and student teaching programs.

"He literally knows everyone in the educational establishment of the Eastern Shore," said Conners.

As well as conducting countless workshops, Bozman has served on a "tremendous number" of committees, including several important ones at the state level, according to Page and others. And Bozman never equates professionalism with a fee, added Sheldon Larmore, director of Curriculum and Special Services for the Wicomico County Board of Education. "He gives of himself willingly and freely." Named an Outstanding Educator in America, Bozman is currently a key member of the Eastern Shore Teacher Effectiveness Network (TEN), a nationally recognized program promoting teaching excellence.

Perhaps the most evocative compliment for the Education professor is from Mrs. Joana Donovan, principal of Pinehurst Elementary School and a 1968 SSC graduate. One day in a Social Studies Methods course, Bozman divided her class into groups and gave them two coins. He told them to deduce from the coins

Prysock to Perform

Arthur Prysock, a 1987 Grammy nominee for Best Jazz Vocal Performance, Male Soloist, for his song, "This Guy's in Love with You," performs in a free concert on Monday, February 15, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The concert is sponsored by the Black Student Union and the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

During his prolific 32-year recording career, romantic crooner Prysock was heard primarily in the company of big bands or string sections. On his more than 65 albums, mostly for the Old Town Label, Prysock found his deep, velvety tones cushioned with violin or brass. His tender music has been a staple of jazz radio in the wee hours of the morning-of cheek to cheek dancing in smoke-filled cocktail lounges.

Since signing with Milestone Records last year, nothing has changed in the time-honored Prysock tradition of tender torch ballads and an occasional blues, except that, for the first time, thanks to producer Bob Porter, the singer has been able to present his distinctive bass-baritone pipes in the distinguished company of

Army Field Band Here

The United States Army Field Band and Soldiers Chorus of Washington, D.C., brings its varied repertoire to the College for an admission-free concert on Tuesday, February 16, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The internationally famous Army Field Band is the official touring musical representative of the United States Army. As a distinguished member of Congress aptly described the band, "It is a great instrument for stirring patriotic emotions."

The band is under the operational control of the Army's Chief of Public Affairs at the Pentagon. Known as the "Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the Field Band travels thousands of miles each year on at least two major concert tours and is considered by music critics to be one of the most distinctive musical organizations now appearing before the public.

Colonel William E. Clark is the band's present commander and conductor. He is the sixth director in the Field Band's history.

Sidran on Record

"Jazz musicians are among the most interesting philosophers and commentators on the contemporary scene," said Ben Sidran, host of National Public Radio's SIDRAN ON RECORD.

"People in jazz really are like canaries down in the coal mines: If you want to know about the cultural atmosphere, they not only sing a pretty song, but they also tell a stark truth."

Those truths are central to SIDRAN ON RECORD, which began a new season on NPR member station WSCL-FM on 89.5 at 8 p.m. on Saturdays.

SIDRAN ON RECORD is a production of WHAT-FM/Madison, WI. The series is made possible by Rayovac, WI Public Radio Association, Dane County Cultural Affairs Commission, NPR member stations and NPR's Arts and Performance Fund.

New Show on WSCL

A year ago, the thought of getting onstage would have terrified Noah Adams. He was once so struck with stage fright that he would turn down such invitations.

Now he is hosting the radio variety show that will be broadcast nationally in the slot left open by "A Prairie Home Companion," which was broadcast live on WSCL-FM 89.5, Saturday nights from 6-8 p.m. "A Prairie Home Companion" had to be canceled after its host Garrison Keillor resigned in July. Adams, formally the anchor of National Public Radio's "All Things Considered" news program has been looking forward to his new job ever since he accepted Minnesota Public Radio's offer to do the new program.

Adams noted that the people at MPR who are working with him on the show are very supportive. "The parameters basically were that it be intelligent and entertaining," he said. "No one's ever said to me, 'You can't put heavy metal music on the program.'"

But he doesn't want to. There will be more jazz, however. For example, the house band is a five piece jazz ensemble that has more of an uptown sort of sound than most of the jazz on the Prairie Home Companion.

And there won't be the humor derived from commercials, as there was before.

"Humor becomes the biggest challenge of the program," Adams said. "Mostly, what we're doing is not trying very hard."

"We're not trying to do things that are different, we're just trying to do what we want to do," Adams said. He says he's always on the lookout for material for the show, which is a great part of the job.

And he is adamant that the show shouldn't be compared with Garrison Keillor's program.

"The only sure-fire way to fail is to try to imitate the program that came before. We're just going to be doing an ordinary radio program that will be enjoyable because it's alive. And if it has one-tenth of the audience that 'A Prairie Home Companion' did, I'll be happy."

WSCL started broadcasting "Good Evening" the first week in January. The program is a half-hour shorter than "A Prairie Home Companion" but is broadcast at the same time, 6 p.m., every Saturday. The program is underwritten by 2nd National Federal Savings Bank.

The performance will feature all Russian music from well-known composers like Stravinski to lesser-known composers such as Lubovsky. Another Russian attraction that will be featured in Salisbury during the month of February is a photographic exhibit entitled "Through the Eyes of a Child." The exhibit, made available by the Holyearth Foundation and sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, will be shown only on February 10 and 11 at the Wicomico County Free Library. The exhibit is a photographic exhibit by Russian children depicting their views of their lives. The exhibit is free and may be viewed during regular library hours.

Quilt Show, Sale

Furnace Town Foundation, Inc. is looking for quilters who would like to participate in the second biennial Juried Quilt Show and Sale. The show will be held on October 1 and is a feature of Furnace Town's 12th annual Fall Festival.

The show, begun in 1986, attracts quilters and visitors from throughout the Peninsula and beyond. Once again, over $300 in cash and prizes will be awarded. This year, quilt expert Sallie Matthews will give a slide lecture on Amish quilts, as well as showing many of her own prize-winning quilts.

Quilters are invited to prepare items for show and/or sale. Quilts will be lovingly and attractively displayed in the Old Nazareth Church at Furnace Town. Following judging and presentations, the quilts will be on display for both days of the festival. The quilter sets the selling price and retains the full amount of items sold.

Choral Groups to Present Carmina Burana

The SSC Concert Choir along with The Salisbury Choral Society, the Easton Choral Arts Society of the Academy of the Arts and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra will perform Carl Orff's Carmina Burana on May 20 and 21. The first performance will be held in Holloway Hall. The second will be held in Easton.

The work was recently played on radio WQXR in New York as part of its year-end series on the all-time 100 most popular classical works. Written in 1937, Carmina Burana is based on a manuscript found in a Bavarian Monastery in 1803. The texts, in Latin, Middle-High German and Old French, were written by wandering scholars, vagabond poets and monks.

Topics range from springtime to love. There is also a section of drinking songs (In Taberna). Orff designates the piece: "Profane songs for singers and vocal chorus with instruments and magical pictures." The original manuscript contains approximately 200 songs, sacred and secular. Orff chose 24 of these texts to set to music. His style preserves the feel of Medieval times while incorporating distinctive 20th century idioms. The prelude, Fortune, Empress of the World, is sung by the victims of Fortune's ruthless wheel. The sections which follow are devoted to the joys of spring, the pleasures of the tavern and the gaming tables, the delights of love.

The work is scored for soprano, baritone, and very high tenor solos, five other male solists, semichorus, chorus and children's choir all accompanied by a huge orchestra, including a vast percussion section and two pianos.

Carmina Burana is energetic, exciting, tender. William Mann, musicologist, said, "Because Orff is eclectic in his musical sources, he can bring together the lovers of Beethoven, folksong and rock and roll. The composer exhilarates us with his throbbing rhythms and battering-ram tunes; but when he reaches his love scene, no human heart is likely to remain unmoved."

The musical organizations are still looking for choral singers to participate in this event. All voice parts are welcome. Students may receive credit by taking Music 100. Rehearsals are held in the Music Annex on Sunday afternoons from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. Students who cannot meet at that time meet on Thursdays from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the annex. For more information, contact Dr. Ray Zeigler at 543-6385 or at home, 651-9359.

Hosted by John Hockenberry, reporter and producer for National Public Radio news magazines, SOUNDPRINT investigates, illuminates, reflects and celebrates subjects and places that make up the national experience. Each weekly program examines one subject in depth, with the story told when possible non-fiction radio documentary, including investigative reports, soundscapes, portraits and sound essays.

David Rodgers, Gala Chairman

Gala is April 16

The College Foundation's ninth annual Gala will be held on Saturday evening, April 16, in the Powell Dining Hall.

This year's Gala features a dinner/dance, according to David F. Rodgers, president of First Shore Federal Savings and Loan, who is this year's chairman. The Don Roberts Orchestra will play music from the '40s to the '80s following a dinner of chicken breast stuffed with crab meat.

The monies raised from the $125-a-couple event go to the Salisbury State College Foundation, born 15 years ago out of a need to supplement the College's financial needs with private support. That need has become even more apparent today when State support has fallen below 45 percent of the institution's total annual budget.

In many areas the Foundation, whose assets have increased from $50,000 during its first year of existence to $1.3 million in 1987, has succeeded filling the void left by the public sector. It has provided Salisbury State with funds for scholarships, research grants, program expansion, library acquisitions, field trips, lectureships and student internships. In short, as a private, nonprofit mechanism through which gifts can be solicited, received, managed and administered for the benefit of the College, the Foundation has played an integral role in Salisbury State's growth in strength and stature over the past 15 years.

The Foundation's goals over the next several years are even more ambitious. It anticipates funding: college enhancement projects like an alumni house, art gallery, campus beautification and a Delmarva Archives project; capital improvements for the renovation of the schools of Science, Business and Nursing; the visual and performing arts, a film series, a visiting scholars and lecture series and a theatre; special academic needs such as a small business computer training lab, a biology nature study area, a mobile rural health lab, a marine lab and distinguished teaching awards; and the funding of additional scholarships, internships, library acquisitions and other special projects.

For more information on the Salisbury State College Foundation or ticket information for the Gala, call the Office of Research and Development at (301) 543-6175.

Christa McAuliffe Scholarship

The Christa McAuliffe Scholarship Foundation has established an endowment for teacher education in the state of Maryland. To honor and recognize the ideals of teacher-astronaut Christa McAuliffe, the foundation annually provides scholarships for aspiring teachers. Awards will be made from proceeds of the endowment in June.

Applicants must be state residents who are graduating high school seniors or college students currently enrolled in an accredited program leading to teacher certification in a Maryland college or university. The criteria for selection includes evidence of a commitment to the teaching profession as demonstrated by personal essays, letters of recommendation and record of life experiences, intellectual ability as determined by academic performance, and financial need. Each awardee must agree to teach one year in Maryland public schools for each scholarship grant received. Applicants must be postmarked by March 1.

Educators, students and private citizens throughout the state have made this endowment possible through their donations to the Christa McAuliffe Scholarship Fund. The Board of Trustees is committed to providing quality education in Maryland by attracting qualified young people to the teaching profession.

Applications are available in the Financial Aid Office or call 543-6165.

Arts Scholarship Deadline

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council announces to all high school seniors and college freshmen, sophomores and juniors that February 26 is the deadline for applications for the Herbert D. Brent Scholarship Awards.

Established in memory of the late Herbert D. Brent, a leading arts supporter in the community, these scholarship awards are made to students enrolled in formal study leading to a certificate or degree in the fine, media or performing arts. Awards of up to $500 will be made to a maximum of three young artists. Scholarships are limited to use for tuition and fees for the 1988-89 academic year.

Applications must be received by the Arts Council office, P.O. Box 884, Salisbury, Maryland 21801, no later than February 26 (no late entries will be accepted). All applicants will be interviewed by the Arts Council Scholarship Committee on Saturday, March 19. Artists must submit a portfolio and performers must audition for the committee at the time of the interview. Scholarship recipients will be announced in May.

For more information or to obtain an application, call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

McKenzie Demonstration

Dr. Charles R. McKenzie, associate professor of Physical Science, provided first through sixth graders in Seaford with a "Robotics" demonstration recently.

On January 22 at the Seaford Public Library, McKenzie, accompanied by a small robot, explained what robots are and how they work for man in an informal presentation to the elementary school children.

McKenzie received his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. from Southern Illinois University. He has been in the Physical Science Department at SSC since the fall of 1984.

Gifted Student Course

Dr. Natalie Hopson, assistant professor of Psychology, will team-teach a special seminar this spring entitled "The Highly Able Student."

Mrs. Sharon Peterman, an experienced public school teacher of gifted and talented students, will collaborate on the course, which is offered for three graduate credits on Tuesdays from 5-8 p.m. beginning February 3 (in-person registration) in the Office of Graduate Studies at the College, 543-6170.

According to John Wolinski, assistant dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies, the course has been developed because of the extraordinary interest among parents, school boards and professional educators in the unique needs of highly able students.

"When we asked local school leaders what we should be featuring in our graduate courses," said Wolinski, "they said two things right off the bat: educating the highly able student and the middle school concept. So we've developed courses in both areas for the spring semester."

In addition to the Hopson-Peterman joint effort, Dr. Evelyn Holman, Wicomico County Superintendent of Schools, will teach a seminar on the middle school. Tom Tucker, a Worcester County Middle School administrator, will also teach a section of the middle school seminar in Easton this spring.

Hopson, with graduate degrees in school psychology, educational psychology and clinical psychology, brings a wealth of teaching, counseling and consulting experience to the Highly Able Student seminar.

"Many teachers are uncomfortable with bright kids," she said, "they seem to defy lots of traditional approaches to education in a classroom setting. Sharon and I plan to help teachers and school administrators get a better handle on the ways highly able students learn—which are often radically different from the learning styles of the rest of the class."

Decker Published

Dr. Wayne H. Decker, associate professor in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, has published an article titled "Attributions as a Function of Manager's Assignment of Credit to Self, Superiors or Subordinates."

The article appears in the December issue of Psychological Reports.

Thompson Speaks to Colonial Dames

Dr. G. Ray Thompson, professor of History at the College addressed the Delmarva Chapter of The Colonial Dames of the 17th Century on January 23. The topic of Dr. Thompson's presentation was "Public and Private Documents and Source Materials Useful for Research Local and Family History on Delmarva."

Dr. Thompson is part of the College's Speaker's Bureau. The Bureau offers area organizations several speakers discussing a variety of subjects. There is no charge for the service.

Any civic, service or educational organization desiring a speaker should contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Rubin Danforth Consultant

Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, was recently a consultant to the Danforth Foundation's Program for the Preparation of School Principals. The program, now in its second year, is Danforth's response to the many recent educational reports which have challenged the education profession to design better preparation programs for those who will provide leadership in the schools.

The Danforth Foundation is working with a small number of schools of education each year, said Rubin, to "support the faculty to think and act boldly in developing alternative programs. Emphasis of the alternative programs will be experiential learning opportunities," such as simulations, internships and greater interaction with practicing school administrators and others in leadership positions.

At Danforth, Rubin explored experiential learning theory, program models and policies for monitoring quality with representatives from the University of Houston, Indiana University, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, the University of Oklahoma and the University of Washington. Other consultants are Dr. Hal Knight, East Tennessee State University, and Jane Kendall, executive director of the National Society for Internships and Experiential Education.

This is the second year Rubin has worked with colleges selected for the Danforth program.

Rubin also recently evaluated the Office of Professional Practice at Illinois State University. This was a follow-up visit to her original consultation two years ago. The Office of Professional Practice coordinates internship, cooperative education, field work and practicum opportunities for over 1,700 students a year.

Mathematical Sciences Position

The Department of Mathematical Sciences of Salisbury State College has a tenure-track opening beginning in 1988-89 at the instructor level. Salary will be in the range of $24,000 to $28,000. All candidates must possess a master's degree and have a program plan for the doctorate. In addition, they must have successful full-time teaching experience in a college mathematics department. In their teaching, they must have demonstrated a mathematical-sciences viewpoint (i.e., a blend of pure and classical applied mathematics, statistics and computer science) and an ability to teach courses in intermediate statistics and mathematics for prospective teachers. Finally, they must be able to teach successfully students with diverse backgrounds. This includes the ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization authorization to accept employment in this country.

Initial screening will be based on each applicant's academic background and teaching experience as supported by recommendations. Final selection will be made on the basis of the foregoing, a personal interview and a formal lecture on a topic of the candidate's choice.

Send letter of application, resumé and three letters of recommendation to: Search Committee, Department of Mathematical Sciences, Salisbury State College, Salisbury, MD 21801.

The deadline for receipt of applications is April 1.

Salisbury State College is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

Ward Foundation Golf Benefit

Billed as the "1988 Wheat, First Securities Executive Putting Championship," the day-long tournament will be hosted by the newly remodeled Sheraton Salisbury. Golfers will get a chance to test their office putting skills on a 18 hole course winding throughout the hotel's first floor, including the pool area.

According to Wheat, First Securities' Richard Van Gelder, chairman of the event, 36 teams of four will field the competition, which will kick-off at 10:30 a.m. Saturday morning. The best 18 teams will return in the evening for a championship round. Golfers and spectators will enjoy a casual afternoon brunch as teams compete in two preliminary rounds. The mood for the evening's final round, however, will be one of elegance—a black tie affair with classical music, champagne, and hors d'oeuvres.

First, second and third place teams will be awarded prizes donated by the Ward Foundation. Each member of the first place team will receive a matted limited edition print of a Jack Schroeder watercolor depicting Ward Brothers working decoys. Each print is signed by Lem Ward and the artist. In addition to the overall team prizes, there will be three or four prize holes.

Team registration is $250 which includes entry fee, tickets for team members and four guests, brunch and the evening reception. Gallery tickets, which admit spectators to all of the day's activities, are available for $25. Registration forms and gallery tickets can be obtained from Wheat, First Securities or the Ward Foundation. Sheraton Salisbury will also have gallery tickets available.

Proceeds from the tournament will go to the Ward Foundation's exhibits program, which will fund a living waterfowl exhibit at the Salisbury Zoo, according to Samuel H. Dyke, chairman of the Board of Trustees for the Ward Foundation. The funds will enable the zoo to build a large display area for the waterfowl and three small breeding pens. These permanent structures will help keep out natural predators which are slowly depleting the waterfowl stock.

"We are excited about the concept, the commitment to the Ward Foundation, and the contribution Wheat can make to the Salisbury area," Van Gelder said. Area companies lending their support to this effort include Martin's Printing, Interiors by Tunney, Jane Bounds Interiors, and Kratzer & Co. Salisbury Pewter is providing engraved pewter golf holes which will be used throughout the course. These holes will be sold through a silent auction at the end of the competition.

For more information, contact either Van Gelder, Wheat, First Securities, at 543-4800, or the Ward Foundation, 655 S. Salisbury Blvd., at 742-4988.

West German Visitor To Speak on 'A Nuclear Free Europe'

Lenelotte von Bothmer, Hannover, West Germany, will speak on Wednesday, February 10, at the College Center, Nanticoke Room, at 7:30 p.m. on "A Nuclear Free Europe?"

Mrs. von Bothmer was a member of the West German Parliament for 13 years. She is a specialist on the Middle East and is an activist in the West German peace movement. She has written books on the Middle East and war and peace.

"Her knowledge of European politics is outstanding," said Dr. Phillip Bosserman, professor of Sociology at SSC. "She knows personally many of the key players in world politics especially those in the Middle East and Europe."

Some of the questions she will address are:

- What will be the effects of "glasnost" on Western Europe?
- Will nuclear weapons be eliminated from West Germany and other Western European nations?
- Are the Soviets ahead of the west in conventional forces?
- What will happen to these conventional forces?
- How is the West German peace movement?
- What are some of the issues it is pursuing?

After Mrs. von Bothmer's prepared remarks, the audience will be invited to ask questions and enter into a discussion. Mrs. von Bothmer's visit has been arranged by the Salisbury State College Student Sociology Society and the Peace Alliance of the Lower Shore.

Hopson Certified As Medical Psychotherapist

Dr. Natalie W. Hopson, assistant professor of psychology at the College, was recently awarded certification as a medical psychotherapist by the American Board of Medical Psychotherapists Credentials and Certification Committee.

Only a small number of eminently qualified professionals are selected for this honor each year among a growing pool of applicants. Board certified Medical Psychotherapists have demonstrated adherence to the highest ethical standards for professional practice in the health service fields.

In order to be successful, a part of the application requires that each recipient must submit an actual work sample which is judged upon the most rigorous criteria by a select panel.

Her name will appear among those listed in the next edition of the National Registry of Medical Psychotherapists.

Hopson was previously a psychologist at the Department of Psychiatry at the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center at Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine, the Department of Pediatric Psychology at the Rainbow Babies and Children's Hospital of University Hospitals at Case Western Reserve University and the Cleveland Child Guidance Center.

She received her B.A. from Lebanon Valley College, her M.S. from Millersville State College and her Ph.D. from Case Western.

everything they could about the civilization which produced them. From two coins the students ascertained knowledge about the culture's numeral system, architecture, mass production process, art and language.

"What does a penny tell us about our civilization? This 'discovery' method impressed me so much I've never forgotten it. Giving children things they could discover for themselves affected my whole teaching career; children learn by doing. . . . He (Bozman) made learning pleasurable. This is part of his special quality," she said. "I'm glad he's being recognized. I'm really pleased he's getting this."

"I think his appointment as Riall Professor reinforces the importance of teacher education," said Dr. Michael Masucci, a colleague in the School of Education. "He makes a difference."

Students Integral Part of College Work Force

About 800 industrious students not only are taking full-time academic programs but are working up to 20 hours a week as part of the work force which keeps the College operating.

"Any job that can be filled by a student is given to a student," said John Morris, who heads the Work Experience Office.

The annual payroll for student workers totals altogether about $1 million, Morris estimates. His office functions much like the personnel office of any large corporation, keeping track of hirings, firings and tax records. A department with a job opening lists it with the Work Experience Office. The office selects possible candidates for the job based on qualifications and class schedules.

The selected students pick up referral cards for a specific job and interview for it. A student who is hired signs a contract with the employer to work a specified number of hours a week for a wage varying between $4 and $6 an hour depending on experience and responsibility.

At the main switchboard in Holloway Hall, Valerie Hunt, a Nursing student from New Jersey, is on duty 20 hours a week. She is one of 10 students who help keep the College's communication system active for 24 hours a day.

"It's a big responsibility," she said. Not only do she and her co-workers handle Centrex calls which come through the central switchboard, but public safety and maintenance calls and the fire alarm for all buildings on campus.

It pays her $4.35 an hour, a wage which adds up to about $1,400 a semester toward her college expenses.

The students converging on the Ruth Powell Dining Hall every day at 10:45 a.m. are part of the biggest work force on campus, the one hired by Food Service. They have an early lunch before manning one of the longest and best cafeteria lines in town.

Working students not only man the regular cafeteria lines but are on call to serve any of the dozens of special events which are catered by the College each season.

On the bulletin board at the Work Experience Office in the College's Physical Plant Building the latest job openings are posted for students needing financial replenishment.

On recent scanning there were notices advertising openings for an assistant dormitory housekeeper with "flexible hours" at $4 an hour; for an audio-visual technician at the Communications Center for $4.25 an hour; and for a maintenance helper to clean boilers and change belts for $4.25 an hour.

Another notice sought out full-time painters to put in 40-hour weeks during the winter break from Christmas through the month of January at $4.75 an hour.

The College's mailroom is virtually run by students. There are student clerical workers in almost every office on campus, students driving the shuttle busses and students in orange vests attending the crowded parking lots.

There is a lot of competition for the on-campus jobs. But students who want work can go to the Work Experience Office to find off-campus jobs as well.

On Friday nights both male and female students are crowded around the babysitting bulletin board, Morris says. The board is always full of notices for babysitters to live in and exchange regular sitting for room and board, to be on call, to stay with young children for specified hours each day, or to sit for a specified period on a particular weekend.

There are other off-campus job opportunities on the bulletin board at local fast food places, at two different greenhouses, at a shoe store. There are more specialized notices for a graphic artist, a math tutor, an auto mechanic and a security guard.

Morris says that a big event for the working student is a job fair the College holds in January or February. Here would-be employers from Ocean City and Rehobeth set up their booths to interview students for summer jobs in the resort area. Phillips restaurants alone lines up about 600 workers from here and other colleges in the state.

The Wild World Amusement Park recruits about 150 young people to operate its rides and ticket booths.

"There is no reason why anyone couldn't work in this area," Morris said.

For the students at Salisbury State the job is a double challenge, in most cases well met. To hold a job through the Work Experience Program a student must not only be a dependable employee but at the same time keep up a full academic schedule with acceptable grades.

Students Assist Housing Corporation

A group of SSC students assisted the Accomack-Norhampton Housing and Redevelopment Corporation by designing a database management system for the corporation's HUD Section 8 Existing Rental Assistance Program. The project was completed as part of the Database Management System course requirements taught by Dean DeFino.

The housing corporation is a non-profit corporation located in Accomack, VA. It was established by the Board of Supervisors of Accomack and Northampton Counties to address housing needs of the low and moderate income residents of the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

The HUD Section 8 Existing Rental Assistance Program is funded through the Virginia Housing Development Authority. This program provides assistance by furnishing rental subsidy to low and moderate income persons based on their ability to pay for a safe, sanitary and decent housing unit.

The database consists of 210 active clients and over 200 persons waiting for assistance.

Group members who designed and implemented this program were Randy Todd, Don Newcomb, Karon Eichelberger, Rodney Davis and Jeff Crandell.

Small Business Institute Set at Perdue School

The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business in conjunction with the United States Small Business Administration (SBA) is proud to announce the initiating of a Small Business Institute (SBI) serving Delmarva.

Oliver J. Phillips, business development specialist with SBA, has determined that there is a need to provide technical assistance to small and emerging businesses throughout the Eastern Shore. The Small Business Institute at the Perdue School will be responsible for providing technical assistance to entrepreneurs throughout the area.

The Perdue School has appointed Dr. Richard Palmer as the inaugural director of the Small Business Institute. Palmer received his Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin and has more than three decades of business experience. For the last 20 years Palmer owned and operated successful small businesses in Austin, TX. Most recently, Palmer was director of the Business and Technology Center at Austin Community College in Texas.

According to Palmer, "My role as the director of the Small Business Institute is to provide direct and useful technical assistance to businesses throughout Delmarva. The role of small businesses in the area is to contact us regarding their needs."

The SBI Program provides intensive management counseling utilizing teams of qualified college students in business disciplines under expert faculty guidance.

The SBI Program was established by SBA in 1972 with 36 collegiate schools of business.

The SBI schools provide counseling to over 7,500 businesses each year. SBIs have counseled more than 100,000 individual businesses, providing 250,000 students a "real world" experience in applying their skills and has involved over 5,000 professors in the economic development of their communities.

The students meet frequently over the course of a full college term (or more) with the small business owner to identify and solve management problems. A detailed case report is written and given to the client.

SBI counseling studies focus on the full range of management problems and solution methods: market studies, accounting systems, personnel policies, expansion feasibility and strategy, production design, product line diversification, exporting, etc.

SBI teams occasionally engage in community development projects supported by the town and often involving other SBI Office of Business Development resources, such as Small Business Development Centers (SBDCs). SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives) has long been a supporter of the SBI Program. SCORE volunteers frequently act as advisors to SBI teams and offer follow-up counseling to clients.

The emphasis applied by SBA to the college under contract in the SBI Program is on practical, realistic and affordable solutions—not on academic elegance. National awards are given each year to those students who best achieve these ends.

Entrepreneurs and small business owners throughout Delmarva are encouraged to contact Palmer at the Perdue School Small Business Institute by calling 543-6315.

Civil War Film and Filmmaker Featured at SSC

On Thursday, February 11, filmmaker Ross Spears will introduce in person his latest film, Long Shadows: The Legacy of the American Civil War completed in 1987 and not yet aired on public television. The screening of Long Shadows will be held at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium.

The first film Ross Spears wrote and directed, Agee, on the Tennessee writer and critic, was nominated for Best Documentary Feature in 1980 by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. It is the only film biography of a major American writer to be nominated for an Academy Award. For his latest feature, the director has turned from American letters to American history in an impressive attempt to demonstrate how the American present has been shaped by the American past.

Long Shadows is a documentary film written, directed, and narrated by Ross Spears, exploring the cultural legacy of the American Civil War. The picture features interviews with Robert Penn Warren, Studs Terkel, Jimmy Carter, Robert Coles, Tom Wicker, Albert Murray, John Hope Franklin, James Reston, Jr., C. Vann Woodward, weekend soldiers, blues singers, battlefield guides, relic collectors, West Pointers, Vietnam veterans, and civil rights activists. "It weaves an historical tapestry that is entertaining as well as instructive," said Jim Welsh, SSC film professor, "while attempting to put the memory of the Civil War into social and cultural perspective."

The Civil War was the most cataclysmic event in American history: it resulted in 600,000 deaths (a greater number of deaths than in all other American wars combined, from the Revolution up to and including the first five years of the Vietnam conflict), burned-out cities, devastated landscapes and, finally, social revolution.

Long Shadows examines not only the events of the War, but also the way those past events shape the American present, the way those events still affect Americans now. The film draws direct connections between the Civil War and America's current racial problems, the development of huge American corporations, the rise of the Sunbelt (indicating, perhaps, that the South would rise again), America's military intervention in Vietnam, and the way that Americans tend to resort quickly to the use of military force to resolve political disputes around the world.

"Finally," said Welsh, "the film also becomes a critique of the American tendency to ignore the past. 'That tendency,' Tom Wicker argues in the film, 'has resulted in the failure of Americans to understand who and what we are—a failure that has produced an American Malaise and unease of spirit.'"

A discussion will follow the screening.

Colonel Clark brought to this command more than 27 years experience in military music.

The Field Band is composed of the Army's finest soldier musicians. Many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music; many have performed with major symphonies and leading dance orchestras before entering the service. All of the musicians—by personal audition—have been specially selected for assignment to the Field Band.

The Soldiers' Chorus, an integral part of the band, is made up of 29 highly trained and talented vocalists under the direction of Major Frank G. Dubuy. The chorus presents its own arrangements of well-known compositions at each Field Band performance.

The band's concert repertoire is designed to appeal to all audiences, offering classical, semi-classical and popular selections, choral arrangements, novelty numbers and military marches on each of its programs. On tours of other nations, the Field Band has performed the works of American composers as well as music indigenous to that country.

On its tours within the continental U.S., the Field Band has performed at most of the country's finest halls and amphitheaters, including the Hollywood Bowl, the Red Rocks Theater in Denver, Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell, New Jersey's Garden State Arts Center, the Hatch Shell in Boston, the San Francisco Opera House and the Ford Auditorium in

New York's Detroit. In New York's Carnegie Hall, the Field Exhibited

Band was the first military band to present a full-dress concert. The band has appeared at the New York and Seattle World's Fairs and represented the United States Army at Expo '67 in Montreal and the Liberty Weekend celebration in New York on July 4, 1986.

In addition to its concert tours, the Field Band is called upon to participate in a variety of ceremonial events. The band has marched in five Presidential Inaugural parades, escorted the President on special occasions and played for many visiting heads-of-state.

The Field Band, as the musical voice of the United States Army, is authorized to carry and display the Army Flag. This banner bears 168 streamers representing the campaigns in which the Army has participated since its inception—from the Revolutionary War to Vietnam. In concert and on parade, this standard is always found to the left of the American flag.

The bandmen are attired in the distinctive Army dress blue uniform. Though in striking contrast to the dress of the soldier in combat, the blue uniform has a tradition dating back to the early 1800s, when it was worn by the officers and men of the then young United States Army.

This concert is sponsored by the Daily Times, Salisbury State, the SSC ROTC detachment and the U.S. Army recruiter.

Free tickets may be obtained beginning Monday, February 1, at the Daily Times, SSC's College Center information desk or the U.S. Army Recruiter in the Twilley Centre.

John Cleary, who teaches drawing and painting in the Art Department, has exhibited in two juried shows in Baltimore in the past year.

A large painting, 5' x 8' and a smaller painting, 22" x 30" were selected by a jury consisting of C. Kelly of the Maryland State Arts Council, J. Winslow of Catholic University and R. Hanson of the F. Bader Gallery. This show was arranged for the Life of Maryland Gallery. The other juried show was a part of the Artscape Festival. Dan Dudrow of the Maryland Institute College of Art selected a large drawing (55" x 42") in mixed media for display.

In 1986 a painting (56" x 72") in mixed media by Cleary was selected for the 50th anniversary at the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, OH. Serving on the jury were D. Christensen, a painter; T. Henson, the curator of Contemporary Art of the Cleveland Museum of Art; and Dr. O. Winsand of Carnegie-Mellon University. Along with with the 68 juried works, selected from nearly 3000 submitted entries, were works by artists A. Held, W. Dekooning, L. Rivers, A. Martin and many others.

Since 1971 Cleary has exhibited his art in over 80 shows.

his own working combo, led by his brother Red Prysock. His legions of fans are finally able to enjoy the same type of Prysock-and-Prysock intimacy in the privacy of their homes that they had been experiencing at his nightclub and concert performances.

"I have always wanted to record with my own group," the 60-year old South Carolina-born singer explained. "After you have been together for a few years, they know what you are doing. Whether the song is new or old, they give you the support that you want, rather than the big group."

A Rockin' Good Way, Prysock's highly acclaimed 1986 Milestone debut, also marks his return to the type of material his followers have come to expect after a brief and successful fling with disco that featured the dance-floor smash, When Love Is New.

Arthur Prysock, Jr. was born in South Carolina and raised on a farm in North Carolina. "Daddy called me 'Junior' until the day he died," he explained. His mother taught young Arthur, as well as his brother and sister to wash, iron, sew and cook. "I learned to make chicken 99 different ways," said Prysock.

Leaving home at 16, he landed a job with an aircraft company in Hartford, CT where he later found a job as a cook and, at night, sang with a band in that city.

Then, one day, Buddy Johnson's band came through, and his singer was sick, so I asked Buddy if I could sing a song with him. And he said, 'Do you know any of my songs?' I said 'Yes, I know all of them; I sing them nightly.' When he introduced me, the audience went wild, because I was a local boy. He paid me

$25, and that was the most money I had ever made."

Prysock remained with the Johnson Blue-Based Orchestra from 1944 until 1952, scoring such big hits as "They All Say I'm the Biggest Fool" and "I Wonder Where Our Love Has Gone." Since leaving the Johnson Band in 1952, Prysock has been his own boss. He recorded for Decca and Mercury Labels before beginning a long association with Old Town Label. In his 42 years on the road, Prysock has lost none of his vocal strength or rich resonance. He continues to stay on the road eight to nine months a year and has no plans to retire.

"I'm a gypsy," said Prysock, who lives with his wife, Jean, on Long Island. "I can't stay home. If I stay home, I'll lay up and get fat, because I'm a very good cook."

Grammy Nominee Prysock Performs As Part of Celebrations

As part of its Black History Month the Black Student Union with the Faculty Cultural Events Committee presents Arthur Prysock in concert on Monday, February 15, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Prysock is nominated for a Grammy Award this year for Best Jazz Vocal Performance. The winners will be announced next month in a live broadcast on CBS television.

During his prolific 32-year recording career, romantic crooner Prysock was heard primarily in the company of big bands or string sections. On his more than 65 albums, mostly for the Old Town Label, Prysock found his deep, velvety tones cushioned with violin or brass. His tender music has been a staple of jazz radio in the wee hours of the morning-of cheek to cheek dancing in smoke-filled cocktail lounges.

Since signing with Milestone Records last year, nothing has changed in the time-honored Prysock tradition of tender torch ballads and an occasional blues, except that, for the first time, thanks to producer Bob Porter, the singer has been able to present his distinctive bass-baritone pipes in the distinguished company of his own working combo, led by his brother Red Prysock. His legions of fans are finally able to enjoy the same type of Prysock-and-Prysock intimacy in the privacy of their homes that they had been experiencing at his nightclub and concert performances.

"I have always wanted to record with my own group," the 60-year old South Carolina-born singer explained. "After you have been together for a few years, they know what you are doing. Whether the song is new or old, they give you the support that you want, rather than the big group."

A Rockin' Good Way, Prysock's highly acclaimed 1986 Milestone debut, also marks his return to the type of material his followers have come to expect after a brief and successful fling with disco that featured the dance-floor smash, When Love Is New.

Arthur Prysock, Jr. was born in South Carolina and raised on a farm in North Carolina. "Daddy called me 'Junior' until the day he died," he explained. His mother taught young Arthur, as well as his brother and sister to wash, iron, sew and cook. "I learned to make chicken 99 different ways," said Prysock.

Leaving home at 16, he landed a job with an aircraft company in Hartford, CT where he later found a job as a cook and, at night, sang with a band in that city.

Then, one day, Buddy Johnson's band came through, and his singer was sick, so I asked Buddy if I could sing a song with him. And he said, 'Do you know any of my songs?' I said 'Yes, I know all of them; I sing them nightly.' When he introduced me, the audience went wild, because I was a local boy. He paid me $25, and that was the most money I had ever made."

Prysock remained with the Johnson Blue-Based Orchestra from 1944 until 1952, scoring such big hits as "They All Say I'm the Biggest Fool" and "I Wonder Where Our Love Has Gone." Since leaving the Johnson Band in 1952, Prysock has been his own boss. He recorded for Decca and Mercury Labels before beginning a long association with Old Town Label. In his 42 years on the road, Prysock has lost none of his vocal strength or rich resonance. He continues to stay on the road eight to nine months a year and has no plans to retire.

"I'm a gypsy," said Prysock, who lives with his wife, Jean, on Long Island. "I can't stay home. If I stay home, I'll lay up and get fat, because I'm a very good cook."

Seating is on a first come, first served basis. No tickets are necessary. For more information on the concert, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Army Field Band Here

The United States Army Field Band and Soldiers Chorus of Washington, D.C., brings its varied repertoire to the College for an admission-free concert on Tuesday, February 16, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The internationally famous Army Field Band is the official touring musical representative of the United States Army. As a distinguished member of Congress aptly described the band, "It is a great instrument for stirring patriotic emotions."

The band is under the operational control of the Army's Chief of Public Affairs at the Pentagon. Known as the "Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the Field Band travels thousands of miles each year on at least two major concert tours and is considered by music critics to be one of the most distinctive musical organizations now appearing before the public.

Colonel William E. Clark is the band's present commander and conductor. He is the sixth director in the Field Band's history. Colonel Clark brought to this command more than 27 years experience in military music.

The Field Band is composed of the Army's finest soldier musicians. Many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music; many have performed with major symphonies and leading dance orchestras before entering the service. All of the musicians—by personal audition—have been specially selected for assignment to the Field Band.

The bandmen are attired in the distinctive Army dress blue uniform. Though in striking contrast to the dress of the soldier in combat, the blue uniform has a tradition dating back to the early 1880s, when it was worn by the officers and men of the then young United States Army.

The Soldiers' Chorus, an integral part of the band, is made up of 29 highly trained and talented vocalists under the direction of Major Frank G. Dubuy. The chorus presents its own arrangements of well-known compositions at each Field Band performance.

The band's concert repertoire is designed to appeal to all audiences, offering classical, semi-classical and popular selections, choral arrangements, novelty numbers and military marches on each of its programs. On tours of other nations, the Field Band has performed the works of American composers as well as music indigenous to that country.

On its tours within the continental U.S., the Field Band has performed at most of the country's finest halls and amphitheaters, including the Hollywood Bowl, the Red Rocks Theater in Denver, Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell, New Jersey's Garden State Arts Center, the Hatch Shell in Boston, the San Francisco Opera House and the Ford Auditorium in Detroit.

In New York's Carnegie Hall, the Field Band was the first military band to present a full-dress concert. The band has appeared at the New York and Seattle World's Fairs and represented the United States Army at Expo '67 in Montreal and the Liberty Weekend celebration in New York on July 4, 1986.

In addition to its concert tours, the Field Band is called upon to participate in a variety of ceremonial events. The band has marched in five Presidential Inaugural parades, escorted the President on special occasions and played for many visiting heads-of-state.

This concert is sponsored by the Daily Times, Salisbury State, the SSC ROTC detachment and the U.S. Army recruiter.

Russian Art and Music in Salisbury

Russian chamber music comes to Salisbury when the Annapolis Brass Quintet performs a concert of all-Russian music on Tuesday, February 23 at 8 p.m. at Trinity United Methodist Church, North Division and Broad Sts. in Salisbury.

Another Russian attraction will be featured during the month of February in a photographic exhibit entitled "Through the Eyes of a Child," at the Wicomico County Library, February 10 and 11.

Musically, the ABQ concert is bringing a different perspective on Russian musical life to area music lovers. "While the names of such great Russian composers as Tchaikovsky and Prokofiev are well known to orchestral audiences, the Annapolis Brass Quintet will introduce our audience to Russian composers who wrote for brass chamber ensembles," said Davina Grace Hill, executive director of the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, presenter of the brass concert series.

One of the selections the Annapolis Brass Quintet will be performing is entitled, "Brass Quintet" by Alexander Tcherepin. "This piece has an interesting story," stated Hill. "Mr. Tcherepin heard a European broadcast tape that the ABQ had made of his work. He wrote to the Quintet complimenting them and added his hope that his composition, 'Brass Quintet' also could be recorded in the U.S. It was released, just after the composer's death, on ABQ's third album in 1978."

The Annapolis Brass Quintet also will be performing "Fanfare for a New Theatre" by Igor Stravinsky, which was composed in 1964 for the opening of the New York State Theater. "Fanfare" will be opening ABQ's concert as well.

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and The Holyearth Foundation are co-sponsoring the unique photographic exhibit by Russian children at the library. Salisbury will be the first exhibit stop in Maryland at the beginning of a national two-year tour. It will be open during regular library hours: Wednesday 10 a.m. - 9 p.m. and Thursday 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Also taking place at the exhibit site during lunch time of the two-day exhibit is a series of four half-hour lectures on various aspects of Russian life. There is no admission charge to either the exhibit or the lectures.

Tickets to the Annapolis Brass Quintet concert are $12 ($10 SWAC members) and are available by calling 543-ARTS or at the ticket outlets at John Hanson Savings Bank and all eleven branches of Peninsula Bank during regular lobby hours.

The Annapolis Brass Quintet's season in Salisbury is made possible in part, by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Maryland State Arts Council. The lectures are made possible by a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Choral Groups to Present Carmina Burana

The SSC Concert Choir along with The Salisbury Choral Society, the Easton Choral Arts Society of the Academy of the Arts and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra will perform Carl Orff's Carmina Burana on May 20 and 21. The first performance will be held in Holloway Hall. The second will be held in Easton.

The work was recently played on radio WQXR in New York as part of its year-end series on the all-time 100 most popular classical works. Written in 1937, Carmina Burana is based on a manuscript found in a Bavarian Monastery in 1803. The texts, in Latin, Middle-High German and Old French, were written by wandering scholars, vagabond poets and monks.

Topics range from springtime to love. There is also a section of drinking songs (In Taberna). Orff designates the piece: "Profane songs for singers and vocal chorus with instruments and magical pictures." The original manuscript contains approximately 200 songs, sacred and secular. Orff chose 24 of these texts to set to music. His style preserves the feel of Medieval times while incorporating distinctive 20th century idioms. The prelude, Fortune, Empress of the World, is sung by the victims of Fortune's ruthless wheel. The sections which follow are devoted to the joys of spring, the pleasures of the tavern and the gaming tables, the delights of love.

The work is scored for soprano, baritone, and very high tenor solos, five other male solists, semichorus, chorus and children's choir all accompanied by a huge orchestra, including a vast percussion section and two pianos.

Carmina Burana is energetic, exciting, tender. William Mann, musicologist, said, "Because Orff is eclectic in his musical sources, he can bring together the lovers of Beethoven, folksong and rock and roll. The composer exhilarates us with his throbbing rhythms and battering-ram tunes; but when he reaches his love scene, no human heart is likely to remain unmoved."

The musical organizations are still looking for choral singers to participate in this event. All voice parts are welcome. Students may receive credit by taking Music 100. Rehearsals are held in the Music Annex on Sunday afternoons from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. Students who cannot meet at that time meet on Thursdays from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the annex. For more information, contact Dr. Ray Zeigler at 543-6385 or at home, 651-9359.

Civil War Film and Filmmaker Featured at SSC

On Thursday, February 11, filmmaker Ross Spears will introduce in person his latest film, Long Shadows: The Legacy of the American Civil War completed in 1987 and not yet aired on public television. The screening of Long Shadows will be held at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium.

The first film Ross Spears wrote and directed, Agee, on the Tennessee writer and critic, was nominated for Best Documentary Feature in 1980 by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. It is the only film biography of a major American writer to be nominated for an Academy Award. For his latest feature, the director has turned from American letters to American history in an impressive attempt to demonstrate how the American present has been shaped by the American past.

Long Shadows is a documentary film written, directed, and narrated by Ross Spears, exploring the cultural legacy of the American Civil War. The picture features interviews with Robert Penn Warren, Studs Terkel, Jimmy Carter, Robert Coles, Tom Wicker, Albert Murray, John Hope Franklin and James Reston, Jr., among others. "It weaves an historical tapestry that is entertaining as well as instructive," said Jim Welsh, SSC film professor, "while attempting to put the memory of the Civil War into social and cultural perspective."

A discussion will follow the screening, involving Spears, Welsh and SSC American Studies Professor Donald M. Whaley. The public is invited to this free screening and discussion, sponsored by the College Center.

Public Safety Department Begins New Program

Beginning the first full weekend of the spring semester, the Public Safety Department will have student assistants patrolling the residence halls and surrounding areas. These student assistants will be on duty on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights from 9 p.m.-3 p.m. According to Jim Phillips, director of Public Safety, this is the re-starting of an old program on campus. "Many campuses have students who augment the regular campus police officers so that more people are patrolling the campus," said Phillips. "We tried this several years ago and the program accomplished its goals, so we decided to try it again, with a little more structure."

The program will be directly supervised by Lt. Wayne Hurley, the evening shift supervisor. The students will carry a two-way radio so they can be in touch with the officers. Their duties will include keeping the residence halls exterior doors locked, reporting suspicious persons, staying visible to deter vandalism, alcohol violations and noise complaints, as well as providing an escort service.

While on duty the Public Safety assistants will be contacting the on duty R.A. in each residence hall and the on call area director. According to Lt. Hurley, "We really hope these student assistants will make a significant contribution to overall campus safety and crime prevention. They will be another set of eyes and ears in and around the residence halls that can prevent incidents before they become problems." Although Public Safety will continue to escort students in the campus police van to nearby off campus locations, student public safety assistants will be escorting students on campus. With the additional student assistants, the escort service will be enhanced and students may find it more convenient to take advantage of this service.

Phillips concluded, "The housing staff and Public Safety Department have a close working relationship. The student assistants will be working with all students and the housing staff, and will make a positive contribution to campus life."

Students Attend Pre-Med Conference

Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, health professions advisor and Dr. John Molenda, dean of the school of Science, took eight of SSC's pre-professional students to The Johns Hopkins University on Sunday, February 7. The purpose of this conference was to enlighten pre-medical students and health professions advisors as on current and changing realities in the lives of practicing physicians.

The first part of the program consisted of presentations by eight physicians. Each discussed some of the professional and personal pros and cons of being a physician. Students were then given opportunities to talk in small groups with each physician. During this time Dr. DiGiovanna and Dr. Molenda attended a special meeting for health professions advisors.

The SSC students who attended were Richard Baskas, Marisa Carey, Jeff Greenwood, Shuna Harmon, Sean Hilber, Ty Hussain, Kristina Keyser and Tim Monahan.

VOL. IX NO. 18

University Status Gets Okay!

On Friday, February 12, the Maryland House of Delegates gave its approval to university status for Salisbury State. (In January, the Maryland Senate similarly endorsed a name change bill.) University ranking thus becomes law with the signature of the bill by Gov. William Donald Schaefer on July 1.

"First and foremost, and on behalf of the entire College community," said Dr. Bellavance, "I want to thank the many individuals and organizations that not only believed in the appropriateness of this bill designating Salisbury as a university, but over the years have spent an exorbitant amount of time working to ensure its passage.

"Needless to say," continued Bellavance, "we are all delighted with the turn of events, but I hasten to add not because Salisbury may now become something else but, rather, because we are finally being recognized for what we have been for a number of years—a university.

"We are very proud of Salisbury as she now exists," said Bellavance. "We are proud of the magnitude and complexity of our academic programs, the expertise of our faculty, the proficiency of our students and, without question, the quality of our graduates.

"I think it's important to understand that we have never desired to alter this and become a different kind of institution," he added. "We have desired only one thing in seeking this change of status and that is to be named the university we presently are and in that capacity continue our primary pursuit of ever increasing the depth and quality of our educational program."

Salisbury State currently has 30 undergraduate majors and six graduate degree programs, six national accreditations and of its permanent 195 full-time faculty members, 69 percent have earned the highest degree in their field.

News of the name change was met with resounding praise from area business and community leaders.

"The decision by the state legislature validates my commitment to creating a first-class business school in a first-class university on the Eastern Shore," said Franklin P. Perdue, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Perdue Farms, Inc. Perdue endowed a business school at Salisbury State in his name in 1986.

"This announcement that we now have a university," said Sam Seidel, area businessman and chairman of the SSC Foundation, Inc., "will foster a great deal of pride in the community. And, it will allow us to attract new industry to the region."

Both Perdue and Seidel are alumni of Salisbury State.

This is not the first time the institution has undergone a name change. Founded in 1925 as a state Normal School, 10 years later it became Salisbury State Teacher's College, as it changed from a two- to four-year curriculum. In 1963 "Teacher's" was dropped from the name, reflecting a further growth in its liberal arts program.

Dr. Bellavance presents Rep. Roy Dyson with Salisbury State University sweatshirt at recent press conference announcing name change.

In the quarter century since then, more changes have occurred than in all the previous years from 1925 to 1963 put together. Buildings, books, course offerings, undergraduate and graduate programs, and faculty have increased five and sixfold. Student enrollment climbed from 551 to nearly 5,000.

New to the campus are the College's five schools including the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, the School of Science, the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, the School of Liberal Arts and the School of Education and Professional Studies.

"The legislative endorsement properly designates Salisbury State as a university within the State of Maryland's public higher education system," said Bellavance. But the benefits extend beyond the borders of the 100 acre campus.

"The name change will stimulate new industry to locate in the region as well as help existing industry to attract and retain top notch personnel," said Michael G. Abercrombie, chairman of the Greater Salisbury Committee, Inc.

Echoing those sentiments was Salisbury Mayor W. Paul Martin. "The name change," said Martin, "will impact very favorably on our city competing for new economic development. It will also assist us in retaining and upgrading the small businesses and the small industrial plants we now have."

According to Robert L. Kiley, executive director of the Salisbury Wicomico Economic Development, Inc. (SWED), "The name change gives more meaning and prestige to our higher educational delivery system, as well as a big boost to the cornerstone of our area's economic development efforts and that of the state of Maryland's higher education delivery capabilities."

Said Edwin Rommel, president of the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce, representing 500 members, "We see the name change as a stepping stone into the future. The long-term benefits should be considerable. We hope the next generation of graduates will move into our community on a permanent basis."

"Advantages to the institution" said Dr. Gary L. Pielemeier, vice president of Research and Development at SSC, include, "attracting top students now migrating from the state as well as minority students now residing in the state, increasing job opportunities for our graduates, expanding the prospects of our graduates being admitted to graduate and professional schools, stimulating private support as well as federal and foundation grants, and placing us in a more competitive position to recruit high-grade faculty."

Looking ahead, Pielemeier continued, "We have an endowed school, the Perdue Business School. We want to do that for all five, see them endowed for excellence: stronger academic programs, more scholarships, more faculty, a larger library. Our emphasis is now on qualitative growth."

Bellavance expressed his gratitude to the Greater Salisbury Committee, the Wicomico County Council, the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce, SWED, the Mayor's Roundtable, the SSC Alumni Association and all those citizens who have lent their support to newly recognized university status for Salisbury State.

He gave special thanks to the Eastern Shore legislative delegation. The sponsors of the Senate bill were Sen. Lewis R. Riley, Sen. Frederick C. Malkus and Sen. Thomas V. (Mike) Miller, Jr. House bill sponsors were Del. Norman H. Conway, Del. Mark O. Pilchard, Del. Daniel M. Long and Del. Samuel Q. Johnson, III.

College Receives $10,000 Gift

The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business recently received a $10,000 gift from Klein and Mary Lee Leister, life-long residents of the Eastern Shore and long-time residents of Pocomoke City.

The gift is part of a matching funds campaign to raise $800,000 for a permanent home for the Perdue School in the north and east wings of Holloway Hall, facing College Avenue. The College has raised $30,000 thus far, including a $20,000 anonymous gift to name a conference room. The Dean's office in the Perdue School will be named in honor of the Leisters'.

"Salisbury State College is in good shape," said Dr. Bellavance, "due to the phenomenal help provided by the people in this area. The Leisters' sincere concern and generous support over the years is deeply appreciated by all of us."

"We're tremendously beholden to them," he continued, "and hope this spurs others to make similar contributions. I pledge to deliver what they have invested in, a quality product—Salisbury State College."

Mary Lee Leister is a 1943 graduate of SSC. Her husband, Klein, an accountant with offices in Pocomoke and a former owner of radio station WKHI-FM, is past chairman of the SSC Foundation, Inc., a non-profit, voluntary organization established 15 years ago to supplement the College's financial needs.

"I'd like to road ahead of me to be a little smoother than the one behind me," said Klein Leister explaining the reasoning behind his gift to the College.

"Also," he added, "I have a great allegiance to Dr. Bellavance. He's a hard worker. He does what he says he's doing to do. We're happy to be a part of Salisbury State."

The Perdue School of Business will be a self-contained school within Holloway Hall.

"A gift may be designated for a specific room in the renovated wings and the donor identified by a plaque in the room selected," said Robert Gearhart, executive director of the SSC Foundation. "Contributors will see tangible results of their gifts within five years," he said.

An enrollment of 1,000 is anticipated within five years at the School. Within six years the academic program is expected to be well established and the School will seek accreditation by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, according to Timothy Mescon, dean of the School.

Out of over 1,000 business schools in the United States, only 230 are formally accredited by this prestigious organization.

"The new facility will be a community resource," said Mescon. "It will offer research, continuing education and communication links between the College and the area's business and industry. It will give talented young people the opportunity to get a top level business education close to home."

"For local businesses," added Mescon, "it will mean that well-trained management personnel will no longer have to be recruited from out of the area. The Perdue School of Business will enrich this community with high quality graduates trained on the Shore to work on the Shore."

DiGiovanna Published

Dr. A. DiGiovanna, associate professor of Biology, has published an article entitled "Making It Meaningful and Memorable."

It reports the results of research performed by DiGiovanna on the effective use of analogies in classroom teaching. The article appears in the November/December issue of The American Biology Teacher, the journal of the National Association of Biology Teachers.

Gallery Exhibits Maryland Artists

"Image/Identity: Self Portraits by Maryland Artists," featuring paintings, drawings and works in mixed media by 12 different artists, will be on display at the College Gallery through March 3. The exhibition was organized by Maryland Art Place, an artists' cooperative gallery in Baltimore, and curated by Martha McWilliams, a writer and critic affiliated with the art school of the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D.C.

McWilliams will discuss the exhibition in an informal talk, intended for both the campus community and the general public, in the College Gallery on Wednesday, February 24, at 7:30 p.m.

The Gallery is located on the second floor of Blackwell Library and is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays until 8 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

The exhibition challenges traditional approaches to the self-portrait, according to Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the College Gallery. Whereas self-portraits traditionally focus on the artist's appearance, personality, and professional role, and are generally executed in a relatively realistic style, most of the works in this exhibition are in modern, experimental styles, including expressionism, abstraction and surrealism. And the artists' self-portrait, Ehrhardt said, are in many cases relatively generalized human images whose concerns or feelings suggest shared human experiences, often of a problematic nature.

Clio Awards Show

The Art Department will present the 1987 Clio Award Winners in international television commercials at the College on Thursday, February 18. The film will be shown in Caruthers Hall Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

The film, which is annually presented by the Art Department, includes the winners in the international categories. Last year's winners were chosen from 17,000 entries submitted from 44 countries around the world. The entries are from a variety of categories and include non-profit sponsors as well as conventional clients.

The Clio Awards has been a popular event every year. Japan, Great Britain, Germany and the U.S. are usually well represented. The international language of humor is easily understood by all.

Viewing the cream of the past year's commercial gives the viewer a very different perspective on the impact of the 30 second art form. The film will run approximately 45 minutes.

Attention May 1988 Graduates

Salisbury State College's Spring Commencement Exercises will be held on Saturday, May 28, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Details concerning graduation will follow at a later date.

Burroughs Named Top Coach

For the second time in the 1980s, SSC's men's tennis coach, Dean Burroughs, has been named the Mid-Atlantic Coach of the Year.

Burroughs, who also serves as the associate director of athletics at Salisbury State, has been the head tennis mentor since 1974. In his 14 years at the helm, his teams have never suffered a losing record, or a winning percentage of less than .533 (in 1980, when his team went 8-7).

In 1981 his team went 15-7 (.682), and Burroughs won his first MAPTA Coach of the Year Award. This year, his team went 13-1 for a .929 winning percentage, good for Burroughs' second coach of the year selection, as he coached the Gulls to the Eastern States Athletic Conference Championship.

The selection process is based on seven different criteria. They are: the conference that the team played in and the finish in the conference; the won-loss record of the team; the finish in districts, states, regionals and nationals; the past rankings of individual players; the previous year's won-loss record for the purpose of showing improvement; the amount of scholarship athletes and how many scholarships are available to the coach; and the strength of schedule.

While Burroughs' record over his coaching tenure is impressive enough at 217-81 for a .728 winning percentage, over the last three years, his teams are 53-10, a .841 winning percentage, and 122-51 (.705) in the 1980s.

As impressive as the numbers are, so are the rewards that Burroughs has reaped from them. He is vice-president of Colleges of the Mid-Atlantic Tennis Association, sectional endorser and coach of the MAPTA Junior Davis Cup and Corish Cup Teams; he was coach of the MATA team that won the Corish Cup in 1986.

Prescriptive Students In Reading

Freshmen and transfer students whose score on the reading placement test, given during orientation either in the summer '87 or spring '88, was in the 32-36 range are classified as prescriptive students in reading. Those students must register to take further diagnostic tests designed to determine areas of strength and weakness.

Various test dates and times have been scheduled to accommodate all students. The test sessions are:

Session 1—Wed., Feb. 24, 1-2:30 p.m.
Session 2—Thurs., Feb. 25, 3-4:30 p.m.
Session 3—Wed., March 2, 1-2:30 p.m.
Session 4—Thurs., March 3, 3-4:30 p.m.

Students need to register for one session of testing. Registration will be conducted in the main office of the Learning Center, Caruthers Hall 202.

If the diagnostic test scores indicate no serious reading problems, the prescriptive student will have fulfilled the requirement just by taking the test. If, however, deficiencies are found, the student must work in the Learning Center until those deficiencies are remediated. Failure to fulfill this requirement by testing out or working in the Center until remediated by the completion of the sophomore year may result in dismissal from the College. If a student is in doubt about his test score, he should contact his advisor or the Learning Center at 543-6395.

Dr. Thomas Bellavance, Major Knapp, Mrs. Knapp

Knapp Promoted to Major

Tom Knapp, an assistant professor in the Military Science Department since January 1985, was recently promoted to major in a formal ceremony in the Social Room at the College.

Major Knapp, a native of Bradford, PA, graduated from Ohio University and was commissioned an officer in the Corps of Engineers. He has since served with distinction at Fort Leonard Wood, MO and in the XVIIIth Airborne Corps at Ft. Bragg, NC and around the world.

At Salisbury State he has taught Military Science to freshmen, juniors and seniors and has been active in campus activities. His wife Patricia returned to the classroom after arrival in Salisbury and will soon graduate from the School of Nursing at SSC.

As the ROTC Officer-in-Charge read the promotion order stressing the "patriotism, loyalty and fidelity" of Major Knapp, Mrs. Knapp and Dr. Thomas Bellavance, the SSC president, pinned on the new rank. Also present was a professor of Military Science from the University of Delaware, LTC Rich Tarpley, Col. Bob Cook of the Maryland State Guard and several other local dignitaries.

According to Major Hiter, "This doesn't mean we'll be losing the Knapps, it just recognizes the fine job he's doing here. He'll continue his duties in ROTC."

Changes of Computer Services

During the Winter Term, several of the micro-computer facilities supported by the Department of Computer Services were remodeled. Eighteen Tandy 3000 microcomputers, networked (via a 3 COM Ethernet network) to a Tandy 4000 file server, have been moved into the basement of Blackwell Library, in the room previously occupied by the Apple Lab. During the week of February 15 through 18, this room will be available to faculty (from 2:00 until 6:00 p.m.) so they may become familiar with the equipment.

The Apple Lab was moved to the first floor of the library. This will now be used as the official word processing facility. Training sessions will be given in the use of WordPerfect, the word processing package that will be used there. The Apples will, of course, still be available for use with other software as they have been in the past.

So that students who have been using SuperScript will be able to continue using that word processor, the TRS-80 microcomputers have been moved to other locations on campus. They will be available in the main Computer Center, in Caruthers Hall, and in Devilbiss Hall, room 242. The IBM lab is still in the basement of the library. The tentative schedule for the labs follows.

VOL. IX NO. 19

Hail, Hail the Pirates are Here!

The Pirates of Penzance, the first Gilbert and Sullivan production by the College in at least a quarter of a century, opens Friday, March 11, in Holloway Hall Auditorium for six performances.

This famous W.S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan comic operetta is the first theatrical effort by the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra as well.

Written in 1879, Pirates was updated and revived in 1981 on Broadway by Joseph Papp, starring Linda Ronstadt and introducing a whole new generation of American theatre-goers to its delights.

Not all music purists were pleased with liberties taken with the score in that production, however, and the SSC interpretation is being truer to the original.

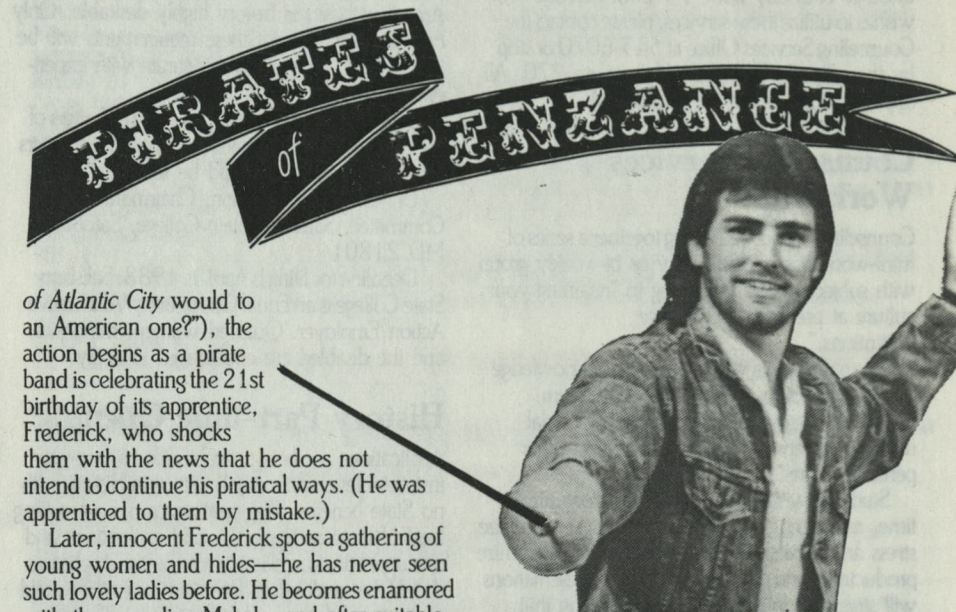

Papp, for example, eliminated the string section, added synthesizer and introduced music from Ruddigore and H.M.S. Pinfore, other Gilbert and Sullivan collaborations. The SSC production is "upping the tempo for today's audience," said stage director Paul Pfeiffer and "Tom (Elliot, symphony music director) also is adding a tuba part to give the music a little more bounce."

"But essentially we are being true to the original," Elliot said. Thirty members of the symphony will play.

"We're working for a balance between a musical comedy approach and operatta," Pfeiffer added.

Vocally, for any Gilbert and Sullivan production to succeed, it must emphasize good diction to get across Gilbert's witty lyrics, and energy to carry the comically absurd storyline.

Set in Penzance (said one Gilbert and Sullivan scholar, "...do you realize that, to a British audience, the title sounds as The Pirates of Atlantic City would to an American one?), the action begins as a pirate band is celebrating the 21st birthday of its apprentice, Frederick, who shocks them with the news that he does not intend to continue his piratical ways. (He was apprenticed to them by mistake.)

Later, innocent Frederick spots a gathering of young women and hides—he has never seen such lovely ladies before. He becomes enamored with the appealing Mabel—and after suitable complications, true love and Queen Victoria triumph over all. Popular musical selections from Pirates include the compassionate "Poor Wandering One"; the patter song "I Am the Very Model of a Modern Major General"; and the popular theme from the thunderous finale, later turned by a generation of American college students into, "Hail, hail the gang's all here..."

Leading the cast of 32 are Chris Harris as the Pirate King; Randy Ashcraft as Frederick; Nancy Barron as Frederick's nurse, Ruth; Katherine Turner as Mabel; Paul Pfeiffer as Major General Stanley; and Bob Forrester as the Sergeant of Police.

Vocal direction is by Katherine Turner; choreography is by Susan Turner; set and lighting design is by Gerald Patt; and costume design is by Pfeiffer.

Performances are Friday and Saturday, March 11 and 12, and Thursday through Saturday, March 17-19, at 8 p.m., with one matinee on Sunday, March 13, at 2 p.m. Tickets are free to SSC students, faculty and staff. Telephone reservations are now being taken at 543-6228. The Box Office, which is located in Caruthers Hall, opens Monday, February 29. The first 100 children under 12 years of age who make reservations will be given a free pirate's eye patch. For more information including group reservations, contact Dr. Andrew Hepburn in the SSC Communication Arts Department.

Teaching Thinking in the Information Age: Topic of Dixon Lecture

"Intelligence is not fixed. All of us can learn to think better," said Dr. Antoinette Worsham. To prove it she conducted a study of high school students, who using her techniques, raised their language scores on the SAT by an average 42 points.

On Monday, March 7, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium, Worsham will lecture on "Why Teach Thinking?" as this year's distinguished speaker in the third annual Aimee and Raymond Dixon Lecture Series. A reception follows her one-hour presentation and the public is invited.

Language Arts supervisor for the Howard County Public School System, she has conducted workshops and made presentations across the country on thinking. In 1986 she received the research award of the Maryland Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development.

For some time it's been known that "the human potential for learning is much greater than we realized," said Dr. Worsham. "Most adults perform at about 40 percent of what is possible."

With the tremendous volume of knowledge... with the changing pattern of society, we are moving into an information age. We need to do a better job of helping students get ready for this."

In fact, "All of us can learn to think better," she said.

The teaching of thinking is "not a new field. I think we've always taught it." But the idea that "we can make a significant impact on students' ability to think effectively—that's relatively new." This is done by "making thinking more central" to the individual.

With her emphasis on the thinking process, Worsham would seem to be countering the current trend of stressing content, as E. D. Hirsch does in his Cultural Literacy, which is making headlines. He stresses a listing of data every American should know. But Worsham sees no conflict here. "You can't think about nothing," she says. Content is important. But "the reasons kids don't recall content is because it's being taught superficially."

She used a variety of techniques in raising the SAT scores and she'll talk about ways thinking might be taught, from organizing a classroom to teaching "meta-cognition" or thinking about your own thinking. "Reflective thinkers are better problem solvers than those who aren't. Creative thinking and problem solving are more sophisticated than a,b,c" she said.

"Intelligence can be taught. . . . I teach a graduate course at my alma mater, Notre Dame of Baltimore, on teaching thinking," she said. "At the first class I ask people why they are taking the course. Better than 75 percent of the responses from these graduate students are, 'I want to become a better thinker myself.' That's good. All of us can learn to become better thinkers."

"If thinking is a characteristic of being human that differentiates us from the animals, we should be paying better attention to it."

The results of Worsham's study have been published in Educational Leadership. Among her other writings are A Model for Teaching Thinking Skills: The Inclusion Process, a Phi Delta Kappa fastback published in Spring, 1986.

On Tuesday, March 8, Worsham will be conducting a workshop for students and teachers on thinking. For more information, call Dr. Maurice Bozman, in the Education Department at 543-6282.

Gallery Exhibits Maryland Artists

"Image/Identity: Self Portraits by Maryland Artists," featuring paintings, drawings and works in mixed media by 12 different artists, will be on display at the College Gallery through March 3. The exhibition was organized by Maryland Art Place, an artists' cooperative gallery in Baltimore, and curated by Martha McWilliams, a writer and critic affiliated with the art school of the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D.C.

McWilliams will discuss the exhibition in an informal talk, intended for both the campus community and the general public, in the College Gallery on Wednesday, February 24, at 7:30 p.m.

The Gallery is located on the second floor of Blackwell Library and is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays until 8 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

The exhibition challenges traditional approaches to the self-portrait, according to Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the College Gallery. Whereas self-portraits traditionally focus on the artist's appearance, personality, and professional role, and are generally executed in a relatively realistic style, most of the works in this exhibition are in modern, experimental styles, including expressionism, abstraction and surrealism. And the artists' self-portrait, Ehrhardt said, are in many cases relatively generalized human images whose concerns or feelings suggest shared human experiences, often of a problematic nature.

Mental Health Problems Aired

A legislative brunch sponsored by the Lower Shore Chapter of the Mental Health Association recently was kicked off by Dr. Marvin Tossey of the Social Work faculty. Tossey gave an overview of a study he conducted for the Mental Health Association to determine the mental health service needs of school-age children and adolescents in the Somerset-Wicomico-Worcester area.

Mental Health Association members and mental health care professionals have long been concerned that the Shore does not have an adequate mental health care system, and that children especially, do not have access to adequate services. Tossey's study, "A Blueprint for Services," was funded by the Mental Health Association as a first step to provide a valid base for approaching the State Mental Hygiene Administration and securing the assistance of state legislators in obtaining adequate funding for mental health services for the children of the Lower Shore.

The study, conducted in the first six months of 1987, showed mental health disorders among children in the three-county area to indeed be prevalent at rates similar to those found in national studies and studies in other states.

The study findings translate into a total of 5,190 children, ranging from most severely disturbed to mildly disturbed or at-risk, who require or could benefit from mental health services. Of most concern was the finding that more than 1,000 children seriously in need of services do not receive them, and some 3,500 other children could benefit from services if such services were available.

VOL. IX NO. 20

A Record-Breaking Season Ends in a Heart-Breaking Way

Kim Burton

Jamey Griswold

Christen Hawtin

Myra Sturgis

The numbers that the 1987-88 Salisbury State women's basketball team ran up during the past season were astounding. The amount of team records that were broken during the season were astounding.

But, perhaps the most astounding fact was that on Saturday night, seniors Myra Sturgis (Stockton, MD-Snow Hill HS), Jamey Griswold (Salisbury, MD-Radnor, PA HS), Christen Hawtin (Havre de Grace, MD-North Harford HS) and Kim Burton (Salisbury, MD-James M. Bennett HS), unknown until Monday morning, suited up for their last game, a win in the Eastern States Athletic Conference Championship Game, that extended the Gulls winning streak to 15.

That win, a 91-67 thrashing of Marywood College of Scranton, PA, also was win number 20 on the year for Gail Gladding's team. A season that would include a 15-game winning streak and a 20-win season, which in most cases would include an invitation to the NCAA's post-season annual party.

However, on Monday, Sturgis, Griswold and company found out that they lost out to Ohio Northern (21-3), Glassboro (21-5), Trenton (21-5) and Kean (20-7) in their region, and to Virginia Wesleyan (20-8) in the South Region. Virginia Wesleyan is the team that the Gulls beat by 17, on the road, to start their 15-game winning streak.

So the careers of Sturgis, Griswold, Hawtin and Burton came to an abrupt end, as did the season for people like Sandy Jankevicius (Westminster, MD-South Carroll HS) Dawn Webb (Mansfield, NJ-Warren Hills HS) and Vicki Miller (Ocean City, NJ-Ocean City HS).

And while the season didn't end as many people associated with the team thought it should, or would have liked it to, it will go down as the greatest season in Salisbury State women's basketball history.

They won more games than any Gull team before, eclipsing the 17-mark set last year. The Gulls go into their first game next season, winners of 15 straight, breaking the mark of nine, set during the end of the 1973-74 season and the beginning of 1974-75. The last one in the string, the win on Saturday night, re-wrote the winning percentage chapter in the record book, at .769, beating the .750 mark of 1975-76.

The Gulls won on a powerhouse-like offense and a stingy defense. During the season the Gulls averaged more points per game, 76, than any other Gull team, shattering the high-water mark of 72.8 points per contest, set last year. The Gulls accumulated the Spirit of '76 mark by going over 70 points four times, over 80 points 10 times, and over 90 on four other occasions.

In the same breath, they gave up less than 30 points three times, less than 40 once and less than 50 eight more times. The defense also destroyed six individual marks and three team highs.

Sophomore Jankevicius now holds every Gull steal record, setting five this year. She set the record for swipes in a game, with 12 against St. Mary's. She broke her own seasonal record with 89. And her last steal in the Maryland game gave her the career record with 166. And, each additional steal during her last two years will only build on her record. She also now holds the steal per game records, for a season and a career, 3.4 and 3.1 respectively.

Another player who will be adding to her defensive record is the junior center, Webb. After three years, she has more blocks, 90, than any other Gull, breaking the record of Josie Harper. She also tied a record for blocks in a game, five, at York. That is a mark that she shares with Angie Bates, Sturgis and herself, this year being the second time that she's done it.

Along with her defense, Webb will continue to build on her free throw record, which she stole from Coach Gladding. She has now hit

'Pirates of Penzance'—Town and Gown Tackle an Operetta Together

A bumbling bunch of pirates, comic constables, a chorus of pretty ladies and much more: With over a third of the cast and practically all of the orchestra coming from the local community, the Salisbury State production of Gilbert and Sullivan's The Pirates of Penzance is a true community-college collaboration.

Scheduled to open March 11 in Holloway Hall Auditorium for six performances, the Salisbury Symphony is playing under the direction of Dr. Thomas Elliot, chairman of the College Music Department. He has created two orchestras of 32 from a pool of 43 musicians who will alternate performances.

This is Elliot's fourth Gilbert and Sullivan. "An operetta like this is an ambitious undertaking. That town and gown work together to make it come about demonstrates some quite nice things about both," he said.

The cast of 32 ranges from a Delmar elementary school teacher to a student musician with a local country band. In featured roles are Randy Ashcraft, Katherine Turner, Paul Pfeiffer, Nancy Barron, Chris Harris and Robert Forrester.

Amnesty Status

The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) reminds illegal aliens who have been living in the United States since before January 1, 1982, that time is running out to apply for legal status (amnesty).

To date, more than 1.2 million aliens have come forward to apply for legalization nationwide. More than 95 percent of these applicants have been issued employment I.D. cards and either granted or recommended for legal status; the first step toward becoming a U.S. citizen.

"If you are an alien who may be qualified for legal status (amnesty), you should not delay any longer as the legalization window closes on May 4, 1988, in only 2½ months," said Raymond B. Penn, district director of the INS office in Baltimore.

Penn said, "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for many aliens to remove themselves from the shadows of illegality and that if they neglect to apply, they will be depriving themselves and their family. Many aliens are applying because they are finding it more and more difficult to get or keep a job in the United States in that the new law now prohibits employers from hiring illegal aliens."

For more information about the new law, phone 1-800-777-7700.

Nathan Gives $40,000 To College

The Nathan Foundation of Dorchester County recently presented $40,000 to the Salisbury State College Foundation, Inc. to finance four-year scholarships. The scholarships, amounting to $8,000 each, are for five Dorchester County students attending Salisbury State.

The check was presented to Dr. Bellavance by Ed Nabb, president of the Nathan Foundation. To qualify for the scholarship, Nabb said, one has to secure a guidance counselor's recommendation. The selection process begins in May.

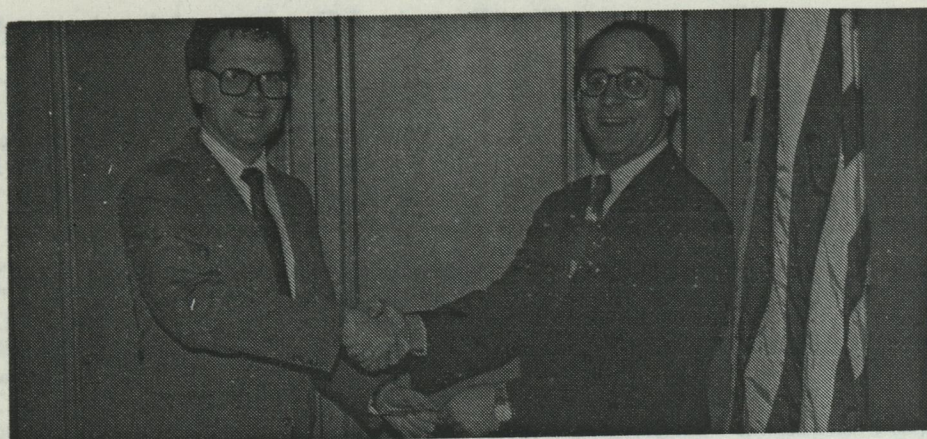

The Nathan Foundation has been making scholarship money available to Salisbury State bound students since 1962. The Foundation's 16 year investment in SSC now totals $392,517.

The scholarships are always at Salisbury State, because, Nabb said, "We can buy more quality education there for our dollar than we can at any other institution in the state of Maryland."

Dr. Bellavance said distribution of the scholarship money is closely controlled by the College. "There's been a very good track record for these students," he said.

The Foundation specifies that the money be used only for the benefit of citizens of Dorchester County and goes to organizations that serve people of every race, color and creed.

The Nathan Foundation was created in 1962 following the instruction in the will of Milford Nathan, who died in 1956. Later the Foundation was supported further from the estate of Bertha Nathan, Milford's sister who passed away in 1981.

Michael I. Wheatley, left, has been awarded a Perdue Scholarship in the Master of Business Administration Program. Presenting the award is Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. This monetary award is made to students with outstanding academic credentials and career promise. Wheatley, a native of Seaford, DE, received his undergraduate degree from the University of Virginia in 1977. Prior to entering the M.B.A. program at Salisbury State, Wheatley was a manager with Peebles Department Store for nine years.

Zeigler Adjudicator

Dr. Ray Zeigler, associate professor of Music, was one of the three adjudicators for the Montgomery County Public Schools 11th annual Madrigal Festival recently. The Festival, sponsored by the County Department of Aesthetic Education, was held at Westmoreland Congregational Church in Washington, D.C.

Each vocal group was given 10 minutes to present its selections and sang without accompaniment. Each performance was recorded with time allowed afterward for one of the adjudicators to present verbal feedback about the group's work. Each performing group was also presented with a tape of its performance for later group critiquing. The Festival is not competitive but rather held in the spirit of improving group singing through impartial evaluation.

Other adjudicators were Barbara King from the Harford County Public Schools and Sandra Stauffer from the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

School of Education Competency Tests

The School of Education requires that students who apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education Program must complete specific tests in reading, writing, mathematics and speech. These tests have helped to validate competence in basic skills for those students choosing a career in teaching.

As of the 1988 fall semester the tests used to satisfy the competency requirements will be two sections from the Core Battery of the National Teacher Examination (NTE). The Test of Communication Skills is a two-hour test that assesses knowledge and skills in the areas of listening, reading and writing. The Test of General Knowledge, also a two-hour test, assesses knowledge and understandings in literature and fine arts, mathematics, science and social studies.

To qualify for admission to the Professional Program, a student must achieve a score on these tests equal to or better than the qualifying score for Maryland certification requirements. Since the two tests are required for Maryland certification, qualified students do not have to retake those two parts when applying for certification. Students who do not achieve a satisfactory score may retake one or both of the tests at the next testing session. Test dates will normally be early in each semester with summer administration if the need arises.

Four factors of which students should be aware are:

1. The tests assess information which is gained in regular college classes so "cramming" is difficult. Students who have achieved better than average in college coursework should have no difficulty "passing" the tests.

2. There is a fee for the tests; currently, it is $45 for the two tests. This is not an extra expense however, since students must take the tests prior to certification anyway.

3. It is student's responsibility to be informed as to when the tests are administered. Information will be published in campus publications and on School of Education bulletin boards to help make students aware of the dates.

4. There will be information sessions held prior to each test date. Test samples, procedures, etc. will be discussed at these sessions.

208 tosses from the charity stripe, breaking Gladding's record by 16.

While Webb was responsible for taking away the free throw mark, Sturgis similarly broke the field goal mark, as she now holds three records that Harper held at the beginning of the campaign. With Sturgis' 211 field goals this season, she broke Harper's record of 208. Her four-year career presented her with 617 goals, surpassing Harper's 554, and also 1,249 field goals attempted, as opposed to Harper's 1,210.

To get the shots, Sturgis needed the ball, which was dealt to her by the likes of Jankevicius, who tied the record for assists in a game, with 15 in the ESAC Championship, set by Diana Defesus two years ago.

Jankevicius was also a main contributor to the three team steal records that fell—most steals in a game, which is now 33, in the game against St. Mary's; most steals in a season with 383, breaking a 10-year old school record; and best steal per game average with 14.7 per outing, also a 10-year old record.

Other team records that died were best field goal percentage for a season, 46, and most rebounds in a game with 72 at Lincoln.

That's 19 records that were broken and another two that were tied.

On the year, the Gulls came within 24 points of 2,000. They outscored their opponents by 21.7 points per game and outrebounded them by 15.5 per game. During the Gull streak of 15 straight wins, they outscored their opposition by an average of 35.2 points and outrebounded them by an average of 20.6 per game.

And, while it remains true that during the 15 games, the Gulls played their share of the Wesleys, St. Mary's and Mary Washingtons of the college basketball world, they also faced, and beat Frostburg—twice, beating their cross-country rivals when the Bobcats were 14-6 and 15-7. The Gulls also won at York when the Spartans were 8-4; beat Stockton

Spring Break in Florida

At the Outdoor Club meeting on Wednesday, March 2, there will be final preparations and instruction will be made for the caving trip to Bath County, VA, on the weekend of March 4, 5, and 6. Breathing Cave, which is on the itinerary, is a fairly extensive underground network with large rooms, hibernating bats, and a number of interesting formations. Some easy climbing will be required in touring the cave.

Planning is currently under way for canoeing, hiking and cycling in Ocala National Forest in Florida over spring break (March 26 to April 2). Canoeers will paddle on the Oklawaha River and on Alexander and Juniper Springs. Cyclers will attempt a circuit around the perimeter of the forest and along the beach, and hikers will journey in the Ocala Forest on the Florida Trail.

Attend meetings at 6 p.m. on Wednesdays in Tawes 118 for information. Preliminary sign-ups will begin at the meeting on March 2. At the meeting on March 9, Joe Gilbert will offer a presentation on cycling safety in preparation for the trip. Weekly meetings usually feature workshops, films, and presentations on outdoor skills and environmental issues.

when the Ospreys were 9-9; beat Catholic when the Cardinals were 14-5; beat Shenandoah when the Hornets were 12-3; and beat Marywood in the ESAC Championship, when the Pacers were 15-11 and fresh off of an upset win of 22-5 Allentown.

The Gulls also started their winning streak at Virginia Wesleyan on January 20. They beat the Marlins 80-63, without Dawn Webb. They had also lost four of their last five going into that game, while the host Marlins were 10-2 at the time, the Gulls 5-6.

The Gulls closed their season at 15-0, the Marlins at 10-6.

The Marlins qualified in the South Region. The careers of Myra Sturgis, Jamey Griswold, Chris Hawtin and Kim Burton are over.

Nevertheless, they were fantastic careers. And 1987-88 Salisbury State women's basketball gave everyone an unforgettable and fantastic season.

Ashcraft, 25, who plays the tenor role of Frederic, the apprentice Pirate, is a music student at SSC. He is best known to area audiences for his solo work in local clubs and singing with his family's band, Almost Country. "Normally, I'm a baritone," he said, "but Kathy (Turner, vocal director) and Ray Zeigler (Music Department professor) have been working with me and my range is growing—both up and down."

"This is the first time I've sung something of this caliber and I was a little scared at first," he said. He comes to Gilbert and Sullivan with a country, folk rock background.

After high school (James M. Bennett) where he performed in musicals, he joined the Army and was a member of the elite Green Berets. Music remained his first love, however. "I had a great first sergeant who encouraged me to go for it. He said that if music didn't work out he would take me back. But Ashcraft hasn't had to re-enlist. He made a cut, "Once Upon a Time," for an anthology recording of Delmarva talent and was told the song was the number one request from the album on local stations.

With his father and brother in Almost Country he has made a 45 which he wrote and sang and is scheduled to be released in May. He is a regular soloist at one local club, singing and playing guitar. In Pirates he sings, dances, brandishes a sword and wins the fair maiden in the end. "I've got friends like a truck driver or boiler operator who normally wouldn't come to an operatta," he said. But if they come, "I think they'll like it. I think they'll see how much fun it is."

Randy "has a powerful voice," said Turner who plays opposite him in the soprano role of Mabel. The show's vocal director and a powerful singer herself, "I don't have to hold back when I'm singing with him," she said. Turner, who has her master's in opera from the famed Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, has worked with Ashcraft's approach to Gilbert and Sullivan. "I've been coaching him stylistically to make a clean attack on the notes, as opposed to a more romantic style."

She teaches voice at both SSC and the Delaware Music School; but is probably best known to area audiences for her performances with the Commander Boardwalk Cabaret in Ocean City. This summer, her fifth season, she will be its musical director.

Her freshman year she was one of four students, out of 200 who auditioned, to be accepted at Curtis. A full scholarship student there for six years, she went on to sing roles which ranged from Susanna in The Marriage of Figaro to Frasquita in Carmen with the Sarasota (FL) Opera Association, where she sang last winter.

This is her second Gilbert and Sullivan. "I sang Josephine, the soprano role in (H.M.S.) Pinnafore," she said, "but Mabel is harder. There's more coloratura (ornamented trills and runs), but it's a lyric coloratura. I'm a lyric soprano and that I can do."

She describes herself as "hyperactive," which is harsh. At the first rehearsal of orchestra, and singers this week, she attacked her role with an enthusiasm and strength which left some of the chorus members with easier parts looking anemic and sheepish. But her enthusiasm energized the rest and the effects were rousing. "I hope the discipline I've learned from Curtis...from union jobs where you get docked if you're a minute late...from auditioning in New York where you can be rejected on things like height...as a teacher...will carry over for the other company members," she said.

Other featured performers include, Pfeiffer as Major General Stanley. Pfeiffer, a member of the Communication Arts faculty, also is the operatta's stage director.

Barrow, of Salisbury, plays the Pirate Maid of All Work, Ruth. Barrow has performed in both New York and Ankara, Turkey, where she gave concerts to raise money for earthquake victims.

SSC alumni Harris and Forester sing the roles of the Pirate King and Sergeant of Police respectively. Both, originally from Cambridge, have been solid supporters of the local theatre on campus and off. The two most recently appeared together as members of the whacky Brewster family in the Salisbury Community Players production of Arsenic and Old Lace.

Other local SSC students and community members include Robert Connelly and son Jacob, a seventh grader at Wicomico Junior High School, as constables; David Cherry of Salisbury and Ted Toadvine of Hebron as pirates; and Amy Whiting, Susan Rogers and Pamela Kinnamon, all of Salisbury, Martha Hutchins of Parsonsburg, and Patricia Morris of Whalesville, as daughters of Major General Stanley. Rounding out the company locally are Katherine Thiele of Fruitland, April Toadvine of Hebron, Nelliana Lopez, a fifth grader at Glen Avenue, and Katie Pfeiffer, a third grader at Prince Street Elementary School.

Other SSC students in the production include Tim Bowman, Carreen Koubek, Craig Pettinati, Timothy Salisbury, William Shupe II, Steven Wilson, Catherine Farmer, Lisa Massi and Susan Young.

Kimberly Arthur, Kristin Franks and Michelle Pinchak are stage managers.

Pirates promises entertainment for the whole family March 11-13 and 17-19 in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission is free to SSC students, faculty and staff. Call the box office at 543-6228 for further information. A free Pirates eyepatch will be given to the first 100 children with reservations!

Planning Ahead: The University Logo and Seal

The university logo will be used exclusively on all printed materials beginning July 1. Departments needing a copy of the logo to make appropriate changes in their areas of responsibility are asked to call the Public Relations office at 543-6030.

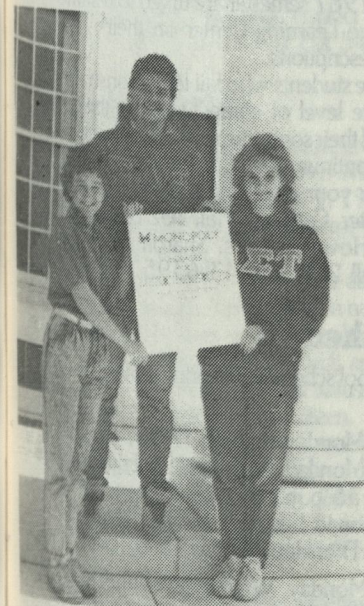

All changes must be made by July 1; PR must receive the orders for new stationery and envelopes by April 30. All "College" logo stationery should be discarded after July 1, the date Salisbury State officially becomes a University. As departments reorder brochures, Public Relations will make necessary logo changes.

"All printed materials bearing the logo or seal have to be revised," said Carol Bloodworth, Publications manager. "For a smooth transition, please have your request in to us by April 30 or earlier. If you have questions, don't hesitate to call me."

Monopoly Tournament on Campus Saturday

The Inter Fraternity Council and the Senate of Salisbury State College are sponsoring a Monopoly Tournament on Saturday, March 12, to benefit the Baltimore Ronald McDonald House.

Held in the College Center, the fund raiser, featuring multiple games of the popular board game, will raise money for the home-away-from-home for families of children being treated in the Baltimore area for life-threatening diseases.

All SSC students are eligible to participate. Participants must collect at least $30 in pledges as an entry fee. To obtain an official pledge sheet, go to the Student Senate Office in Tawes Hall or call tournament chairmen Pete Glass (543-0488) or Kelli Rogers (546-0790). Persons making donations must give their monetary pledge to the contestant at the time they sign the office pledge sheet.

First round play takes place from 11 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. Games will be played by four to six contestants. The top 50 percent of the participants who acquire the most assets in the first round are eligible for the second round, from 12:45-2:15 p.m. The top 25 percent from the second round move onto the final round, from 3-4:30 p.m., which will produce an overall winner.

The champion will receive a free McDonald's meal for two (up to an $8 value each month), once a month for a year. The winner will also receive 12 McDonald's gift certificates. The champion's score will be submitted to Parker Brothers, distributor of Monopoly, to determine if he or she is eligible for the Monopoly National Competition.

A prize will also be awarded to the individual who enters the tournament with the most pledges. The top pledge-getter will receive a free party at a local McDonald's for up to 30 friends (up to $300 in value).

For more information, call Glass, Rogers or the Student Senate Office (543-6183).

Pre-Nursing Students

The application deadline for enrollment in the Nursing major for fall semester was March 1.

This applies to those Pre-Nursing students anticipating registering for Nursing 300, Professional Nursing Concepts, for fall, as well as other students interested in the major. Amnesty Status

The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) reminds illegal aliens who have been living in the United States since before January 1, 1982, that time is running out to apply for legal status (amnesty).

To date, more than 1.2 million aliens have come forward to apply for legalization nationwide. More than 95 percent of these applicants have been issued employment I.D. cards and either granted or recommended for legal status; the first step toward becoming a U.S. citizen.

"If you are an alien who may be qualified for legal status (amnesty), you should not delay any longer as the legalization window closes on May 4, 1988, in only 2½ months," said Raymond B. Penn, district director of the INS office in Baltimore.

Penn said, "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for many aliens to remove themselves from the shadows of illegality and that if they neglect to apply, they will be depriving themselves and their family. Many aliens are applying because they are finding it more and more difficult to get or keep a job in the United States in that the new law now prohibits employers from hiring illegal aliens."

For more information about the new law, phone 1-800-777-7700.

School of Education Competency Tests

The School of Education requires that students who apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education Program must complete specific tests in reading, writing, mathematics and speech. These tests have helped to validate competence in basic skills for those students choosing a career in teaching.

As of the 1988 fall semester the tests used to satisfy the competency requirements will be two sections from the Core Battery of the National Teacher Examination (NTE). The Test of Communication Skills is a two-hour test that assesses knowledge and skills in the areas of listening, reading and writing. The Test of General Knowledge, also a two-hour test, assesses knowledge and understandings in literature and fine arts, mathematics, science and social studies.

To qualify for admission to the Professional Program, a student must achieve a score on these tests equal to or better than the qualifying score for Maryland certification requirements. Since the two tests are required for Maryland certification, qualified students do not have to retake those two parts when applying for certification. Students who do not achieve a satisfactory score may retake one or both of the tests at the next testing session. Test dates will normally be early in each semester with summer administration if the need arises.

Four factors of which students should be aware are:

1. The tests assess information which is gained in regular college classes so "cramming" is difficult. Students who have achieved better than average in college coursework should have no difficulty "passing" the tests.

2. There is a fee for the tests; currently, it is $45 for the two tests. This is not an extra expense however, since students must take the tests prior to certification anyway.

3. It is student's responsibility to be informed as to when the tests are administered. Information will be published in campus publications and on School of Education bulletin boards to help make students aware of the dates.

4. There will be information sessions held prior to each test date. Test samples, procedures, etc. will be discussed at these sessions.

Questions about test requirements should be directed to Dr. Gerry Rossi, Literacy Task Force chairman, in CH-B-162 or Al Constantine, director of Field Experiences, in CH-B-153.

How to Give Less to Uncle Sam and More to Your Retirement

As April 15 draws near, we are all, once again, confronted with the fact that a large portion of our income is lost to taxes. But there is a way to make our tax situation better!

Many employees here at the College have already joined the new State of Maryland 403 (b) Tax Sheltered Annuity Plan. These employees are able to set aside a portion of their income (generally 20% up to $9500.00/year) and not pay federal, state or local taxes on that amount. So in addition to reducing current taxes, participation in the new 403 (b) Tax Sheltered Plan allows preparation for a more comfortable retirement, when funds can be withdrawn. Prior to retirement, participants can withdraw funds via the load provision or at age 59½, even while still employed.

The Holden Group has been selected to service and administered the new Tax Sheltered Annuity Plan. They have five enrollment counselors who can meet with you individually. Linda Raleigh is the representative here. If you are interested in meeting with her please call 301-625-1655 or 800-445-0803 for an appointment. Specifically, the counselors can calculate the amount you are eligible to defer and show you how much this will save you in taxes as well as the affect on your net pay.

Fleming to Conduct Choir

Dr. Jessie L. Fleming, professor of Music, has been appointed the conductor of a choir representing the southern region of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Wilmington. Fifty singers have been drawn from parishes in Rehoboth Beach, Bethany Beach, Ocean City, Milford, Pocomoke City and Salisbury.

The choir provided the music for a church service in Ocean City on January 29, at which all the clergy of the diocese were present and the bishop presided. Dr. Arthur L. Delpaz, associate professor of Music, was organist for the service. The choir performed again on February 28 for a diocesan celebration which was held at St. Francis de Sales Church in Salisbury.

The group will provide music for two more major church events—on Monday, March 28, at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, April 17, at 2 p.m., also in St. Francis Church. The bishop will preside and clergy will attend from throughout the diocese. The congregation will represent Catholic Churches from Dover to Pocomoke City.

On these occasions the organist will be Mrs. Joan Davis, a 1983 Music major graduate of Salisbury State. Several instruments will augment the organ, including Music majors Tom Savage, trumpet, and Sarah McGee, flute, and two SSC Music Education graduates, Paul Cooper, timpani, and Nancy Fritz Pentalone, flute. Other instrumentalists are from Parkside High School and handbell choir from the Wicomico Presbytery.

Men's Lacrosse: A Good Team Gets Even Better

By Barry Packer

If desire, team-unity and athletic ability are the hallmarks of winners, then this year's men's lacrosse team should experience one of its most successful seasons ever. A fresh and positive attitude and a new coaching staff have both come together. The result is a team that is physically and mentally ready to win against the best.

First-year head Head Coach Ron Roberts says, "I came in with high expectations and I know the potential to win a championship is there. They are a talented and dedicated group that will be exciting to watch."

This year's team is a blend of experienced, returning players and talented newcomers.

The mid-line features senior trip-captains Doug Boozer (Towson-Towson HS) on face offs and Rick Maranto (Crofton-St. Mary's HS) who, in just eight games last year, had 28 points on 15 goals and 13 assists. They will be joined by seniors Alan Abe (Annapolis-Severna Park, HS) and Ron McGann (Westfield, NJ-Westfield HS).

According to Maranto, "I see great team unity and a lot of desire. This, along with the athletic talent being brought out by more animation and imagination gives us the opportunity to win the big games."

The attack line on this year's team also is stacked with talent, desire and the ability to score. Junior Tim Berquist (Towson-Towson HS) returns as the team's leading scorer. In 1987, Berquist tallied 71 points on 19 goals and 52 assists, which placed him sixth in the country for assists.

"This year's team is different," says Berquist. "There is a strong nucleus and a good blend of players who could take us to the playoffs this year."

Berquist will be joined by senior Mike Provenzano (Chester, NJ-Columbia HS) and sophomore Bucky Sharets (Lutherville-Towson HS). Last season, Provenzano was responsible for 39 points with 31 goals and 8 assists. With such scorers, no doubt the team will be putting the ball in their opponent's nets many times during the season.

The Gulls also have the capabilities of keeping the ball out of their own net, with a strong defense dominated by returners with some new defensive schemes. The defense is anchored by tri-captain and All-American Peter Roskovich. As a returning All-American he, like Berquist, sees this team as being different from those in the past. "There is a positive attitude and a sense of pride that gives this team character. I think this will help us in the tough games."

Joining Roskovich on defense are junior Tom Bruchman (Reistertown-Franklin HS) and sophomore Rob Lynch (Centerport, NY-Harborfields HS). One of the biggest parts of the defense will be the return of sophomore Dave Slomkowski (Laurel, MD-Dematha HS) to goal.

Slomkowski sat out last season due to an injury; he's anxious to get back on the playing field. "I'm real excited and I think we're going to have a great year. Our defense is more complex and should add to the team's success."

All in all, looking at the talent, desire and sheer ability of this team, there is no reason to think that the Gulls won't have a successful season. Coach Roberts agrees.

"Salisbury lacrosse has never had such athletic ability, lacrosse skills and such a superior team-attitude all in one group of guys. They have an enormous amount of potential, and if they can live up to that potential, a National Championship could be on the horizon."

Deshon Celebrates 25 Years of Batter Up! at SSC

by Barry Packer

The 1988 baseball season is an anniversary of sorts for Head Coach Deane Deshon and he feels that this may well be the best team he has ever celebrated it with.

And, that's saying a lot. This is Deshon's 25th anniversary as head coach of SSC's baseball team. In his previous 24 years, he's had teams that have produced nearly 400 wins, six 20-win seasons, one 30-win season, four NAIA post-season births and five NCAA post-season trips.

Says Deshon, "We have good pitching, strong hitting and very good defense. It just might be as good a club as I have ever had here."

As the saying goes, "pitching wins pennants," and this club has plenty of quality pitching, beginning with the starting rotation of senior Ricky Collett (Glen Burnie-Old Mill HS), junior Kevin Smith (Kingsville-John Carroll HS) and sophomore Mark Perry (Delmar, DE-Delmar HS).

Deshon's bullpen is comprised of a pair of freshmen and juniors and one sophomore. The rookies are Andy Redmond (Hollywood-Leonardtown HS) and Jason McNeal (Beltsville-High Point HS). The sophomore is six-footer Brad Beck (Westminster-Westminster HS), and the juniors are Daryl Becker (Parkville-Parkville HS) and Al Pritchett (Easton-Easton HS), with Pritchett being the only one of the five to pitch last year. In nine relief outings he went 2-0.

A veteran outfield includes junior pitcher and outfielder, Pritchett and seniors Allen Cook (Smyrna, DE-Smyrna HS), Randy Collett (Glen Burnie-Old Mill HS) and grad student Bruce Matthews (Salisbury-Wicomico HS).

The inner defense will probably include junior Chris Manouse (Baltimore-Parkville HS) at first, senior Scott Reeling (Berlin-Stephen Decatur HS) at second, senior Jeff Stokes (Chestertown-Kent HS) at third and junior Russ Smith (Westminster-Westminster HS) at short.

The good hands and arm extends from the hot corner (third base) to behind the dish where sophomore Artie Perdue (Seaford, DE-Seaford HS) and senior Rob Hartwell (Spofford, NH-Keene HS) will be battling for the number one receiver spot. Last year Hartwell had one error in 26 chances, while Perdue had four in 101 opportunities.

Rounding out the team are a pair of freshmen infielders, shortstop Randy Holt (California-Leonardtown HS) and second baseman Rich Fraser (Bowie-Dematha HS).

A formidable group of 23 players for Deshon and Assistant Coach Brian Wajert will battle "Glassboro, Methodist, North Carolina Wesleyan and Virginia Wesleyan—our toughest games," says Deshon.

Considering the teams the coach has had in the past, if this is his best ball-club ever, the people of Salisbury could be in for a very exciting spring.

World Championship Carving Competition

Internationally-acclaimed British artist Basil Ede is among the 42 judges participating in the Ward Foundation's World Championship Wildfowl Carving Competition on April 22, 23, and 24 at the Ocean City Convention Center.

The 18th annual competition, which provides a forum for the judging of contemporary wildfowl carving, is expected to bring together more than 800 carvers who will compete for $65,000 in prize money.

Ede, called by many the world's foremost painter of sculpture birds, will be judging alongside renowned carver Larry Barth and Tina Norrelli of the Smithsonian Institution, to decide the first, second and third place winners of the Decorative Lifesize Wildfowl category in both World Class and Open divisions. First place in the World Class division becomes part of the Ward Foundation's permanent collection and earns the artist $20,000.

Ede is known for the painstakingly exact detail and ornithological accuracy of his paintings, as well as for the more impressionistic background treatments in his recent works.

An exhibition of Ede's paintings from the Wild Birds of America series will be held Saturday, April 23, at the Ward Foundation's Member's Cocktail Party. The exhibition will be at the Ocean Pines Yacht Club in Berlin, from 6:30 to 9:00 p.m.

For more information about the World Championship Carving Competition or the Member's Cocktail Party, contact the Ward Foundation office at 742-4988.

The Great Gilbert & Sullivan Revival

by Jim Welsh

So what do we expect of a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta? A time of "innocent merriment," to be sure, and sublime folly, set in a fantasy world of Victorian satire. The 19th century did not produce much in the way of remarkable theatre in either the United States or England (nothing here, Shaw and Oscar Wilde there); but it did produce one truly remarkable collaboration, thanks to Richard D'Oyly Carte, who successfully linked the librettist William Schwenck Gilbert with the foremost composer of the Victorian Era, Sir Arthur Sullivan, whose musical sense of humor perfectly complemented Gilbert's verbal genius.

In the composer's own time, novelist and critic Anthony Burgess has remarked, Sir Arthur Sullivan "was considered England's answer to Mozart, Mendelssohn, Spohr and Weber." But in the public mind his talent was forever wedded to that of a satirical genius who, in The Mikado, proposed Louis Spohr (a well regarded "serious" composer of the time) as a punishment for music-hall singers forced to listen to "masses and fugues and ops by Bach, interwoven with Spohr and Beethoven." Poor Sir Arthur wanted to be remembered as a serious composer, not as one skilled at setting delightful ditties to music. Beyond these, however, the 20th century remembers very little by Sullivan—a sacred song entitled "The Lost Chord," perhaps (as witnessed by recent letters to radio station WSCL), and, of course, the hymn "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Gilbert outlived Sullivan by 12 years, but after Sullivan's death ended the 20-year partnership, the librettist was drawn to this sad conclusion: "A Gilbert is of no use without a Sullivan—and I can't find one."

Richard D'Oyly Carte's Opera Company lasted for 107 years. It folded a few years ago in 1982, but 1988 brought the good news that the company was being reformed. Bridget D'Oyly Carte left in her will a substantial sum of money that will be used to fund a resuscitated company to be called "The Yeomen of the Guard." D'Oyly Carte set the standard for Gilbert and Sullivan productions, and directors taking new and inventive approaches (such as the Joseph Papp production of The Pirates of Penzance that expanded the text and the foolish action) would do so only at the risk of offending the purists.

The subtitle "A Slave of Duty" sets the satiric theme for The Pirates of Penzance, and there are multiple variations worked on the theme of "duty" in the operetta—from the "constabulary duty" of the police to protect the citizens of Penzance from the pirates, to Mabel's "duty" to help lead the reformed Frederic to the path of righteousness, to Frederic's own sense of "duty" to his pirate band, when he learns that he will not be freed from his indenture for many years, since he was born on February 29 during leap-year. Has there ever been a more loopy plot complication?

Mabel's quest is perfectly expressed by the music. Consider, for example, the song "Poor Wandering One," a mock-sentimental lament voiced by Mabel, whose duty it is to help the reformed pirate Frederic return to the fold of conventional piety and banality. As Charles Hayter has noted in his book on Gilbert and Sullivan, the song "reads like a hymn," full of "thees" and "thous" and dominated by the imagery of the 23rd Psalm, but Sullivan sets the words "not to a hymn but to the most sensuous of 19th century popular musical forms, a waltz." The words suggest Victorian piety and propriety, undercut by the passion and romance evoked by the music.

Frederic himself, however, is the "slave of duty" of the title, and a paragon of virtue and right behavior. When he first meets Mabel, the beautiful daughter of Major General Stanley and the first young woman he has ever seen, his thoughts immediately turn to marriage, not lust, for such was the standard of Victorian England. Gilbert the satirist, of course, intended this to be a parody of the Victorian moral code.

Charles Hayter finds the exact targets of Gilbert's satire in the work of one Samuel Smiles, whose books, entitled Duty, Thrift, Self Help, and Character, taught young men that their happiness depended on "diligent self-culture, self-discipline, and self-control; and above all, upon the honest and upright performance of individual duty." In 1879, moreover, James Albergy projected these high ideals into a play entitled Duty. Hayter contends that The Pirates of Penzance was "a burlesque of the moral attitudes epitomized by Albergy's play." He also points out that Samuel Smiles would not approve of Major General Stanley, who tells a lie to avoid being captured by the pirates, because "Lying," according to Smiles, "is not only dishonest, but cowardly." Oh, the shame of it all!

Paul Pfeiffer will play Stanley in the College production of Penzance that opens at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium March 11 for a two-weekend run. It closes Saturday, March 19. Pfeiffer also directs the play, a difficult task no doubt, though one recalls that he once directed The Elephant Man in Salisbury while also playing the lead role of John Merrick. Pfeiffer's musicals at the College have ranged from The Boy Friend to Cabaret. The musical direction rests in the competent hands of Dr. Thomas Elliot, the conductor of the newly-formed Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, who conducted Sullivan's music for Penzance elsewhere before coming to Salisbury State to chair the Department of Music.

One hopes that the College production of The Pirates of Penzance, led by the singing talents of Katherine Turner's Mabel and Randy Ashcraft's Frederic, under the theatrical and musical direction of Paul Pfeiffer and Tom Elliot, will be strong enough to send all of Delmarva singing the inspired lunacy of Gilbert and Sullivan and will create such a demand that Gilbert and Sullivan may become a regular annual offering for the Eastern Shore. I would even go so far as to push for a Gilbert & Sullivan Summer Festival for the Shore. Think of the effect this might have on summer tourism, considering what Shakespeare has done for Stratford, Ontario, and what G.B. Shaw has done for Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Perhaps what is needed is an inspired and energetic impresario, a person of vision to lead the enterprise. Financial support from the Chamber of Commerce and local businesses as well as from the College would of course be necessary, but the payoff could be phenomenal. Consider, moreover, the practical experience such an enterprise could offer to theatre students and music majors at the College, to say nothing of the possibility of pleasurable summer employment for students and faculty alike. Who, I wonder, would move first to support the idea of a resident company that might be called the Eastern Shore Savoyards—Salisbury, or Ocean City? Surely both communities could benefit from such an endeavor.

Interested readers may wish to consult any of the following books dealing with Gilbert and Sullivan, some of which are on reserve at the Blackwell Library: Arthur Jacobs, Arthur Sullivan: A Victorian Musician (Oxford University Press, 1984); Charles Hayter, Gilbert and

ABQ to Perform with Naked Feet Dance Company

The Annapolis Brass Quintet will perform their last concert of the 1987-88 series on Monday, April 4 at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Tickets are $12 ($10 SWAC members).

The ABQ is collaborating with the Naked Feet Dance Co., ending the season on a lively note.

"This first collaboration between the Annapolis Brass Quintet and a dance company is a challenging one for us," said Robert Posten, member of the ABQ. "We've learned how to accompany dancers and they have learned how to interpret our music so both ensembles have grown artistically through this program. To see a choreographed image of our brass music is exciting for both us and the audience."

Naked Feet Dance Co. is based in Baltimore and has been acclaimed for its innovative work. It has performed several times in Wicomico County schools in the past years and the company has often included dancers from the Wicomico area.

For tickets or more information on this Annapolis Brass concert featuring Naked Feet, call 543-ARTS or stop by SWAC in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Tickets are also available at all eleven locations of Peninsula Bank and John Hanson Savings Bank.

Business School's Study/Travel In Europe

Four SSC students and a professor from The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business recently returned from a study/travel course that took them to Brussels, Paris, Geneva, Lausanne, Cologne and Amsterdam.

While in Europe for 20 days during the College's Winter Term, they visited a dozen international business groups, examining their operations and meeting and interviewing their top level executives.

Gerard DiBartolo, a marketing professor at the Perdue School, was one of three tour leaders for the International Business Seminar that attracted 46 students from 10 different colleges and universities throughout the U.S. The opportunity to step out of a textbook and into the real world of a multi-national firm on foreign soil intrigued him as well as his students.

Prior to the trip, students were assigned one of the dozen firms on the trip's itinerary to study and analyze. Students had to do research on that company so they could make a presentation to the study group just prior to visiting their assigned firm. After that presentation, the student would be responsible for the ritual gift exchange between the visitors and the host company as well as asking the initial questions of the company's executives. They would later have to submit a research paper on their assigned company based on both what they had discovered in libraries in the U.S. and what they had discerned during their actual visit and discussions with the firm's managers in Europe.

"It was educational," said Joanne Massey, a senior Liberal Studies major from Seaford who was assigned the French champagne company, Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin, "much more than I could have gotten out of a book."

Added Deborah Van Slyke, a senior Business major from Lutherville, MD, "I learned a lot, especially about how the Europeans conduct business."

DiBartolo expanded on Van Slyke's observation. "It's a relaxed business style," observed DiBartolo, "almost bordering on the informal. They (European executives) seem to have a greater appreciation for quality of life and for their employees."

DiBartolo said he gleaned a number of other general observations about the European way of doing business, particularly the keen interest Europeans have in the business and governmental policies in the U.S.

Wenke Published

"Remarkably sophisticated and judicious," is how Hershel Parker, perhaps the foremost scholar today on the works of Herman Melville, describes a recent essay by Dr. John Wenke, associate professor of English.

The title of Wenke's article was "Ontological Heroics: Melville's Philosophical Art" and was published in a Companion to Melville Studied, edited by John Bryant.

In the latest issue of Studies in American Fiction, a prominent scholarly journal, Wenke has authored "Sut Lovingood's Yams and the Politics of Performance", which examines the comic escapades of this antebellum Tennessee literary character created by George Washington Harris.

Wenke is currently under contract to Twayne publishers of Boston for a book-length critical study of The Short Fiction of J.D. Salinger. This research is supported by a grant from the Salisbury State College Foundation.

Zeigler at Conference

Dr. Ray Zeigler, associate professor of Music, recently led a discussion for the Maryland Music Educators Association at its annual State Conference.

The Conference was held on March 3 through 6 in Ocean City. The Friday morning session included a discussion on the implications of the Maryland Music Curriculum Framework on higher education in the state.

The Music Framework, which is in the process of being printed, is the culmination of three year's work by a 15-member task force. The task force was coordinated by Zeigler and consisted of music educators from rural, urban and suburban Maryland.

The document relates the teaching of music to the State's Fine Arts Graduation Requirement consisting of philosophy, goals, subgoals and sequenced expectancies for grades K through 12. According to Zeigler, "The framework provides for an education that extends far beyond K through 12; it is for K through life. The implications extend far beyond our public schools," said Zeigler "including teacher preparation, teachers in service, administrators and parents. There is a renewed emphasis on music as creative intellectual pursuit and human expression rather than music as activity and public relations. Music is regarded as an art rich in cultural heritage in need of transmission and as a medium for unique creative expression. The ultimate goal is a continuing development of aesthetic awareness in students, an awareness that can powerfully enrich their lives."

Seldomridge Speaker

Lisa Seldomridge, instructor in the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, recently addressed 60 first grade students at the West Salisbury School.

Her topic, "Your Organs and What They Do For You," introduced students to the location, size, shape and function of vital organs.

Mrs. Seldomridge is a member of the American Heart Association and the SSC Speaker's Bureau.

Nursing Gets Grant

The Department of Nursing has been awarded a $232,000 training grant in gerontological nursing from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Division of Nursing.

The purpose of the three-year grant is to strengthen and expand the gerontological nursing component of the College's B.S.N. completion program for registered nurses.

According to the project director, Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Services, "The program is designed to address a critical need of the lower Delmarva Peninsula for nurses with special expertise in the care of the aged." Barfield said, "The training program will incorporate theory and clinical practice in preventive care, acute care and long-term care of the elderly and the development of leadership roles in gerontological nursing practice."

Clinical experiences will be offered in cooperation with hospitals, nursing homes and community health agencies throughout the region.

Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of Academic Affairs, said, "The project has received the enthusiastic support of health agencies throughout the lower Delmarva Peninsula."

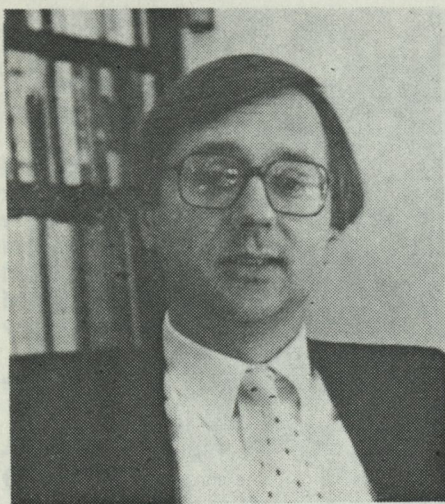

Barfield added, "Many of the registered nurses who will be participating in the program are area residents who are now working with the elderly, often in leadership positions. Therefore, this project could have a tremendous impact on the quantity and quality of health services available to the region's elderly population."

Tomas E. Mann

Political Science Sponsors Presidential Nominations Lecture

"At one time the selection of presidential nominees was the business of party bosses, but today the process is controlled by the media and the voters," said Dr. Harry Basehart, chairman of the Political Science Department. To help make sense out of what is going on, the SSC Political Science Club is sponsoring "The Politics of the 1988 Presidential Nominations," a lecture/discussion by Tomas E. Gallery Talks for Children In Gallery On Print Exhibition

Karen Mitchell, the education coordinator of the Salisbury State College Gallery, will give two gallery talks, intended primarily for young children and their parents in connection with the Gallery's current exhibition, "Prints by 20th Century Artists," on Saturday afternoon, March 19, at 1 p.m. and 2 p.m.

The talks will take place in the Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library. Younger children, in kindergarten through third grade, should attend the 1 p.m. talk, if possible; and those in fourth through sixth grade, the 2 p.m. talk, Mrs. Mitchell said.

The talks will introduce children to several styles of art and to different types of printmaking techniques, as exemplified by the works in the exhibition, which includes prints from the first decade of the 20th century to the 1970s. Most of the prints are by American artists, Mitchell said, though a few Mexican and European works are also represented, including a small drip print of flutists by Picasso.

Styles include various approaches to realism, as well as such characteristically modern styles as expressionism, surrealism and different types of abstraction. Comparatively recent styles such as pop art, op art and photorealism are also represented. Subjects include landscape and architectural views; scenes of urban and everyday life, including works from the Depression era and more recent "pop" images derived from commercial art and popular culture; and fantastic, dream-like images by certain surrealists, suggesting both mythic or mystical, as well as personal, experience.

The exhibition, which was organized by the International Graphic Arts Foundation, will be in the College Gallery through March 24. Its showing at the College was made possible, in part, by a grant from the Salisbury/Wicomico County Arts Council.

Regularly scheduled talks on the exhibition, also given by Mrs. Mitchell, take place each Tuesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Tours for groups may be arranged by calling the Gallery at least one week in advance of the desired tour date.

Gallery hours are Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5 to 8 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Medical Laboratory Week

Salisbury State celebrates National Medical Laboratory Week (April 10-16) by participating in the Health Careers Night sponsored by the School of Nursing and Health Sciences on Tuesday, April 12.

Faculty members from the Medical Technology Department will demonstrate actual laboratory tests and will offer career information to individuals interested in careers in the laboratory sciences.

The event salutes the important work of medical laboratory professionals who comprise the health care community's third largest segment.

"We want to tell people that medical laboratory professionals are essential in the diagnosis and treatment of illness," said Johanna Laird, chairperson of the Medical Technology Department.

This year's theme, "Our Knowledge, Skills and Dedication—For Your Good Health," was chosen to increase public awareness of how the work done in the laboratory relates to the health of patients. Attending physicians depend upon laboratory test results to confirm the diagnosis and prescribe appropriate treatment.

"We use a variety of techniques in the laboratory, from testing blood and urine samples to the operation of sophisticated, computerized instruments," said Mrs. Laird. "If you've ever wondered what hospital tests are for, this is a good opportunity to find out."

For more information, contact Mrs. Laird at (301) 543-6364.

But this trip offered more than a chance to make broad generalizations about European business practices; it afforded students and faculty alike a first-hand glimpse into specific issues faced by a diverse number of companies operating in a business climate radically different than that of the U.S.

The "One Europe" plan was of particular interest to the tour group, said DiBartolo of the proposal to unify many European countries by 1992 into a powerful economic force. The plan would eliminate border restrictions and provide for the free flow of goods.

The tour group also focused on what the U.S. is doing about the trade and balance of payments deficits; and, of immediate concern, how European executives viewed those deficits as a major problem in the world trade market.

Some of the issues addressed were specific to the industries represented by the companies the group visited.

Visits to German industrial giants, Krupp (steel) and VIAG (energy) provided a chance to better understand the co-determination operational style of management. Unions in these firms have an active say in how the company is managed, including membership on the board of directors and the management committee.

In Geneva, the tour group examined questions about secret Swiss bank accounts, including whether heirs should have access to what transactions occurred in the deceased's account and the flow of money in and out of that account. Also, a foreign government's right to investigate those accounts when wrongdoing is suspected was discussed.

Questions about marketing strategy were also explored. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin has been unable to successfully penetrate the U.S. market with its relatively expensive champagne. It is currently attempting to reposition itself to gain a foothold in the American market.

In Cologne, West Germany, the tour group learned of the problems faced by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. there in selling and promoting the sale of cigarettes in Germany: advertising is limited; the price is inflated by a tax that represents 75 percent of the selling price; competition exists from other U.S. firms as well as foreign ones; and social awareness of the dangers of smoking is rising, concerns that have been raised in the U.S. for over a decade. R.J. Reynolds, then, is attempting to increase its market share in a country whose market for that product is undergoing a dramatic change.

Not all of the trip, however, was spent in board rooms. Social highlights, according to

VOL. IX NO. 24

Pulitzer Prize-Winning Drama Opens April 7

Fences, winner of the 1987 Pulitzer Prize for Drama, the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award and the Tony Award for Best Play on Broadway, opens April 7 for four performances in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

This powerful drama of black family life is sponsored by the Salisbury State theatre program, in cooperation with Sophanes, the student theatre club. The cast of six splits evenly between students at Salisbury State and the University of Maryland, Eastern Shore.

Fences is set in the late 1950s in a city much like Pittsburgh, PA, where its author, August Wilson, grew up. The story of a great baseball player turned garbage collector, his passions both hold his family together as they threaten to destroy it. Fences has "a moving story line and a hero almost Shakespearean in contour," wrote Sylviane Gold in The Wall Street Journal. Filled with corrosive humor, the Chicago Sun Times compared Fence's sweep and moral fervor to Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman.

According to Wilson, a poet turned playwright, "Usually I start my plays with a line of dialogue and the play will grow from that particular line. Fence's he observed, grew up around the imagined words of a middle-aged black man cradling an infant in his hands, and remarking how little the child knew of the troubles of adult life.

For Keith Davis, director of the SSC production and senior Communication Arts major here, the play has a personal meaning. "I look at Troy (the play's protagonist) and see my father. My father always wanted the best for his kids. So he was always pushing us to the point of backlash. My father was very strict."

David Scott Penn (left) is Bono, a victim of another story by Troy (right, played by Darryl Lee Dillard) in August Wilson's Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, Fences in performance April 7, 8, 9 and 10 in Caruthers Auditorium.

Wilson is also the author of the critically acclaimed, Ma Rainey's Black Bottom, which won the New York Critics' Circle Award for Best Play in 1985, and received a Tony Award nomination. His most recent play, Joe Turner's Come and Gone recently opened on Broadway.

Fences is a play about family relationships, husband and wife, father and son, Davis said. Written in the vernacular, its language at times is strong, and may not be suitable for all audiences.

Leading the cast as Troy is Darryl Dillard, a junior SSC Communication Arts major. He appeared in The Pirates of Penzance and The Cherry Orchard earlier this season. Catrice Renee Vandross plays Rose, Troy's wife. Vandross is a sophomore Elementary Education major at UMES and was active in drama at Potomac High School. Davis is Gabriel, Troy's brother wounded in World War II. A Dean's List student, he appeared in The Cherry Orchard and Of Mice and Men. Donald Washington, a junior SSC Physical Education major, plays Cory, Troy's son who wants to play football. Charles P. Howard III plays, Lyon, Cory's half-brother who finds refuge in music. Howard is a junior English major at UMES where he is a Dean's List student. He is also an announcer for WESM and a member of the UMES Drama Society. David Scott Penn plays Bono, Troy's friend. Penn, also a junior English major at UMES where he is a Dean's List student, played Jason in Medea and in One Bright Hope there.

Costume designer is Andrea Thomas, scene and lighting designer is Thomas Godwyn.

Performances are Thursday through Saturday, April 7-9, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, April 10, at 2 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Admission is free and the public is invited. For reservations call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228.

Sloan Next Great Leader Lecturer

John Sloan, chief executive officer of the National Federation of Independent Business, the largest small business organization in the U.S., makes a presentation in the spring Great Leaders Lecture Series 1987/88 on Thursday, April 7, at 12:20 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The series, sponsored by the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business is free and open to the public.

Prior to joining NFIB in August of 1983, he was president and CEO of First Tennessee Bank N.A., Nashville.

Sloan was born in 1936 in Nashville and raised on an operating farm in Williamson County, TN. As a youth, Sloan was active in the 4-H Club, principally showing Guernsey cattle. He has operated a cattle farm in southern Tennessee and still owns a small farm near Nashville where he raises and trains horses. A 1958 cum laude graduate of Vanderbilt University, Mr. Sloan served in the U.S. Navy from 1958 to 1961. He was discharged with the rank of lieutenant. He is a 1971 graduate of Stonier Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University.

Sloan has been an active participant in small-business activities for many years. From 1981-1984, he served as chairman of the National Advisory Council of the Small Business Administration. He has also served as chairman of the State Advisory Council of the SBA in Tennessee. He was a member of the Small Business Council of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He has also been a member of the Commercial Lending Division, Small Business Credit Committee of the American Bankers Association.

As president of First Tennessee Bank, Nashville, Sloan initiated several innovative, aggressive programs in support of the bank's principal clientele—medium and small businesses. For example, in late 1980, when interest rates were at record levels, he established a "small-business base rate" to provide working capital to small-business owners at a special rate below prime. In 1981 he received the SBA "Advocate of the Year" award for TN.

Sloan is a former member of the Tennessee Board of Equalization. He has served as a member of the Williamson County Commission and mayor of Brentwood, Tennessee. He has served as former president of the Nashville Boys' Club. He is on the board of directors of the Boys' Clubs of America, National Junior Achievement, the National Alliance of Business and American Healthcare Inc. Sloan is a member of the Advisory Council to the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco on Small Business and Agriculture. He also is a member of the board of trustees of King College.

For more information on the Great Leaders Series, call the Perdue School of Business at 543-6316.

New Religious Studies Minor

Religious Studies, a joint venture of the English, History, Philosophy and Sociology Departments, is a new minor now offered at the College. The program enables students to study the nature of religion from a variety of scholarly perspectives. In addition to learning about the major beliefs and practices of the major religions of the world, students will have the opportunity to examine the impact of religion on culture and history, and the meaning it has had in their own lives.

Dr. Jerry Miller, a member of the Philosophy Department and the coordinator of the new Religious Studies minor, said in announcing the program, that it will help students examine an extremely important dimension of their lives in a thoughtful, reflective way.

"It is a shame," Dr. Miller said, "that in our society and, all too often, in our educational institutions, we act as if religion and life of the mind can have nothing to do with each other. We hope that the Religious Studies minor will give those interested in religion an opportunity to explore its meaning in an intellectually stimulating way and from a variety of academic disciplines."

To achieve the minor in Religious Studies, students will take an introductory course in Comparative Religion and 15 hours of course work from at least three of the participating departments. Among the courses to be offered

Walsh emphasized, from an historical perspective, the academic and urban origins of Fundamentalism in Britain and the northeastern seaboard of the United States in contrast to the usual stress upon its embeddedness in rural culture. Wheelchair Games in May

The seventh annual Maryland Wheelchair Games, which attracts some 200 athletes, will be held May 13-15 at the College. This event is sponsored by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Salisbury and SSC.

The Games are a series of competitions sanctioned by the National Wheelchair Athletic Association (NWAA), the governing body for wheelchair sports in the U.S. They include weightlifting, swimming, slalom, track and field, triathlon, air weapons, table tennis and archery.

Participants in prior years have ranged in age from 6 to "over 65," and both men and women are actively involved. The skill level ranges from absolute beginner to world record holder. Athletes are grouped according to the degree of disability, age and sex, and compete only against similarly disabled competitors. The emphasis is on fun, participation and sportsmanship, although many athletes strive to meet qualifying standards for national championships.

Novice athletes are welcome in all events, and assistance is given willingly by volunteers and seasoned competitors to the newcomers. Every competitor gets a commemorative T-shirt, and medals are awarded to the top three finishers in each event, in each disability category.

Anyone may enter the Maryland Wheelchair Games by completing the entry form, which is available from Elaine Harrington, DNR Office, 122 Arlington Road, Salisbury, MD 21801. NWAA regulations require that all athletes become members of the NWAA and be classified medically. Through the support of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, there is financial assistance available for first-time athletes to join the NWAA at no charge. Additional funds are available to support needy athlete's travel expenses.

Salisbury State is located on Maryland's Eastern Shore, about a two and one half hour drive from Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, and Norfolk. The campus is fully accessible, and the Maggs Physical Activity Center and outdoor facilities are outstanding venues for wheelchair competition. Overnight accommodations are available at a number of area motels in Salisbury and Ocean City, MD.

Medical Laboratory Week

Salisbury State celebrates National Medical Laboratory Week (April 10-16) by participating in the Health Careers Night sponsored by the School of Nursing and Health Sciences on Tuesday, April 12.

Faculty members from the Medical Technology Department will demonstrate actual laboratory tests and will offer career information to individuals interested in careers in the laboratory sciences.

"We want to tell people that medical laboratory professionals are essential in the diagnosis and treatment of illness," said Johanna Laird, chairperson of the Medical Technology Department.

This year's theme, "Our Knowledge, Skills and Dedication—For Your Good Health," was chosen to increase public awareness of how the work done in the laboratory relates to the health of patients. Attending physicians depend upon laboratory test results to confirm the diagnosis and prescribe appropriate treatment.

"We use a variety of techniques in the laboratory, from testing blood and urine samples to the operation of sophisticated, computerized instruments," said Mrs. Laird. "If you've ever wondered what hospital tests are for, this is a good opportunity to find out."

Randall Tennov has been appointed to the new position of music librarian, recently created by Delmarva Public Radio Station WSCL-FM 89.5. Formerly of Delaware's WGMD, Tennov will be on the air from late morning until early afternoon.

Tennov, a graduate of the Philadelphia School of the Performing Arts, is a faculty member of the Delaware Music School, where he teaches piano and composition. He has written classical pieces performed by chamber ensembles and a dance group.

He is also an occasional free-lance journalist and arts reviewer whose recent comments on local performances and exhibits have appeared in newspapers throughout this region.

Schiller's academic training is in music. She received her B.A. degree from the University of Maryland Eastern Shore in 1971.

'Collaborations' Dance Company Spring Concert April 15

The College Dance Company presents its spring concert, Collaborations, Friday and Saturday, April 15 and 16, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, April 17, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

This mostly modern dance concert represents a group effort by Dance Company director, Susan Turner, guest artist Lee Richmond of Washington, D.C., and student choreographers. Ms. Richmond has choreographed two pieces for the students. One is "Hopa," a word yelled by Greek folk dancers. "My mother is Greek and I wanted to do a piece about my heritage," she said. "It's not a traditional folk dance, however. Greek dances have an earthy quality to them and I've put the dancers on their hands and knees the whole time. It's a very physical dance."

Her second piece is "Dinner Party" performed to a tango played by Fritz Kriesler. The setting is a formal dining room. The dancers are three women and a butler. They show "what you'd really like to do" in such a situation, Richmond said. The piece uses a table to comic effect.

The guest artist has her M.A. in Dance from American University and has performed at Dance Place, the source of modern dance in Washington, according to Turner.

The SSC Dance Company director most recently choreographed The Pirates of Penzance at the College, and is doing two pieces for this concert. One is to music by Dmitri Shostakovich and the other by minimalist composer, Philip Glass.

The Shostakovich concert for piano, violin and cello, was written as an elegy for a friend and much sadness is in the music, Turner said. She is using it as a backdrop for a dance about suicide.

Her second work is a seven minute solo piece for herself set to music by Glass. "I wanted to get my Glass piece out of my system. There is something in his music that appeals to dancers. I think its rhythms... the looping and circularity allow choreographers to invent rhythmically." Glass a pioneer in modern music, has a distinctive style which uses "the voice as music in Turner's words. His better-known works include Glassworks and Einstein on the Beach.

Other choreographers in the concert include Kerrie Command, Debbie Knapp, Jodi Stark and Joan Martin.

Admission is free to SSC students, faculty and staff. Tickets are available at the door. For reservations and information, call 543-6353.

'Catch a Wave'

The theme to this year's Salisbury State Program Board's community/student spring dance is "Catch a Wave on a Hot Summer Night."

The "Spring Fling" is Saturday, April 23, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Maggs Center. Both students and the community are invited, said Mindy Inman, student coordinator. A local band, "Cry Monday," will play popular music. "Dress is beach. Put on your favorite jams or sundress and come dance!" said Inman.

Tickets are $4 per person or $7 a couple from the College Center information desk, or at the door.

The Program Board is a student organization responsible for planning activities on campus. The "Spring Fling" has replaced a more traditional formal previously held at this time, Inman added. For more information call the College Center at 543-6397.

From Chaucer to Sondheim: A Faculty Reading of Poetry April 12

Literature as something "to be read and said" might be one way to describe the theme of an oral presentation on Tuesday, April 12, at 8 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall. "Obviously, we're all for reading," said Dr. Robert Wesley, performance director. "And reading aloud may reveal a world created by the author that silence does not. Imagine reading the notes to music on paper but never hearing them. I feel it's much the same with words."

Richard W. Culver and Drs. Polly Stewart and Tony Whall with Wesley will read a variety of works from Geoffrey Chaucer, father of English poetry, to contemporary Stephen Sondheim, Pulitzer Prize-winning composer. "The author's words place his images before our inner eye," continued Wesley. "The oral interpreter articulates their emotional content."

The four have worked independently on their selections—each with different objectives. Stewart has chosen stories from Canterbury Tales, including selections from Pardoner's Tale, with its three rioters and old man, and the Wife of Bath's Prologue, with the wife's opinion of clerics. The challenge to Stewart is conveying Chaucer's meaning despite the tales' intimidating medieval dialect. Using a multi-sensory approach, she is providing a written text in the original Middle English to supplement her spoken performance. Experienced this way, the 600-year-old poetry "becomes as fresh and new as though written yesterday afternoon," said Stewart.

"I'm doing readings about women," said Culver, from the lyrics to "Cinderella's Song" from Into the Woods by Sondheim, to poetry by Langston Hughes and Theodore Roethke. "Originally, I picked pieces that I thought were interesting and as I did that theme emerged. But then, by definition, women are more interesting than men."

Whall has entitled his collection of readings, "Poems of Wonder," all by 20th century Americans and all celebrating existence: "...discovering in being, something that warrants and inspires our attitude of wonder," Whall said.

"I think that all great art is the product of

Wesley on Listening

Dr. Robert J. Wesley, professor of Communication Arts, recently led a workshop on listening with the Salisbury Ministerial Association. The topic of his presentation was, "Listening as the Orphan of Education."

"The majority of us spend our day listening, and smaller portions of time reading and writing," said Wesley. "Yet, we spend such a disproportionate amount of time studying reading and writing."

Wesley's workshop with the Ministerial Association focused on listening in a consultation setting, or therapeutic listening. Wesley stressed the need to go beyond the literal meaning of a message, to listen for emotional, relational and interpretative meanings as well.

"It is important in many instances," said Wesley, "to listen with empathy, to be aware of someone else's situation, not just your own, when receiving a message."

Wesley is a part of the Salisbury State College Speaker's Bureau. The Speaker's Bureau offers area organizations several speakers discussing a variety of subjects. There is no charge for the service.

Any civic, service or educational organization desiring a speaker should contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Swetnam Honored

"I was shocked—very, very shocked," said Diane Swetnam, her big brown eyes wide still in amazement.

Swetnam, a senior from Oxford, NJ, is on the Salisbury State lacrosse and field hockey team. While her successes on the field are plentiful and well-documented, Swetnam's amazement comes from her being one of 175 Physical Education majors, nationally, to be named her school's Outstanding Physical Education Major of the Year. For this award, Swetnam will fly to Kansas City for the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (AAHPERD) Convention during the week of April 5.

According to Ann Stevens, the award's project director, "it is definitely an honor." The criteria for the candidates includes a high grade-point average along with being involved in many different activities, including volunteer groups, intramurals, athletics and honor societies.

All of the nominees receive certificates and recognition and are selected by the school. "There are so many outstanding individuals that we decided to award it to several students who are all deserving," said Stevens. The formidable group of which Swetnam is a part includes winners from the University of North Carolina, the University of Maryland, Purdue, Kansas State, Auburn, Temple, the University of Alabama, the University of Delaware, Brigham Young and DePaul.

While Stevens said that they all are deserving of the award, Swetnam still wonders.

"I never thought of anything like this. I pinched myself and said, 'There's got to be other people on this campus who are more deserving than I am.'

Yet, looking at her portfolio, it is readily apparent she is abundantly qualified.

For starters, in the classroom, she has an overall grade-point average of 3.2 while taking a double Physical Education major. In her two majors, she has a 3.5 in Health Fitness and a 3.7 in Physical Education. She was also on the Dean's List in the spring semester of 1986 and this past fall semester.

"She is a very good student," said Dawn McCrumb of the P.E. Department and the women's softball coach at Salisbury State. "I had her in Elementary Education and Physical Education and saw the beginnings of a fine teacher."

Her excellence in the classroom has led to her being named to two honor societies, Phi Epsilon Omega and Kappa Delta Pi. She has also been nominated for Omicron Delta Kappa, a national honor society for leadership.

The leadership that Swetnam possesses has made her an integral part of two of the most successful teams during her four years at Salisbury State. The field hockey team went 59-15-3, while the lacrosse team is 23-20-2. She captained the 1985 field hockey team which finished fifth in the nation and the 1987 team that came in third. This season, she is a captain for the lacrosse team. For field hockey, during the 1987 season, she was voted to the Final Four All-Tournament Team as well as an Honorable Mention All South Region.

wonder. The artist is the one who sees the grandeur of that which appears ordinary to the rest of us ('to see the world in a grain of sand,' to quote Blake) and who labors to reveal that vision in words or music or paint."

Wesley explores the vision of 19th century writer, Edgar Allan Poe, in his long poem, "The Raven." A poet's native dialect is often a key to the unique rhythm of his work, according to Wesley. "Poe's own southern accent affected the sound and rhythm of his poetry. Such a rhythm creates a world which in turn affects our view of the emotion in the piece. I feel context and content are much the same in Poe's writing."

Wesley, who founded the Communication Arts Department, has acted in and directed a variety of oral interpretive productions for the College, including The Dining Room and Readings from Robert Frost. Stewart, who heads the Liberal Studies program, performs a program about the ballad for area schools and civic organizations. Culver, who works for Public Relations, is quick to point out he's not a performer. He has however, written plays and reviews of theatre. Whall, who heads the Honor's program, has acted for both Wesley and the late Leland Starnes, the critically acclaimed SSC theatre director.

The reading is titled A Sense of the Other: Listening to Voices in Poetry. Admission is free and the public is invited.

VOL. IX NO. 26

'Clay National' at Gallery Through April 28

"Clay National," a national, juried exhibition of ceramic works by 23 different artists, will be on display at the College Gallery through Thursday, April 28.

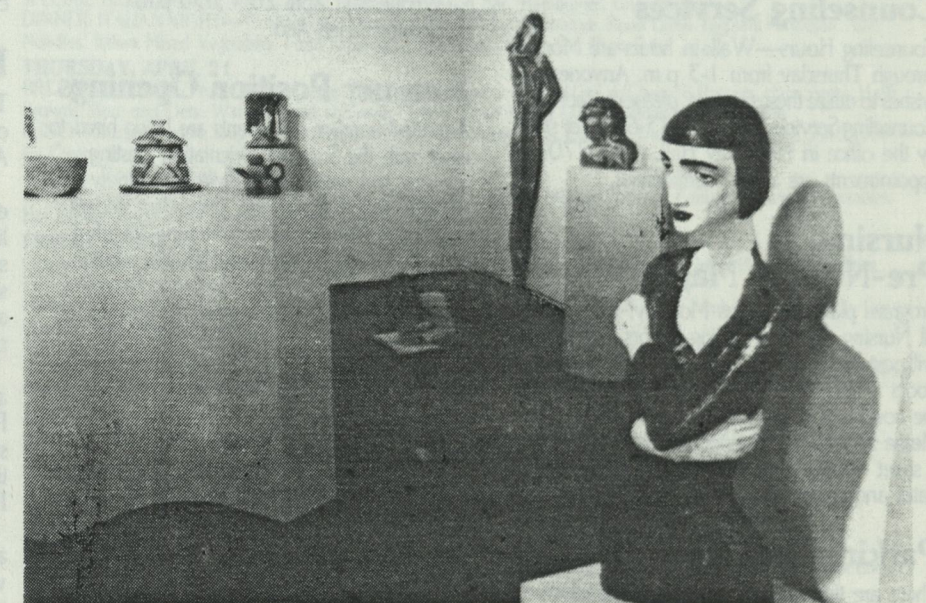

The exhibition presents a variety of new approaches to the use of clay and includes a great range of clay-working techniques, according to Ursula Ehrhardt, the Gallery's director. Hardly any of the pieces are pots or have a functional purpose. "These are really ceramic sculptures," Ehrhardt said. "Most of the works are much more closely related to modern, experimental sculptures and painting than to traditional pottery."

Several works represent the human figure in a variety of styles. Martha Holt's seven-foot high "Blue Shadow # 2," a complex work with many references to other art forms, is a typical example. Its flat shape recalls "the slab-sculptures of certain pre-historic Aegean island cultures," Ehrhardt said, but its mottled, multi-hued surface looks like an abstract expressionist painting and its pose, with opposite hands at head and hip, suggests the "beauty queen or pin-up of popular American culture."

In contrast, the meticulous realism of Richard Cleaver's "It's Paid For," which depicts an elderly couple in front of their house, recalls the style and subject matter of the American Regionalist painters of the 1930s and 1940s, as well as more recent super-realist painting and sculptures.

Other works represent plant or animal forms, or make reference to natural phenomena, such as Itsue Ito's abstraction, "Awai Sora," which evokes a cloud-filled sky; or Robert Mangrum's "Aguas from the Innerra Series," whose undulating, blue-green shape suggests ocean waves.

The exhibition was organized by the Erie Art Museum of Pennsylvania and juried by Andrea Gill and Rudy Autio, both nationally recognized artists in the clay medium. The two jurors looked at nearly 2,000 works by 705 artists, selecting 60 artists, each represented by one piece, for the original show. The exhibition at Salisbury State is a smaller version of this show.

To complement the exhibition, the College Gallery is concurrently showing the videotape, "Potters of the Eastern Shore." Produced by Marie Tator Quillen, associate professor of Art at the College, in connection with an exhibition which she organized for the Gallery several years ago, the videotape shows seven area potters demonstrating a variety of handbuilding, throwing and glazing techniques. Some of these same techniques are evident in the "Clay National" show, Ehrhardt said, although the styles and intentions of the artists are different.

Regularly scheduled talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Tuesday at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Mrs. Mitchell also conducts special tours of the exhibition, which may be scheduled by calling the Gallery at 543-6271 at least one week in advance of the desired tour date.

The Gallery is located on the second floor of Blackwell Library and is open Monday and Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

'Does the Soul Have a Sex?' Philosophy Symposium Looks at Feminism

Does the soul have a sex? Does the difference between femininity and masculinity create a fundamental difference between women and men as persons?

These are some of the questions likely to be discussed at the annual Spring Symposium sponsored by the Salisbury State Philosophical Society. Each year the symposium focuses on a controversial contemporary issue and this year's topic, "What Does It Mean to Be a Woman?" is no exception.

Wellness Day is Monday!

Balloons, Denny Dent and the Art Attack, food, and body fat! Can it be? Yes, it's SSC Wellness Day '88.

The College's fourth annual Wellness Day is Monday, April 18, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Red Square. Wellness Day is a non-traditional, upbeat event geared to wellness and health promotion and illness prevention education. The College and community organizations once again join forces to provide this educational opportunity to anyone who wishes to participate.

On-going events scheduled for Wellness Day include body fat analysis, physical screening and evaluation, stress management, computerized food analysis, alcohol education and Breathalyzer testing, safety education and the Seat Belt Convincer, and small bicycle repairs. Also on-going throughout the day will be balloons, barbecued chicken, mocktails and live WSSC radio station broadcasts.

Special performances are also scheduled for ROTC, the SSC Dance Company, Owen Hooks and special guest Denny Dent and his "Two-Fisted Art Attack."

Dent appears center stage with a blank canvas. As the audience hears the music of a selected superstar, Dent creates a masterpiece in moments in the length of time it takes to hear a few songs.

Dent has performed at the 1983 U.S. Festival, the 1984 Olympics and appeared in concert with such diverse acts as Neil Young, David Bowie, the B 52's, Miles Davis, Stevie Wonder, the Cure, Stevie Nicks, the Bangles and many, many others. He also performed in the 1986 Jimi Hendrix Video "Johnny B. Goode."

Dent will be performing at noon in Red Square.

Last year some 1,200 people participated in the festivities. Wellness Day '88 is expected to be even bigger and better. For additional information contact Karen Kimpton, College Center assistant director of programs, 543-6102.

Sports Update

by Barry Packer

Milestones or goals are something that most people set, yet a wondering point is how realistic many of these goals actually are and how many people obtain the goals that they set.

Twenty-five years ago, did Deane Deshon, Salisbury State's wily veteran baseball coach in his first season foresee himself being the only baseball coach the Sea Gulls ever had, 25 years later? Or see himself managing in over 700 games and over 400 wins.

Well, in 1988, Deane Deshon is still the only person to manage the Gulls on the diamond. And after this recent weekend, the Gulls are 10-10 for the season and Deshon has racked up a career mark of 402-300-11 for a career winning percentage of .569.

In the first of two, the Gulls ride the hot bat of third baseman Mike Marinelli to a 13-3 romp and Deshon's 400th victory. Marinelli went three-for-three, including a pair of doubles. He also walked once, had a sacrifice fly, scored once and knocked in four.

In the nightcap, it was a Gull attack that on one word could be described as devastating. The Gulls scored five in the first—and that was their lowest inning-output in the second game. They scored six in the second, third and fourth, and the game was called after 4 and one-half with the Gulls on top, 23-1.

On the offensive side of the ledger, everyone in the starting line-up scored at least one run, with the exception of catcher Greg Hook. But then again, he spent his afternoon knocking everyone else in with four runs batted in, on a single, a double and a sacrifice fly.

The Gulls upped their winning streak to three on Saturday, as Randy Collett went three-for-three with two scores and two more runs knocked in. Andy Redmond and Brad Beck combined on the four-hit, eight-strikeout whitewashing of the Sea Hawks of St. Mary's in a 9-0 thrashing. The streak, however, ended on Sunday with a 6-4 loss to Catholic.

The men's lacrosse team, winners of five in a row, had their streak stopped, on Saturday in Chestertown, with a 14-6 loss to Washington College, the third-ranked team in the country. Tim Berquist continued his phenomenal offensive production with three goals and two assists, raising his season totals to 10 goals and 38 assists.

Also coming to an end on Saturday was an 11-game winning streak for SSC's softball team. At the Methodist College Tournament, the Gulls, behind pitcher and tournament-MVP Terri Sharpless, won the opening game, 6-1 over North Carolina Wesleyan. Sharpless struck out seven and two other members of the All-Tournament Team, Anne Dacey and Cathy Bryan each went two-for-three with a run scored. In the second game, Sharpless went up against Maryville of Tennessee, and despite striking out nine, lost, 4-3 in extra frames. The Gulls' third game of the day featured the Blue Marlins of Virginia Wesleyan. The Gulls rode the three-for-four performance of All-Tourney player Karen Sipple, and the pitching combination of starter Amy Geppi and Sharpless to a 4-3 come-from-behind win. In the semi-finals of the tournament, the Gulls couldn't manage much offense, but Mary Washington got even less off of Geppi, who went the distance for the 2-0 win. In the Championship Game, the Gulls avenged a loss just a few hours earlier by thrashing Maryville, 10-4. Dacey and Bryan each had two hits while Debe Clarke had three singles to lead the offensive parade. Sharpless started, but tired early, and Geppi came through with the win, and the Gulls came through with the Title. Also named to the All-Tournament Team was outfielder Diane Bickford.

A big week, this week is with games on Thursday against Wilmington, Saturday against Stockton and Sunday at defending National Champion Trenton State.

The Gulls men's tennis team has also fallen in recent outings, to very talented teams from Haverford and Catholic and are now 3-5, while the Gull's women's tennis team was one of two teams, this past weekend to extend a winning streak and even its record at .500.

The women got three-set wins in singles from top-seeded Donna Midcap and sixth-seeded Christina DeSanto, along with straight-set victories from the middle four seeds, Debbie Diedrick, Lisa Liberatore, Amanda Hoffman and Pam Vay to defeat Trinity, 8-1. The doubles teams of Midcap and Diedrick and Liberatore and Vay also came away with wins, to raise its record to 2-2, winning its last two in a row.

As had the Gull women's lacrosse team. After hanging tough with eighth-ranked Denison on Friday, before falling 13-7, the Gulls came back for straight wins over Glassboro, 14-6 and arch-rival Frostburg 8-7, and are now 4-4.

In the weekend action, Linda Lombardi headed the scoring out-put with eight goals and one assist, followed by Andrea Phillips with seven goals and one assist and Terri Buysse with seven and one.

Following in the footsteps of their 1987-88 predecessors, it looks as though the spring sports will do equally as well, now standing with a 39-27 record.

School of Education
Competency Requirements

The School of Education requires that students who apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education Program must complete specific tests in reading, writing, mathematics and speech. Starting with the fall semester the tests used to satisfy the competency requirements will be two sections from the Core Battery of the National Teacher Examination (NTE). The two sections are the Test of Communication Skills and the Test of General Knowledge.

If students wish to apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education Program for fall and have not taken the current education competency tests, they must sign up for the June 25 NTE testing session. The registration is due by May 23. To qualify for admission to the Professional Teacher Education Program, students must achieve a score on these tests equal to or better than the qualifying score for Maryland certification requirements. Students who do not achieve a satisfactory score may retake one or both of the tests at the next testing session.

If a student has passed some of the current education competency tests, the rest of the tests must be completed in the Learning Center before fall.

As soon as a student reaches second semester sophomore standing and has completed English 101 and 102, a literature course, Math 103, at least two science courses (Biology and Physical Science), and History 101 and 102, he should sign up to take the two sections for the Core Battery of the NTE. If a student wishes to apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education Program for next spring, there is an October 1988 testing and a special testing session in January, 1989. Students who do not achieve a satisfactory score may retake one or both of the tests at the next testing session.

Applications for the June tests can be obtained at the School of Education Office, CH-153. Questions about test requirements should be directed to Dr. Gerry Rossi, Literacy Task Force Chair, in CH-B-162 or Al Constantine, Director of Field Experiences, in CH-B-153.

Lecture on Southern Africa

Dr. David M. Dean, professor of History at Frostburg State University, will lecture on southern Africa at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 20, in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The topic of Dean's presentation is "By the Belly of the Beast: Reflections on Two Years in Southern Africa."

Dean has just completed two years as a Senior Fulbright Lecturer at the National University in Lesotho, an African country about the size of Maryland which is completely surrounded by the Republic of South Africa. During this period he also traveled extensively in South Africa.

Since his return to Frostburg, Dr. Dean has lectured on his experiences in southern Africa at college and university campuses in Massachusetts, Maryland, Indiana and Texas. His appearance at Salisbury State is sponsored by the departments of History and Political Science.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

Senior Art Show Opens April 30

Senior Art students present the 14th annual Senior Art Show opening Saturday, April 30, from 7-9 p.m. in the College Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library. The show runs through May 19.

The works exhibited are those of 13 senior Art students enrolled in Senior Seminar. During the Art major's senior year, the student is required to enroll in a seminar course to learn interview and portfolio review skills, as well as develop a working resume and letter of inquiry.

All of these skills must coalesce at the end of the semester as the student arrives for a final portfolio interview for a hypothetical job with an unknown employer. In addition to these requirements, guest speakers visit the class.

Each student is also part of a committee in planning, advertising and setting up the Senior Art Show. Twenty hours of volunteer services to the Art Department are given by each senior during the semester.

Every Art major at Salisbury State chooses an area of concentration such as Visual Communications/Advertising Design, Art History, 2-Dimensional Design, 3-Dimensional Design, Photography or Art Education. Those seniors concentrating in Advertising Design are Leigh Ellen Rudder, from Berlin, Kimberly Idona Farcot from Pasadena, Sandra Ann Stitely from Laurel, Mike James from Cambridge, Michael Gregory Hall from Bowie, and Julian Olson from Salisbury.

Students focusing on 2-Dimensional Design include Jodi Yingling from Rehoboth Beach, DE, Benjamin C. Nall from Fulton, Michael Nees from Flemington, NJ and Douglas McLaren and Sharon Gribbon-Lindemon from Salisbury.

The only Art History major in the class, Donna Forgash from Salisbury, said, "My special interest is Art History, but studio courses I have taken at SSC have given me a special appreciation for the technique and creative problems inherent in various mediums." Paul Fleming from Rockville, is the only photography major in the group.

Leigh Rudder said this about her work: "I've always enjoyed fine arts, but eventually became more interested in the design aspects."

Kim Farcot tries to, "Show a wide range of skills and medium," and Sandra Stitely said, "Over the past few years I've been developing my skills in graphic arts, as well as fine arts."

This year's work will include photography, ceramics, paintings, sculpture, weaving and advertising layouts. The public is invited and there is no charge for admission.

Mid-Life Seminar

Mid-Life and Mid-Career: Where Do We Go From Here? is an experiential seminar for men and women in transition presented Friday and Saturday, April 22 and 23, at the Dunes Manor Hotel in Ocean City, MD.

Sponsored by the Graduate and Continuing Education and Department of Psychology, the workshop will be led by I. Eugene White, Ph.D. (ABD), of the Psychology Department.

"You know when you have reached that mid-life stage," said White, "when you are unsure as to whether to blame your children or your parents for your state of mind."

This workshop will provide an emphasis on participation in a structured, but informal setting, said White. "Pertinent questions, comments and discussions are encouraged by those attending, although quieter, more reflective personalities are equally welcome. There will be brief presentations of theories derived from adult developmental research and case studies that will serve as a spring-board for lively discussion of major interests and concerns."

He has taught courses in The Psychology of Women, The Psychology of Men and Human Sexuality. His research in mid-life transition has been well-received at state and national conferences of educators, and civic and business groups in the Mid-Atlantic states.

In addition to his work in higher education, he has begun a private practice in personal and relationship counseling.

The Friday sessions, 7-9 p.m., will begin the program with a review of prominent research on the adult developmental patterns of men and women. On Saturday morning, from 9-11:30 a.m., personal issues that seem to become more important to men and women at mid-life will be examined. The program will conclude with the Saturday afternoon 1-3 p.m. session, focusing on the need to assess the career choices that should be made or that have been made too long ago.

The fee for the conference is $75. Registration forms for the workshop are now being accepted. To register, contact the Salisbury State Graduate and Continuing Education Office at 543-6170.

Rubin on Experiential Education

Sharon Rubin, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, addressed the American Association for Higher Education National Conference on March 11. Her topic was, "Creating Connectedness Through Experiential Education."

Joining Rubin on this major panel were: Zelma Gamson, fellow, John W. McCormack Institute of Public Affairs, University of Massachusetts at Boston; Garry Hesser, professor of Sociology at Augsburg College; and Carole Leland, senior research associate, Higher Education Research Institute, University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA). They discussed how experiential education is a powerful vehicle for fostering a deeper sense of agency for students and faculty in their disciplines and in the extended academic and world communities.

Rubin has made several other presentations this year. In January she discussed "Strengthening Experiential Education Within Liberal Arts Institutions" at the Association of American Colleges annual conference in Washington, D.C.

In March, she made a presentation to the Maryland Conference of the American Council on Education National Identification Program for Women Administrators and Students, at the National Liasons Conference at The Washington Center in Washington, D.C.

At Salisbury State in March, she conducted a workshop on "Experiential Teaching" at the Mid-Atlantic Teaching Conference.

Among her upcoming presentations is one at the 14th international conference on Improving University Teaching at the University of Umea in Sweden.

Children and Adult Programs In Clay

The College Gallery and the Art Department are jointly sponsoring several events related to the current "Clay National" exhibition. Two children's workshops, consisting of a gallery tour and a "hands-on" studio activity, are scheduled for Saturday, April 23.

The first workshop, for children in the first through third grades, begins at 9:30 a.m. and the second, for those in the fourth through sixth grades, begins at 11 a.m. Each workshop starts in the Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, with a tour of the exhibition given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator. Participants will then go to the ceramics studio, in the Holloway Hall Annex, for a clayworking session with Marie Tator Quillen, a ceramicist and associate professor of Art at the College. Children in the first workshop may be picked up at the Annex at 11 a.m. and those in the second workshop, at 12:30 p.m. The workshops, made possible, in part, by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, are free, but participants should pre-register by calling the College Gallery at 543-6171 or the Art Department at 543-6270, co-ordinators said.

Don Parkinson, a British ceramicist and art professor at Southport College of Art in England, will speak on contemporary British ceramics and give a lecture-demonstration on Monday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the ceramics studio, Holloway Hall Annex. Parkinson, who taught at Salisbury State several years ago through the Fulbright Exchange program, is currently teaching at the Kendall School of Design in Grand Rapids, MI, on a second Fulbright Exchange.

A reception in the College Gallery will follow Parkinson's lecture. The public is invited to both events.

The symposium will take place on Saturday, April 23, in Caruthers Hall, room 118, beginning at 9:30 a.m. The public is invited to participate. There is no charge.

Two guest philosophers, Ms. Jo-Ann Pilardi and Dr. Patrie DiQuinzio, will make presentations during the morning session of the Symposium. Pilardi, who teaches Philosophy at Towson State University, has written and lectured widely on feminism and has been active in feminist concerns both at Towson State and in the Baltimore area.

DeQuinzio teaches Philosophy at Bryn Mawr College and also serves as coordinator of the Women's Studies Program.

In the afternoon session, those attending the conference will have an opportunity to discuss the issues with Pilardi, DeQuinzio and a group of local panelists who will include Ms. Holly Chiasson, an SSC alumna now doing graduate study in Philosophy, Dr. Jerry Miller of the SSC Philosophy Department, and Dr. Ed Steffes, of the Sociology Department.

For further information, or to make a reservation for lunch with symposium participants, call 543-6305.

An open house and official opening for the new Tandy lab in the basement of Blackwell Library is on Friday morning, April 22. The lab doubles the number of microcomputers available for student use. Pictured are Mike Boolukos and Ken Kanarr at the new terminals.

'Roscoe' Anchors Gull Stick Defense

This year's lacrosse season is well underway, and the Sea Gulls are starting to gel, winners of five in a row and six of their last seven, and, prior to Saturday's game with third-ranked Washington College, 6-2 and sixth in the nation. A key element to the team's success has been the defense, anchored by returning third-team all-American Peter Roskovich.

"Roscoe" as his teammates call him, is one of the best defensemen in the country, and based on his performance thus far, he will once again earn all-American status.

From the first time that "Roscoe" stepped on the lacrosse field the 6-foot-1, 200 pound Roskovich knew that defense was for him. Playing in his hometown of Baltimore, where he later attended Mt. St. Joseph High School, he found his defense to his liking.

Playing in the fourth grade, his first practice began with wind sprints. However, he noticed there were a few players who didn't have to run. "The offensive players were running so much," recalled Roskovich. "Then a friend on mine noticed that the defense didn't have to run as much, so we quickly decided to play defense," Roskovich explained.

Playing at such an early age has led to the development of skills that make him one of the best.

As first-year head coach, Ron Roberts said, "Roscoe is the finest defensemen that I have had an opportunity to coach." And that speaks very highly of Roskovich, considering that Roberts has spent some time as an assistant coach at Division I Duke. "He is an excellent ground-ball man, and his superior one-on-one defense is displayed each game when he is assigned to defend the opposing team's leading scorer—and stops him."

An all-American player must be a complete player. And Roskovich is just that. Aside from being an excellent ground-ball man, he is also a talented stick-man, and his ability to see the entire field allows him to be a top-quality position defenseman.

Captain Rick Maranto said, "he has awesome defensive skills and his desire to stop opposing scorers is only paralleled by his willingness to do whatever it takes to win. Roscoe always works hard and is an inspiration to the team."

Off the field, Roskovich is personable. Majoring in Communication Arts, his second love, after lacrosse, is photography. For now, however, he is concerned with the current lacrosse season.

"New coaches and a positive attitude have brought this team together," said Roskovich. "That, along with the ability and talent we have, will hopefully lead us to the playoffs, and possibly the championship."

All-in-all, Roskovich is a complete player whose skills and attitude greatly help in making this year's Salisbury State lacrosse team one of the best in the country, and in making him an all-American.

Salisbury Landowner Shares Property With SSC Students

Richard F. Hazel, Salisbury outdoorsman and general manager of the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company, has given Salisbury State Biology students the use of about 500 acres of land on Cooper Road.

By sharing his land with the College, Hazel has made it possible for students to do field work within the standard two-or-three hour lab period in their regular class schedules. His property, which extends to the Wicomico River a few miles south of the College, can be reached in about 20 minutes.

"We had been looking for a long time for a nature area to get students off the campus and into the field. And Hazel's property is unique and special," Robert M. Gearhart, the College's director of Development, said of the arrangement.

For his part, "I always wanted to use it for something," Hazel said.

The main problem in arranging for the College to use the land was the high cost of insurance which the owner must carry today when his property is used by others.

To resolve this problem the Salisbury State College Foundation, a non-profit group which raises money for many of the "extras" at the College, agreed to pay for the insurance.

Hazel said that he has been trying to develop his land for wildlife with the help of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. The nearly extinct Delmarva Fox Squirrel has been released there in an attempt to reestablish a colony.

The acreage includes what is described as "a whole marsh system," woodland and about 30 tillable acres.

Dr. Thomas W. Jones, chairman of the Biology Department, said that as the weather turns warmer students will be using the land for the study of plant classification, the discovery of rare and endangered plants such as wild orchids which have been found in nearby swamps, for the collection and study of insects and for ecology classes.

With freedom to roam, he said, faculty members as well as students can use the property for special research projects which require data collection through one or two semesters.

Much of the property lies within Maryland's designated critical areas zone to be managed for the protection of the Chesapeake Bay and can be for the study of Bay as well as land management, Jones pointed out.

For students from the metropolitan areas and even for Eastern Shore students who have grown up in towns, such as Salisbury, the chance to get out on an open stretch of marsh and woods is a new experience.

Hazel and his wife have a home beside the property on the east side of Cooper Road.

Although he is managing his land for wildlife, he is also a hunter, he explained. On the wall of his office at the Pepsi-Cola plant on Snow Hill Road is the mounted head of a 200-pound deer he shot on his property.

His collection of taxidermy also includes a lifelike Fox and several species of squirrel.

Hazel said that he enjoys seeing the students make use of his property.

His gift of land-use could be having a snowball effect. Gearhart said that at least one other local landowner is considering a similar arrangement with the College.

LaCurts To Deliver Convocation Address

Some 300 outstanding scholars and student leaders will be honored at Salisbury State's 63rd Honors Convocation on Friday, May 6, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The Honors Convocation, which dates back to the founding of the College in 1925, this year will recognize students in more than 40 different areas of academic life. These awards reflect organizations as diverse as international honors societies to The Wall Street Journal to local patrons and clubs saluting civic leaders such as Sam and Marilyn Seidel and the late Doris C. Calcott.

Carvel LaCurts, faculty member at Pocomoke High School and Salisbury State and an SSC alumnus, will be the speaker this year. His address is titled, "Success... When the Paths of Others Touch Ours."

LaCurts, who majored in Mathematics, received his B.S. degree summa cum laude, in 1970 and his M.Ed. degree with a concentration in Mathematics in 1973, both from SSC. His contributions to campus life, to his community and his excellence in teaching have earned

Noted Writer Here, To Read From Work

Richard Ford, who has been called "the best writer at work in this country today," will read from his own fiction on Monday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

The first visiting author in the SSC Spring Literary Festival, Ford has written critically-acclaimed novels, stories and essays, and has been published in The New Yorker, Esquire, Paris Review, Harpers and The London Sunday Times among others.

"Ford is a major American writer who is moving from being known in literary circles, to recognition among the general public," said Dr. John Wenke, director of the SSC Literary Festival. "We are fortunate to have him here at this time."

Ford's novel, The Sportswriter, was the 1987 winner of the PEN-Faulkner Award for Fiction—the "Oscar" of fiction awards, Wenke said, and in publishing circles akin to the Pulitzer in prestige. In 1986 he won the Best American Short Stories Prize and the Pushcart Story Prize, another top national award given to works published in more specialized journals.

In a profile this month in the Sunday New York Times Magazine, essayist and editor Ted Solotaroff said Ford, with a handful of others, is "turning the page of literary history." Famed "minimalist" author Ray Carver, reputedly America's preeminent writer of short fiction, has additional praise: "Sentence for sentence, Richard (Ford) is the best writer at work in this country today."

A Mississippian by birth, Ford, and his wife, who has a Ph.D. in regional planning, have lived in various parts of the country, from Princeton, NJ, to Missoula, MT, often in pursuit of her career in teaching and research. Currently they reside in New Orleans.

Whatever the setting of his stories (his most recent anthology, Rock Springs, are set in Montana) he frequently writes about ordinary people who say or think extraordinary things. His characters have ranged from drug dealers to a suburban sportswriter and are usually decent human beings involved in the struggles of everyday life, Wenke said. "He has to be identified in the tradition of great southern writers going back to Mark Twain with his ability to master colloquialisms, and Flannery

School of Education Competency Requirements

The School of Education requires that students who apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education Program must complete specific tests in reading, writing, mathematics and speech. Students who do not achieve a satisfactory score may retake one or both of the tests at the next testing session.

If a student has passed some of the current education competency tests, the rest of the tests must be completed in the Learning Center before fall.

As soon as a student reaches second semester sophomore standing and has completed English 101 and 102, a literature course, Math 103, at least two science courses (Biology and Physical Science), and History 101 and 102, he should sign up to take the two sections for the Core Battery of the NTE. Mystery! Murder! Madness! On Weekend Edition

Even the authors don't know "Whodunit" in Weekend Edition's mystery chain novel that began Sunday, April 17, on WSLC-FM 89.5 Delmarva Public Radio at 9 a.m.

Each week, a different, well-known American mystery writer adds a chapter to "The Prufrock Affair," plotting sinister twists, adding characters and dropping red herrings.

"It's fun to hear some of the best mystery writers in America being utterly mystified themselves about where the story is going," says Susan Stamborg, host of Weekend Edition on Sundays.

Jane Langton kicks off the mystery writers relay, devising a cast of suspicious deans, each maneuvering to become university president. In chapter one, Langton introduces our unlikely hero—an anthropology professor based on the title character of T.S. Eliot's poem, "The Lovesong of J. Alfred Prufrock."

When Prufrock happens upon an abandoned baby, the mother's kidnaper note and traces of blood on the floor, the adventure begins.

An impressive roster of authors follows, including Donald E. Westlake, whom the New York Times Book Review calls "the Neil Simon of the crime novel"; Tony Hillerman, known for his haunting Navajo tales set in New Mexico; and Gregory McDonald, who's "Fletch" mysteries inspired the movie of the same title, starring comedian Chevy Chase.

The growing list of writers also includes Hillary Waugh ("Murder on Safari"), Shannon O'Cork ("Turning Point"), Charlotte MacLeod ("The Convivial Codfish"), Elizabeth Peters ("Silhouette in Scarlet"), Mary Higgins Clark ("Weep No More, My Lady"), Sara Paretsky ("Bitter Medicine") and Charles Willeford ("Sideswipe").

"Tune in to Weekend Edition for the answers," said Stamborg. "The Prufrock Affair" is bound to be as convoluted and as popular as our first chain novel."

Economic Development
Task Force Plan

In December 1987, Governor Schaefer invited business leaders from Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties to participate in a regional planning effort.

Approximately 35 business leaders were initially invited by the Governor to participate in his regional planning effort. The task force has been expanded to more than 75 members, including local economic development and planning professionals. The task force is chaired by Hugh W. Mohler, president of Peninsula Bank.

Governor Schaefer asked that the task force formulate a regional economic development action plan within a 90-day period. The task force completed the task and presented the plan to the Governor at the luncheon meeting on April 19.

The task force identified seven major issue areas to be addressed. These areas included human resources, transportation, housing, tourism, regional promotion, agriculture and industrial development. A brief presentation was given on each area by the subcommittee chairmen.

The Lower Shore is one of six regions in Maryland participating in this planning effort. The Governor initiated the project in an attempt to involve the private sector in the planning process and to gain firsthand knowledge of business leaders' concerns. Once all regions have completed their development plans, state officials will work with the regional chairmen to formulate a statewide economic development plan.

Fulbright Grants

The U.S. Information Agency (USIA) and the Institute of International Education (IIE) announce the official opening on May 1 of the 1989-90 competition for Fulbright Grants and other grants for graduate study abroad in academic fields and for professional training in the creative and performing arts.

Students currently enrolled at Salisbury State should contact Dr. Phillip Bosserman, the Fulbright program adviser on campus, located in the Sociology Building, room 104 for brochures, application forms and further information. The deadline for the receipt of applications for individual grants is May 1; for collaborative research grants is June 1; and for travel grants in June 1.

The purpose of these grants is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the U.S. and other countries through the exchange of persons, knowledge and skills. Fulbright Grants are funded under the terms of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 through an annual appropriation made by Congress to USIA and by foreign governments, universities, corporations and private donors.

Participating governments and host institutions in many countries also contribute. Individual grants are available for study or research. Collaborative research grants are available for teams of two or three researchers. Travel grants are available to selected countries to supplement maintenance awards from other sources that do not provide funds for international travel.

For all grants, applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application and hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant. Creative and performing artists are not required to have a bachelor's degree, but they must have four years relevant training or study. Candidates in medicine must have an M.D. or equivalent (e.g., D.D.S., O.D., etc.) at the time of application.

Individual grants are generally for an academic year of study or research. Collaborative research grants are for from six to 10 months depending upon the proposal submitted by the team.

All applicants are required to have sufficient proficiency in the language of the host country to carry out their proposed study or research.

Individual grants provide round-trip international travel, maintenance for the tenure of the grant and tuition waivers, if applicable. Collaborative research grants provide equal fixed sum awards to each member of the team. Travel grants provide round-trip international travel to the country where the student will pursue study or research. All grants include basic health and accident insurance.

Gulls Narrowly Fall
To No. 1 Trenton

The difference between the number one and two teams in the Mid-Atlantic Region of NCAA Division III softball was revealed on Sunday afternoon in Ewing, NJ.

The difference between the top-rated Lions of Trenton State and the runnerup Sea Gulls of Salisbury State? Basically—nothing.

In the first game of the twin-bill, the Lions, also ranked first in the country, took a 5-0 lead over the seventh ranked Sea Gulls after four innings. The Gulls tallied four in the fifth and one in the sixth. And the game was tied at five after regulation. The Gulls took a 6-5 lead in the top of the eighth. But the Lions plated two in their half of the eighth for the 7-6 win.

In the nightcap, the hometown Lions scored a single run in the second, added an insurance marker in the sixth, and then held their collective breath, as the Gulls left the tying run in scoring position in a 2-1 loss.

And all this without the Gulls' top pitcher, Terri Sharpless, out for a week now with an injured shoulder. When Sharpless is out of the starting rotation it is not just removing an outstanding and intense competitor, but also an 8-1 record to go along with an earned run average of 0.87.

Yet, Head Coach Dawn McCrumb was quick to distribute praise to Tina DeJaco, who took the place of Sharpless in the rotation. She was also very pleased with the defense in the outfield of Tracey Short, Kristy Keil and Diane Bickford, from left to right.

And catcher Jodi Yingling was a singular force for the Gulls. She went three for six, scored three times, and took charge behind the plate. "Today, Jodi Yingling became the senior leader," said McCrumb. "This was a career day for her, and I'm very proud of her, just like I am of the rest of the team."

McCrumb went on. "They (Trenton State) know that they were in a game. We were down in both games, but didn't quit, and were without our number one pitcher. With a few breaks, we could have come away with the two wins."

A one-time sportswriter himself, "Ford creates tales which are fun, interesting and have good plots. He's a storyteller who probes the surface of human life—the good, the evil," Wenke continued, "in what Faulkner called 'the human heart in conflict with itself.'"

New York Times Magazine editor Bruce Weber describes the author as "a youthful 44, taller than six feet, with sloping shoulders, taut features and pale, severe blue eyes. He has a southerner's instinctive, solicitous manners, a mellifluous accent, and good-old-boy's appreciation of whiskey, sports, country music and jocular insults."

"He is also an excellent reader," Wenke added, "and it should be a good evening." Ford will be available to talk with audience members after the reading and also sign copies of his books.

He inaugurates the second SSC Spring Literary Festival. On Thursday, May 5, poet Katharine Rodier will read, followed by Frederick Kaufman on Thursday, May 12, and Jeffrey Skinner on Wednesday, May 18. All three are at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Social Room.

Kaufman's book, Forty-two Days and Nights on the Iberian Peninsula With Anis Ladron, is soon to be made into a motion picture. Skinner, on faculty at SSC, is celebrating the publication of his second book of poetry, A Guide to Forgetting, winner of the national Poetry Series Prize.

Admission to all the readings is free and the public is cordially invited. For more information, contact Wenke at the SSC English Department or the University Center Information Desk, at 543-6332.

VOL. IX NO. 28

Festival Weekend—April 29 and 30

It's Salisbury Festival time, and students, faculty and staff will be joining in the fun.

The ROTC Color Guard, in fact, will formally usher in the sixth annual Festival, April 29 and 30, at 5 p.m. at the Friday Night Block Party at the Riverwalk. ROTC will kickoff Saturday's smorgasbord of events by raising the colors for the Chesapeake Challenge 10k roadrace at 10 a.m.

The Cycling Club, in addition to participating in both the 10k and later in the day in the Coors-Schwinn Bike Race, will work as race marshalls.

The Jazz Band will entertain Festival goers Saturday with an 11:30 a.m. performance at Flag Plaza. The 20 band members directed by Dr. Thomas Elliot, chairman of the Music Department, will provide an hour of "Big Band" classics.

The entertainment continues at 1:15 p.m. at Government Plaza with the Dance Company, led by director Susan Turner.

Wellness information will be provided Saturday by both the Nursing Department and the Student Respiratory Therapy Association. The nurses will be taking blood pressures and providing education to the public on the dangers of high blood pressure.

The future respiratory therapists will have an information booth display and oxygen saturation testing.

The Festival provides ample opportunities to test a variety of culinary delights, and the Food Service Department has a generous menu planned. Working both days, Food Service staff and student workers will be pushing Good Humor Ice Cream, Philadelphia style steak sandwich platters, sodas, jumbo pretzels and more.

The SSC chapter of the Student National Education Association will be painting faces and bringing smiles at the "Bears A-Fair," the children's activities from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the Downtown Plaza.

The most obvious representative, however, will surely be the College mascot, Sammy the Sea Gull, who will be roaming the Festival both days entertaining young and old alike.

Dear SSC Students:

I want to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to you for letting the College use the Ruth Powell Dining Hall Saturday, April 16, in order for the necessary preparations to be made for the Gala. I am always proud of our students, and this effort of cooperation, in an event which brings funds that benefit all phases of the College, was one more reason for my pride. The event was a great success and I genuinely appreciate your cooperation. Again, my sincere thanks.

Sincerely,

Thomas E. Bellavance

'The Fantasticks' Sophanes Production

Sophanes, the SSC Theatre club, is presenting the musical comedy, The Fantasticks, as the final offering of the 1987-88 theatre season at the College. The play is directed by Sean Thomas, a Communication Arts/Music major.

The play is the longest running musical in the world with over 10,000 performances since it opened at Sullivan Street Theatre on May 3, 1960. The theatre was recently in danger of being demolished; however, a sudden surge in the play's popularity saved it.

The play centers on the "star-crossed" lovers, Matt (John Dietrich) and Luisa (Pam Kinnamon), who secretly meet at the wall separating their feuding parents' properties. The two are unaware that their parents (played by Robert Forester and Susan Rogers), assisted by the mysterious El Gallo (David Cherry), have actually been plotting to get the sweethearts together. The plot follows the exploits of the parents in their matchmaking efforts, and the unexpected results.

Other cast members include Jeanette Hillard (the Mute), Paul Lewis (Henry) and Steve Collins (Mortimer).

Dates for the show are May 6, 7, 12, 13 and 14 at 8 p.m. and May 8 at 2 p.m. For reservations call the Box Office at 543-6228.

The purpose of these grants is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the U.S. and other countries through the exchange of persons, knowledge and skills. Fulbright Grants are funded under the terms of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 through an annual appropriation made by Congress to USIA and by foreign governments, universities, corporations and private donors.

Participating governments and host institutions in many countries also contribute. Individual grants are available for study or research. Collaborative research grants are available for teams of two or three researchers. Travel grants are available to selected countries to supplement maintenance awards from other sources that do not provide funds for international travel.

For all grants, applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application and hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant. Creative and performing artists are not required to have a bachelor's degree, but they must have four years relevant training or study. Candidates in medicine must have an M.D. or equivalent (e.g., D.D.S., O.D., etc.) at the time of application.

Individual grants are generally for an academic year of study or research. Collaborative research grants are for from six to 10 months depending upon the proposal submitted by the team.

All applicants are required to have sufficient proficiency in the language of the host country to carry out their proposed study or research.

Individual grants provide round-trip international travel, maintenance for the tenure of the grant and tuition waivers, if applicable. World Population Lecture on May 5

Werner Fornos, president of The Population Institute, discusses "Repercussions of a World of Five Billion: Where Do We Go From Here?" on Thursday, May 5, at 2 p.m. in the Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Department of Geography and Regional Planning, the World Population Awareness Day presentation is free and open to the public.

Fornos has been in the forefront of the struggle to balance the world's population with the world's resources for more than 17 years. As Congressman Robert Torricelli (D-NJ), a member of the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee, has pointed out: "It would be wrong to say that Werner was part of a large apparatus of people fighting for population control in the world. There are many days he looks like the entire fight himself."

Fornos' dedication to the issue of population growth has made him an internationally recognized leader in that field. He received Population Dynamics' 1980 Distinguished Population Service Award and was nominated for the 1987 United Nations Population Award.

As head of the Population Institute, Fornos devotes his time both to convincing leaders of developing countries that they must balance their populations with their resources and to encouraging leaders of industrialized countries to help poorer countries achieve that balance. Fornos believes so strongly in that message that since 1974, when he spoke at the World Population Conference in Bucharest, Romania, he has taken it to virtually every major forum involving global population problems and their solutions.

For more information on Fornos' talk, call 543-6460.

VOL. IX NO. 29

'The Fantasticks' Opens Friday

Sophanes, the SSC Theatre Club, will present The Fantasticks as the final offering of the 1987-88 theatre season. The musical comedy is directed by Sean Thomas, a Communication Arts/Music student at the College.

Thomas wanted to direct The Fantasticks because "it's a really good play for actors." The play features a small set, which allows more attention to be drawn to the actors. Thomas also feels that the lighting designer of a production is overlooked; The Fantasticks offers more emphasis on lighting.

Although Thomas has appeared as the character Matt in The Fantasticks, he stresses that he has not tried to copy anything from the production he acted in. "I want this production to be different from any other of it ever done," he said.

According to Thomas, the simple plot of The Fantasticks offers a good start for the beginning director. Although he makes his directorial debut with this show, Thomas has an extensive theatre background. He began acting at the age of 12 and has since performed in productions for SSC, Community Players of Salisbury and the Trawler Dinner Theatre in Exmore, VA. He also has performed at the prestigious Shenandoah Summer Music Theatre and has studied voice under Katherine Turner and directing under Andrew Hepburn at SSC.

Luisa (Pamela Kinnamon) and Matt (Jon Dietrich) play the star-crossed lovers in the Salisbury State Sophanes theatre club presentation of The Fantasticks.

The Fantasticks is the longest running play in America; it is still playing at the Sullivan Street Theatre in New York, where it opened in 1960. It started as a minor children's theatre show; the writers of the show, Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt, later expanded it to a full-length musical.

The Fantasticks focuses on Matt and Luisa (Jon Dietrich and Pam Kinnamon), who are in love and meet secretly at the wall that their

Risk Management Task Force

Traditionally, parents and students have considered course offerings, research capabilities, faculty credentials and social activities when choosing a college. Now, some may be looking at another factor: safety. (Washington Post April 10, 1988)

This recent quote from the Post "Education Review" captures the current national concern for personal safety on campus. Individual safety has long been a concern at Salisbury State and extends to resident and commuter students as well as faculty and staff.

Specific college-sponsored services and programs, such as emergency phones, campus escorts, crime prevention messages, self-defense and date rape lectures, have existed here for some time.

A quality of life in the College community where students, staff and visitors can be safe from physical abuse and secure from the threat of mental anguish is an important environmental factor supportive of the College mission.

In March the Dean of Students' Office created a personal safety task force to pull together services and programs already offered, plus to analyze future needs for information in personal decision-making and behavior.

The concept of risk management was used because it is broad enough to address the level of personal responsibility to act in a manner which minimizes the level of risk for self and others, plus provides a framework within which multiple issues across the campus may be addressed in a systematic way.

Among those fitting into such a framework are: rape and acquaintance rape, alcohol and drugs, assault and battery, personal property protection and fire safety and prevention. The task force membership includes students Susan Harris, Rob Moon and George Rakis, and staff members Barry King, Bob Lovely, Carlton Tobias, Jim Phillips and Carol Williamson.

Priority issues being considered by this group are personal safety including sexual assault and assault and battery; personal communication including rape and acquaintance rape, sexual harassment and sexually transmitted diseases; and finally, suicide.

The task force will identify primary target groups in the College community needing information, and the various departments/offices as program sources for each issue. Also, department/offices will be identified where programming delivery responsibility will lie.

Faculty, staff and students interested in contributing to this task force should contact current members or attend the remaining meetings on Wednesdays, May 11 and 18, at 3:30 p.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

Phonathon Raises $53,624

"The results were record-breaking," said Judy Pielemeier, executive director of Alumni Relations, referring to the recently concluded fifth annual Alumni Association Phonathon.

"We surpassed our goal of $50,000 with a final pledge of $53,624," said Pielemeier. "Of the approximately 5,500 alumni who were actually contacted, 1,981 accepted our challenge."

Pielemeier on Management

Dr. Gary Pielemeier, vice president of Research and Development, recently discussed "Management Theory" at a mini-seminar of effective management sponsored by the Business Affairs Committee of the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce.

The seminar, which attracted 33 businessmen and businesswomen, was held at the Salisbury Sheraton.

Whitehead Presents Paper

Dr. George Whitehead, professor and chairman of the Psychology Department, presented a paper at the 59th annual meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association in Buffalo, NY.

Dr. Whitehead's paper was titled "Assigning culpability to a rape victim's resistance and respectability." He has co-authored a number of psychological journal articles and a chapter for a book, Public Self and Private Self.

The meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association is attended by psychologists from the U.S. and Canada.

Irene Phillips, recording secretary of the Junior Auxiliary Board of Peninsula General, left, and Betty Wooten, president of the Junior Board, present scholarships to Salisbury State Nursing students Mary Hart and Jonni Sue Taylor. Also attending the presentation were Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, Dean of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, and Beth Rettew, assistant professor and scholarship coordinator for the School of Nursing, right.

Nursing Students Receive Scholarships

The Junior Auxiliary Board of Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center recently announced that two Salisbury State Nursing students have been selected to receive scholarships for the 1988-89 academic year.

Mary Hart, a first semester senior, will receive $750 to be used toward her final semester in the fall. Hart, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Miller of Salisbury, has received a total of $3,000 in scholarship monies from the Junior Board during her junior and senior years.

Jonni Sue Taylor, a sophomore, will receive a full scholarship of $1,500 for her junior year. Taylor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H.

Taylor, also of Salisbury.

According to Betty Wooten, president of the Junior Board, both students have demonstrated outstanding achievement in the Salisbury State Nursing program. They have also exhibited potential for future leadership and service to the nursing profession.

The Junior Board scholarship program was established in 1982 to provide financial assistance to academically gifted students from the lower Eastern Shore. It also provides a means to attract and retain well-qualified professional nurses at Peninsula General. Wooten said.

Sport's Update

by Barry Packer

In what seems to have become a monthly ritual, Salisbury State teams participated in the Eastern States Athletic Conference Championship games during the past weekend. The baseball and softball teams were the fourth and fifth teams that went to the championship game for the Sea Gulls this season. Early on, the soccer and volleyball teams upended Cabrini, while the women's basketball team knocked off Marywood.

And, this past weekend, the pair of nines were threatening to make it five banners for five championship efforts.

However, while the men came through with a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over Eastern, the softball team fell short, 7-3 in its effort at Marywood.

Eastern got off to a 1-0 first inning lead off Mark Perry, who pitched seven innings. The Gulls got a single marker in the third to tie the score, when Randy Collett delivered Kevin Smith. One frame later, shortstop Russ Smith's double plated center fielder Bruce Matthews, to give the Gulls a 2-1 lead. With Perry pitching admirably, and holding Eastern to virtually nothing, the Gulls got what appeared to be an insurance run, when Mike Marinelli's long sacrifice fly sent left fielder Al Pritchett home to make the score 3-1.

But Eastern catcher, Sean McNamara, tied the game at three in the sixth with a homerun.

After each pitcher faced just four batters each in the seventh, Sea Gull relief pitcher Brad Beck came on in the eighth, also setting Eastern down facing one batter over the minimum.

Marinelli was the first batter in the eighth, and he singled on the initial offering from Wade Hulmes. On a 0-1 count, Matthews also singled, Marinelli taking second. After a sacrifice by Greg Hook, Russ Smith walked to load the bases for Artie Perdue, who was getting his first swipes of the game. Perdue also drew a base on balls to send home the game-winner.

Oscar Winning Film On Women

The film, Women—For America, for the World, directed by Vivienne Berdon-Roe, will be screened at the Wicomico Public Library, Mother's Day, May 8, at 3 p.m.

In this film the director trains her camera on women who actively oppose the arms race. In a memorable segment, United Food and Commercial Workers Union Vice-President Addie Wyatt explains why she thought women should speak out against war: "We conceive the nation in our bodies. In pain and suffering we grunt the nation into being. We nurse it and we nurture it. It certainly is our responsibility to help decide which way the nation goes."

It is a passionate film peppered with facts.

18. Dress Code This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor. The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline and white collar on the robe.
4. No visible jewelry.
5. No flowers on the academic robe.

Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional (the Civic Center is air-conditioned).
7. No visible jewelry.

Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by President Bellavance and Vice-President Butler when they touch their mortarboards.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.
5. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.)

parents, Huck and Belt (played by Robert Forester and Susan Rogers), have built to keep them apart. The young lovers do not suspect that their parents are only pretending to feud, and actually want them to marry.

Huck and Belt then scheme an abduction of Luisa, and hire El Gallo (David Cherry) for the job. All goes as planned, Matt "kills" the would-be abductor and his cohorts; the parents "relen" and the first act ends happily. However, surprise and heartache await the characters in act two.

Other cast members include Jeanette Hillard (the Mute), Paul Lewis (Henry) and Steve Collins (Mortimer).

Dates for the show are Friday and Saturday, May 6, 7, and Friday through Sunday, May 12-14, at 8 p.m. and with a Sunday matinee on May 8 at 2 p.m. Admission is free to SSC students, faculty and staff. For reservations call 543-6228.

That challenge was: a pledge of $10 from each alumnus who did not give last year and who had been out of school five years or less; a pledge of $25 from each alumnus who did not give last year and who has been out of school more than five years; and an increase from any alumnus who contributed to last year's campaign. Each challenge gift was reciprocated with a beverage mug mat sporting the institution's new name, Salisbury State University.

All money raised through the Alumni Campaign goes into the SSC Foundation. Unrestricted dollars are used in the President's Fund for Excellence which provides scholarships, faculty grants for research and projects deemed necessary by the president. When alumni restrict their pledge the monies are deposited in accounts for those special projects.

The annual campaign's leadership giving club, the Century Club, has 107 members. These are alumni who contribute at least $100 each year to the campaign. Century Club members will be sent the second in a series of prints from the private collection of SSC founding president, Dr. William J. Holloway. The print is from an original lantern slide showing the building of then soon-to-be Holloway Hall.

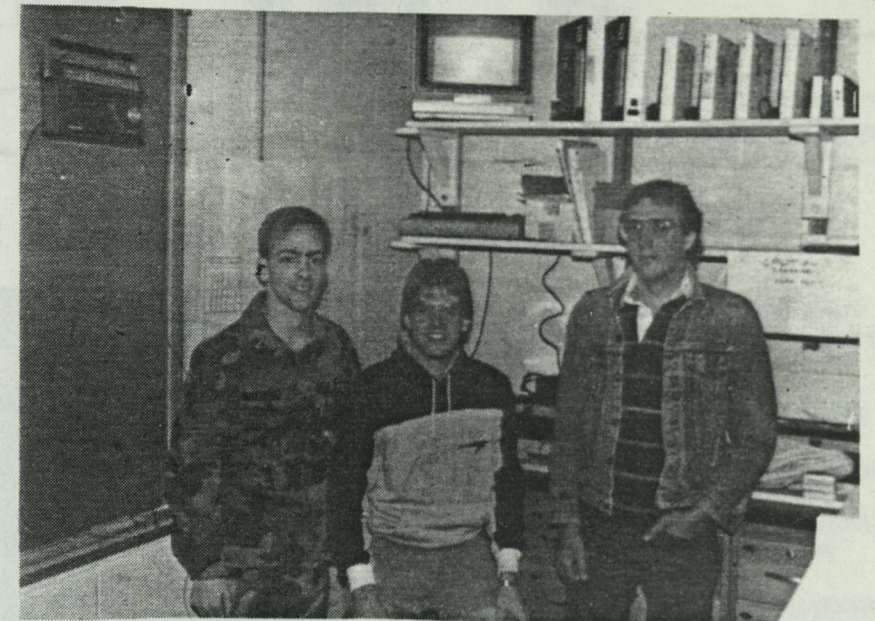

Callers during the four weeks in mid-March and mid-April were current students who contracted to do the work with the Alumni Association. Organizations that participated this year include Kappa Psi Kappa, Pi Lambda Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the Inter-Fraternity Council, ROTC, students from the Athletic Department, Alpha Sigma Tau and Zeta Tau Alpha.

The individuals who raised the most in pledges each evening were given a dinner at the Red Roost.

The Phonathon is supported by several outside businesses which donate food for the callers. This year student callers were supplied with soft drinks by Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company and treated with dinner from the following companies: Pizza Town, Four Star Pizza, Domino's, Pizza Hut, Burger King and McDonalds.

"Our calling students were a tremendous help," said Pielemeier. "They often spent time on the phones reviewing campus life today to alumni who may not have been back to campus for several years."

One alumnus from the Class of '73 along with his pledge arranged during his upcoming visit to Salisbury for a tour of campus lead by the student who called him," said Pielemeier. "Alumni expressed their enthusiasm about the opening of the new University Center and were often asking questions about favorite faculty who are still on campus and courses new and old."

VOL. IX NO. 30

McKenzie Commencement Speaker

Floreta Dukes McKenzie, president of The McKenzie Group, an educational consulting firm, will address the graduating class at the 1988 Commencement on Saturday, May 28, at the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center.

Dr. McKenzie, prior to the formation of the McKenzie group in February, was superintendent of schools and chief state school officer for the District of Columbia public schools, the 21st largest school system in the U.S.

Her accomplishments in DC public schools include the establishment of public/private partnerships, an ongoing network of local business, major corporations, foundations and trade associations which have joined with the school system to improve instructional programs, personnel training and school system management. These partnerships with the private sector have resulted in the creation of five state-of-the-art high school career programs; a management training institute for administrators; and the pairing of 60 federal and local government agencies with individual schools to provide expert assistance and expanded learning opportunities to students.

She was responsible for the implementation of a five-year computer literacy plan, one of the country's first long-range, systematic plans to bring high technology into a school system's pre-kindergarten through 12th grade curriculum. The plan calls for the installation of computer labs in every school and the training of all instructional personnel in the applications of computer technology to classroom instruction. Students learn not only about computers, but through computers; they also learn advanced as well as basic course material.

She has secured a stable financial and planning base with the concerted efforts of all segments of the community; the school system has maintained a stable level of available resources.

"This stability has enabled the schools to approach the improvement of education in a comprehensive, planned manner and has resulted in a growing record of student academic progress," said McKenzie.

Dr. McKenzie has also worked with the U.S. Department of Education as deputy assistant secretary of the office of School Improvement, was a U.S. Delegate of UNESCO at the 21st General Conference in Belgrade, Yugoslavia and at the Third Conference of Ministers of Education at Sofia, Bulgaria, and was the deputy superintendent of schools for Montgomery (MD) County Public Schools.

Among her awards are an Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters from The Catholic University of America and similar recognition from Georgetown University. She has also received honorary degrees from Williams (MA) College, Bowie State College and Trinity College.

In 1983, she received the Washingtonian of the Year Award and the Woman of the Year Award as selected by the Metropolitan YWCA. She is the first woman to serve with the U.S. Office of Education in the post of deputy commissioner.

Dr. McKenzie received her B.S. from D.C. Teacher's College, her M.A. from Howard University, and an E.Ed. from George Washington University.

Following her Commencement address she will receive an Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters from SSC. Also being recognized with honorary doctorates are Marshall W. Carmina Burana May 20, 21

At 8 p.m. on Friday, May 20, in Holloway Hall and again at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 21 at Easton High School, three accomplished guest soloists will join local musicians for the performance of Carmina Burana.

Soprano Katherine Turner, tenor Dan Brewer and baritone Kent Smith will join the combined forces of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra, the Salisbury Choral Society, the Easton Choral Arts Society and the Salisbury State College Concert Choir for the performance of this "scenic cantata" composed by Carl Orff in 1936.

Turner, currently a voice instructor at SSC and Delaware Music School in Milford, has been performing at the Commander Cabaret Dinner Theater in Ocean City for the past five summers. She holds a bachelor's degree in Music and a master's degree in Opera from the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

Previously a member of The Philadelphia Singers, Inc. and the Opera Company of Philadelphia Chorus, Turner has been heard with the Pennsylvania Opera Theater, the Annapolis Opera, the Suncoast Opera and the Asolo Opera Company. During the 1987 season of the Sarasota Opera Association, Turner was acclaimed with rave reviews for her performances as Frasquita in Carmen and Lola in Cavalleria Rusticana. She also had the principal role in the Opera Company of Philadelphia performances of Romeo and Juliette.

Turner has performed with the Wahnfried Chamber Orchestra, the Concerto Soloists Orchestra of Philadelphia, the Curtis Symphony Orchestra, the Philly Pops and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra.

A native of Philadelphia, Brewer's list of performances is impressive. Among them, he has played Rodolpho in La Boheme and Almaviva in the Barber of Seville in the Pittsburgh Opera Company. He has also performed at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York for the American premier of Martinu's opera The Greek Passion, and the Michiana Opera Guild in Indiana.

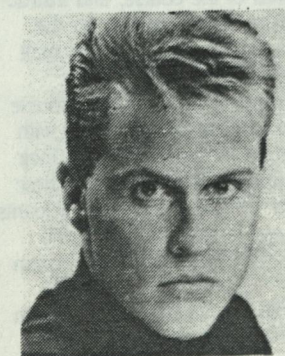

A graduate of Indiana University, Brewer has studied with Nicola Rossi-Lemeni, Virginia Zeani and Margaret Harshaw. His accomplished musical talents have led him to such works as La Traviata, Faust, Carmen, Don Giovanni, Madame Butterfly, Mefistopheles, Verdi Requiem and Suor Angelica, with the Texas Opera Theatre Tour in Houston, the Michigan Opera Theatre, and at Indiana University.

Twenty-nine year-old Brewer has also portrayed Gastone in La Traviata with the Dayton Opera in Ohio, and Alfredo in the same opera with the Philadelphia Piccola Opera. Smith's solo performances in the past three years have included such demanding works as Bach's St. Matthew's Passion at the Philadelphia Academy of Music and Stravinsky's Les Noces at the Temple University Orchestra and Chorus.

Smith, 26, also studied at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. He received his

As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.)

bachelor's degree in Fine Arts from Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh in 1982, and attended the Blossom Festival School of Music in Kent, OH and Chautauqua Festival School of Music in Chautauqua, NY.

Smith's vocal training has been under Todd Duncan, Spiro Malas and Beatrice Krebs. As a baritone, his operatic performances include Malestest in Donizetti's Don Pasquale, Papageno in Mozart's Mozart's Die Zauberflöte and Frank in Strauss's Die Fledermaus.

A member of the Philadelphia Singers under the direction of Michael Korn for the past two years, and The Opera Company of Philadelphia for the past two seasons, Smith has participated in a number of voice competitions. He was a finalist in the Concerto Soloists Competition in Philadelphia in 1986, second place winner in the Bel Canto Competition of York, PA, in 1985, and district winner in the 1984 Metropolitan Opera Auditions.

First performed in 1937, Carl Orff's Carmina Burana is based on manuscripts found in a Bavarian Monastery in 1803. The texts, in Latin, Middle-High German and Old French, were written by wandering scholars, vagabond poets and monks.

Orff designates the piece: "Secular songs for singers and vocal chorus with instruments and magical pictures." The original manuscript contains approximately 200 songs, sacred and secular.

Orff chose to set 24 of these texts, preserving the feel of Medieval times while incorporating distinctive 20th century idioms. The prelude, Fortune, Empress of the World, is sung by the victims of Fortune's ruthless wheel. The sections which follow are devoted to the joys of spring, the pleasures of the tavern and the gaming tables, the delights of love.

The work is scored for soprano, baritone, and very high tenor solos, five other male soloists, semichorus, chorus, and children's choir all accompanied by a huge orchestra, including a vast percussion section and two pianos.

Tickets to the Carmina Burana performance are $8 each and can be reserved by calling 543-6385 or 543-ARTS. Tickets may also be purchased through the Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council's ticket outlets at Peninsula Banks and John Hanson Savings Banks.

Peterson, Moore to Receive Honorary Degrees

Peterson Ex-Governor Of Delaware

Dr. Russell W. Peterson, former Governor of Delaware and president emeritus of the National Audubon Society, will receive an Honorary Doctorate of Laws at the College's 1988 Commencement on Saturday, May 28, at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

During his gubernatorial administration from 1969-1973, he initiated and implemented many innovative measures including the conversion of a commission form of government to a cabinet form, and passage of the Delaware Coastal Zone Act.

He was chairman of the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals. This commission published a report, "A National Strategy to Reduce Crime," which has led to comprehensive studies of criminal justice systems in most states.

He was chairman of the National Education Commission of the States, the Southern States Nuclear Board and the Delaware River Basin Commission.

While president and chief executive officer of the National Audubon Society from April 1979 to July 1985 he played a leading role in helping to focus the environmental movement on a long-term global and holistic approach to quality-of-life issues.

He was a prime mover in the creation of the Global Tomorrow Coalition, the Center on the Consequences of Nuclear War and the Better World Society. He chaired a project of the Group of Ten national environmental leaders to develop an Environmental Agenda for the Future; and co-chaired a committee of chemical industry and environmental chief executive officers which helped persuade Congress to support expanded research at the Environmental Protection Agency.

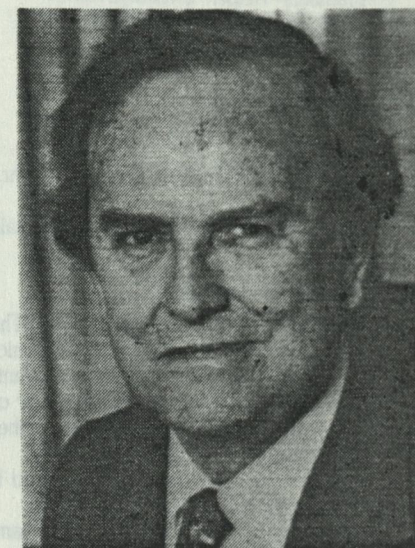

A native of Portage, WI, Peterson obtained his Ph.D. in Chemistry from the University of Wisconsin in 1942.

During 26 years with the Dupont Company, Peterson advanced through management assignments in research, production and sales to director of the Development Department's Research and Development Division which he organized and which was responsible for initiating new business ventures for the company.

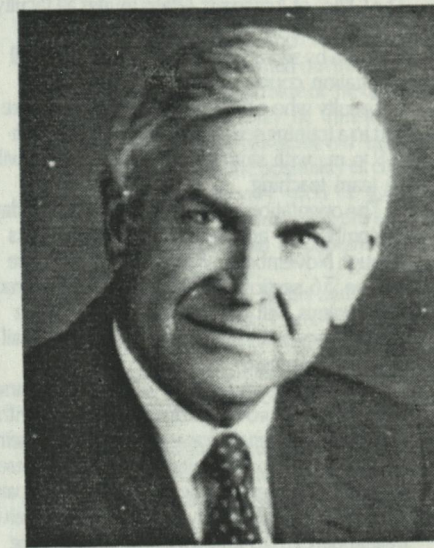

In 1979 he was appointed by President Carter to the 12-member commission to investigate the nuclear accident at Three-Mile Island. He has held active leadership roles in a number of community service organizations. He organized and was president of a statewide citizens' campaign in Delaware to reduce crime and improve corrections which resulted in adoption of new laws to deal with offenders.

He is recipient of many awards including the American Chemical Society's Parson's Award, the National Wildlife Federation's 1971 Conservationist-of-the-Year Award, the World Wildlife Fund's Gold Medal Award, the National Audubon Society's 1977 Annual Medal, the Frances K. Hutchinson medal

While at SSC he was an Achievement Key winner, editor of the yearbook, named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, selected Best Male Athlete (soccer, basketball and baseball) and a Dean's List student.

He originally enrolled at SSC in 1941, but left two years later to join the U.S. Navy Seabees for World War II. While in the Seabees, he spent two years constructing airfields in the Marshall Islands and Marianas Island in the Pacific Theater and in August 1945 was aboard the Enola Gay which carried the atomic bomb which was dropped on Hiroshima, Japan.

Moore spent the initial years of his professional career as a teacher, instructing sixth and seventh graders at East Salisbury School. In 1950, he opted to pursue a business career, first with the Morris Implement Co. in Salisbury as the manager of the diversified farm equipment operation.

He ultimately joined Loyola Federal, one of the largest mortgage and savings institutions in the mid-Atlantic area, where his responsibilities ranged from one office in Easton to expansion to six offices on the Shore to the management of a statewide network. That network expanded from 15 locations and $400 million in deposits in 1969 to 34 offices and over $1 billion by the mid '80s.

Despite his considerable successes in the business world, Moore has also made significant civic and community contributions.

A former president of both the SSC Alumni Association and the SSC Board of Visitors, he was founding director of the Sea Gull Club, a community organization supportive of Salisbury

State athletics and other programs, and the SSC Foundation, Inc. The Foundation, established for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the College, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders, solely for educational, charitable and scientific purposes.

He served from 1977-82 as a member of the Board of Trustees of State Universities and Colleges, the last three as chairman. The Board governs SSC, Towson State University, Coppin State College, Bowie State College, Frostburg State University and the University of Baltimore. Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell of the Social Work Department conducted a review of the Social-Work Department at Bridgewater (MA) State College for the Massachusetts Board of Regents in early May.

The departmental review is a process designed by the Regents to use an outside consultant/evaluator to assess all aspects of a major including curriculum, qualifications of faculty and employment of graduates.

Phi Kappa Phi Initiation

The 14th annual initiation ceremony of the Salisbury State chapter of the national honor society of Phi Kappa Phi was held recently in the Ruth Powell Dining Hall, with 42 seniors and three juniors inducted into this prestigious interdisciplinary society. Invitation to membership is among the highest academic honors which the College bestows. All members are within the top five percent of their class.

As part of the ceremony, Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, presented an address entitled "Boundaries of Excellence." Rubin discussed how boundaries can be perceived in different ways and can be used for different purposes. She pointed out that the time a person spends on the high side of the boundary demarcating excellence may be transitory. Therefore, those who had achieved excellence should be prepared for the possibility of crossing the boundary back to very good or good enough. This is not a failure and provides the opportunity to strive again to penetrate the boundary to the sublime.

The audience included family and friends of the inductees as well as Dr. Carol Williamson, Dean of Students, Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of Academic Affairs, and Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of Salisbury State College.

The newly inducted juniors are Linda Eharisman of Delmar; Laura Chaput of Newburg; and Patricia Deltuva of Hampstead.

Newly inducted seniors are Charles Palmer, Kathleen Palyo, Brenda Spencer, Norma Cherix, Marybeth Davis and Kandi Davis all of Salisbury; Geraldine Stanford of Quantico; Ruby Jones of Delmar; Bradley of Lovelace of Hebron; Sharon L. Jones of Willards; Yvonne Hudson of Bishopville; Karen Shockley and Rita Cherix of Snow Hill; William Browning of Pocomoke; Lisa Staudenecker of Ocean City; Cathy Vaughan of Crisfield; Angela Mowbray, Carolyn Hester and Susan Gold of Easton; Joyce Crow of Tilghman; Helen Stinton of Whittman; Patricia Taaffe of Maryland; Cheryl Overington of Preston; Joan Harris of Hurllock; Carlton Bradshaw and Randy Todd of Cambridge; Warren Rice of Crofton; Carol Scrivener of Prince Frederick; Terry Estep of Dunkirk; Charles Schroeder and Jonathan Alperin of Bowie; Andrew Spiegel, Lynda Hare and Lori Kafer of Baltimore; Linda Densmore of Arnold; Paul Fleming of Rockville; Karen Hampton of Clinton; Kristina Keyser of Hagerstown; Tammy Hitchens of Georgetown, DE; Lisa Cropper of Hometown, VA; Steven Jennings of Arlington, VA; and Mary Spalding of Louisville, KY.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline and white collar on the robe.
4. No visible jewelry.
5. No flowers on the academic robe.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional (the Civic Center is air-conditioned).

7. No visible jewelry.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice-President for Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.

3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

21. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.)

Thompson Published

Dr. G. Ray Thompson, professor of History, has received confirmation from the publisher of SAN: Journal of the Society for Ancient Numismatics that his recently submitted article will be published in the forthcoming issue of SAN (vol. XVII, no. 3).

The article is entitled: "A Study in Imperial Marriage: Numismatics and Epigraphic Evidence of the Wives of Elagabalus (A.D. 218-222)." The study is of the little-researched period during which the Near-Eastern Severan dynasty ruled the Roman Empire. Since literary documentation for the period is scarce, epigraphic and numismatic evidence is crucial to understanding the social history of this period in Rome's transformation.

Thompson has previously published a number of articles on ancient numismatics and dynastic history of the Roman Empire.

Mock Trial

Is Dr. Herbert Johnson guilty of medical malpractice or breach of contract for Betty Smith's misshapen nose? Students in Professor Debbie Mescon's Business Law I classes at the College have been trying to answer this question for the past two weeks.

Over 75 Business Law students have been participating in two weeks of mock trials in the case of Smith v. Johnson. The trials were preceded by a month of pleading and discovery. Student attorneys had to draw up complaints, answers and replies, as well as create and respond to interrogatories.

The plaintiff's attorneys represented Betty Smith, a professional singer and dancer who underwent unsuccessful nose surgery. All attorneys were given evidence relating to the case. At the mock trial, each team of attorneys was responsible for presenting the evidence, through direct and cross examination of both witnesses, Smith and Johnson, to a panel of judges.

Some 30 faculty and staff members from all over the College presided over the mock trial proceedings. In addition to ruling either for or against the defendant, the judges evaluated the student attorneys.

"Overall, the mock trial program was a big success proving that even if student attorneys lost the case, they really came out winners," said Mescon.
